Peek's Ouster Is Viewed as Only Solution to Dispute.

President Confers With Wallace, Aid

Offer of New Post for AAA Administrator Is Reported.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

Dissension between George N. Peek, agricultural administrator, and members of Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace's "brain trust" yesterday continued to disrupt the work of farm relief, despite efforts of President Roosevelt to bringe peace and harmony to that wing of his recovery program.

Although the President invited Mr. Peek to luncheon, talking with him for more than an hour and a half, and Secretary Wallace later spent an hour with the farm administrator, the latter apparently refused to become reconciled to the ideas of the "brain trust."

In some quarters, it was contended that this impasse would be broken by the ousting of Mr. Peek from the Government's service, but aside from evidence that the quarrel within the Agriculture Department is becoming more bitter and personal, there was no confirmation that the farm administrator would be forced to resign.

Peek Refuses Statement.

Mr. Peek repeatedly during the day refused to discuss the possibility of his resignation, but his friends contended he would not voluntarily quit unless he is ordered transferred to the NRA, a possibility which Secretary Wallace declined to confirm or deny. Mr. Peek's resignation will have to be demanded to get him out otherwise, his friends said.

An unconfirmed report last night was to the effect that Secretary Wallace had offered Mr. Peek a new post, which was not specified. The story was that Mr. Peek had this offer under consideration, but that if he declined to be transferred he would be asked to leave.

Secretary Wallace said virtually nothing during the day, refusing several requests for a press conference. After returning to his office from a second visit during the day with the President, he was asked through his office aids whether Mr. Peek had been asked to resign or whether he had tendered his resignation. Word came back that the "Secretary had nothing to say."

On the other hand, members of the "brain trust," declining to be quoted, insisted they had no intention of resigning unless asked to do so. In the welter of reports around the Department of Agriculture yesterday was one that both Mr. Peek and Jerome Frank, counsel for the A. A. A. and, in this controversy, the most active of the "brain trust" faction, may be asked to resign as a means of pacifying the department.

Other Resignations Possible.

Should Mr. Peek be forced from his position, it is possible a number of persons in charge of A. A. A. divisions and sympathetic with his viewpoint would likewise resign. On the other hand, the tension in the department appears to be so great that it is difficult to see how

Finance Group Gets Tax Plan

President Believed to Have Urged Liquor Revenue Jump.

The House Ways and Means Committee yesterday received the President's interdepartmental report on liquor control, believed to recommend liquor taxes ranging between $2.20 and $3, instead of $1.10 as in the present law.

The report was held in strict confidence by Chairman Robert L. Doughton when the committee decided to suspend all debate on proposals until joint sessions with the Senate Finance Committee next Monday. Doughton said Treasury officials exacted a promise of secrecy.

Another copy is in the posession of Senator Pat Harrison, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, now in Mississippi. Other copies today will be submitted to members of both committees for study.

In line with a previous decision of a special subcommittee, the House Ways and Means Committee passed over liquor taxation in debating general tax law revision whereby an estimated $270,000,000 in additional revenues may be saved.

It will be up to the House Ways and Means Committee and the Senate Finance Committee sitting jointly Monday whether liquor control features are incorporated in the liquor tax bill rushed through Congress ahead of the general revenue measure.

1,000 Are Roosevelt Guests at Reception

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

President and Mrs. Roosevelt last night entertained 1,000 guests at their first state reception, honoring members of the Diplomatic Corps. The White House, brilliantly lighted, was decorated with large standards of dark red chrysanthemums, ferns and palms in the hallway, and vases and urns of pink chrysanthemums and roses were in the state reception rooms, east room and state dining room. Punch and light refreshments were served.

The procedure of the reception had been changed, with the honor guests assembling in the green room rather than the red room, to await the arrival of the Presidential party, while the other guests waited in the east room.

Preceded by the Army, Navy and Marine Corps aids and escorted by Capt. Walter N. Vernou, U. S. N., the President led the Cabinet through the red room and, fol-

Rebel Voters' Fight Headed For Congress

Louisiana District Likely to Send 2 Claimants for House Seat.

Baton Rouge, La., Dec. 7 (AP).—Louisiana's Sixth District Congressional election dispute today appeared to be headed for a settlement in the House of Representatives, with opposing political factions in the district deadlocked and refusing to give ground.

Apparently, the district will send two "Congressmen" to Washington in January, unless the administration nominee, declared elected last Tuesday, should enter and also win the "citizens popular election" which has been called by mass meeting action for December 27.

If two are sent, it will be for the National House to decide which was elected legally.

Election Called Fake.

Antiadministration leaders, sponsoring the citizens' election, have branded openly the procedure by which Mrs. Bolivar E. Kemp, Senator Huey P. Long's candidate, was "elected unopposed" last Tuesday as "a fake election"

The administration has characterized the proposed "citizens election" as an extra-legal movement which will not be recognized

Mrs. Kemp, admitting she acted against the wishes of her "political advisers," yesterday offered to cancel her disputed election on condition citizens would also cancel their proposed "popular election" and suggested everybody start over, with all candidates given an equal chance in a primary and election to be regularly called.

No Time, Says Allen.

Nobody took up her offer.

Gov. O. K. Allen issued a statement asserting there was not time now to call primaries and a general election before the January session of Congress, and pointed out that technicalities attaching to the expiration of voters' registrations in Louisiana on January 1 would make it "impossible to hold legal primaries and an election before April 15."

In a letter to the citizens' election committee, which also had petitioned for a regularly called primary and election, Gov. Allen offered to call a new general election on April 15, but added:

Mrs. Kemp Criticized.

"I do not suppose Mrs. Kemp will be so foolish as to submit a resignation to me unless in advance you gentlemen would agree to be bound and act by the law. I think Mrs. Kemp makes a mistake to suggest to you that she would in any manner call for a primary election.

"But if you do signify your willingness to be bound under the rulings and precedents which have remained the custom and legal process of this State and if then Mrs. Kemp sees fit to tender a resignation so as to create a vacancy, then I will follow the same and call a general election for April 15, 1934."

The citizens' committee's reply to Mrs. Kemp's proposition was an invitation for her to come into the December 27 citizens' election as a candidate "if she really wants a test of strength."

The Allen statement was branded by the committee as "insincere and ridiculous on the face of it."

"As usual, Allen has dodged the issue, and is camouflaging when he talks about a general election April 15.

"His statement is conclusive proof that the election held on December 5, called by Huey Long's henchmen, was a complete fake and failure."

Montgomery Dry; Demands More Liquor

Two Dispensaries Exhaust Stocks, Close in Face of Thirsty.

With the aid of visiting neighbors Montgomery County drank itself dry yesterday afternoon, and last night remained on its feet loudly demanding a refill.

Repeal's lusty celebration was short lived. Thirsty members of self-appointed welcome committees emptied the only two liquor dispensaries by 2 p. m., and, temporarily at least, the county was haunted by shades of the prohibition era.

So insistent were disappointed purchasers that a member of the liquor control board was sent posthaste to New York to see what he could find. He arrived by airplane last night and sent word that nothing was to be had.

Crowds Mill Around.

From early morning until long after dark crowds milled about the Silver Spring and Bethesda dispensaries. Shortly after noon the last bottle disappeared in Bethesda and the Silver Spring store closed a few hours later.

John C. Walker, manager of the Silver Spring dispensary, announced that a new shipment was expected some time this morning. Authorities sought to obtain from Baltimore enough to meet the demand.

Spirit seekers from scattered sections of Virginia and Maryland augmented Washingtonians and suburbanites. Promises of a carload shipment of 4.3 beer failed to ease the situation. They wanted "hard liquor" and made it known in no uncertain terms.

Long after dispensaries were closed and announcements were made that the county had "gone dry," the crowds remained—in hopes.

$200,000 Revenue Hope.

Lacey Shaw, president of the county board of commissioners, declared that liquor sales are expected to bring a revenue of from $100,000 to $200,000 the first year.

Property owners will reap a reward when whisky sale profits are applied to the retirement of bonded indebtedness for school and road construction. A sharp reduction in the country's present tax rate is

2 Accused in Plot To Kidnap Calles, Jr.

Monterey, Mexico, Dec. 7 (AP).—A plot to kidnap Plutarco Elias Calles, jr., Mayor of Monterey and son of Gen. Calles, was charged today against J. Merced Hernandez Muro and Ricardo Arguz Vasquez.

They were accused of intending to collect a ransom of 200,000 pesos ($54,000) and use the money to finance an armed rebellion.

The men named former Lieut. Col. Santiago Morales as the originator of the plot and also implicated several others, whose identities were withheld but who were understood to be prominent men.

Matsuoka Quits Post In Japan's Parliament

Tokyo, Friday, Dec. 8 (U.P.).—The Nippon Demp News Agency reported today that Yosuke Matsuoka, distinguished American-educated statesman, had resigned from Parliament and from the Seiyukai party.

Hitler Snub By Litvinoff Stirs Reich

Envoy's Failure to Call Viewed as Deliberate Slight to Nation.

Editorial Wooing Also Ignored by Russian en Route Home.

Berlin, Dec. 7 (AP).—Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinoff of Soviet Russia turned a cold shoulder today on the editorial wooing of the Nazi press, and departed for Moscow at 6:40 p. m. without seeing either Chancellor Hitler or Foreign Minister Konstantin von Neurath.

Diplomatic circles regarded Litvinoff's failure to contact the German Government as an exhibition of studied reserve, almost tantamount to a demonstration.

"When a man such as Litvinoff passes up a chance to confer with the heads of a government on whose soil he has spent a full day," one foreign diplomat who for more than ten years has been a close observer of international affairs told The Associated Press, "that means his aloofness is a studied one."

Related Evidence Cited.

Further evidence of studied reserve was seen by diplomats in the fact that Litvinoff's visit to Germany en route from Rome to Moscow came at a time when all Europe was seething with diplomatic activity as evidenced by the imminent departure of the Czechoslovakian foreign minister, Eduard Benes, for Paris, the Russian commissar's own visit with Mussolini and Foreign Minister von Neurath's report to President von Hindenberg on the foreign political situation.

According to reliable advices, Litvinoff was somewhat chargrined that the German press jumped to the conclusion that his visit to Rome was associated with an effort to improve Russo-German relations through the mediation of Mussolini.

Press Appeal for Amity.

Dr. Alfred Rosenberg, head of the Nazi party's foreign political division, urged in an editorial in a Munich newspaper that all animosities between Russia and Germany be forgotten. The editorial appeared a few hours before Litvinoff's arrival.

The Nazi foreign chief expressed hope that Litvinoff would note the "objective spirit" prevailing in Berlin toward the Soviets.

"This would only serve to promote mutual interests," he wrote. "While Germany has eliminated Communism within its own borders, not only outwardly but also inwardly, it is altogether wrong to assume that National Socialism wants to project its philosophic differences upon foreign politics."

Absent From Embassy.

As if to preclude any possibility of negotiating with German government representatives, Litvinoff left the Russian Embassy building soon after his arrival "on purely private business," and the embassy stated he would not return until it was time to catch the train for Moscow.

Litvinoff's decision not to await the arrival in Berlin of United States Ambassador to Moscow William C. Bullitt, who reached England today, also was regarded as indicating that he intended to leave Berlin without according the German authorities any opportunity for an extended meeting.

There had been previous arrangements to see Bullitt in Berlin, but it was explained at the Russian Embassy there was nothing significant about their planned meeting, and anyway they will meet soon in Russia.

Glowing tribute paid to Litvinoff recently in the German press was interpreted in some quarters to mean that Chancellor Hitler himself had ordered a change of policy toward Russia.

White House Announces $950,000,000 Notes Oversubscribed.

Hewes Quits Treasury After Morgenthau Strips Power.

By Elliott Thurston.

Both White House and Treasury were quick to assume yesterday that because the Treasury had no trouble in selling $950,000,000 of one-year 2¼ per cent certificates, to meet December 15 financing, public faith in the Government's credit remained unshaken and the prophets of "greenbacking," like Prof. O. M. W. Sprague, had been refuted.

Betokening keen interest, if not concern, the President himself announced the success of the first test of public faith since the gold-buying operations began. Ordinarily the Treasury does the announcing, but the White House, with the emphasized gratification, reported that the new certificates had been oversubscribed. Books for further subscriptions were ordered closed after but one day.

This was the main development of another day of many minor developments along the monetary-fiscal front.

Hewes Ready to Quit.

Other developments were these:

1. Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Thomas Hewes, youngish Hartford lawyer and friend of Attorney General Cummings, prepared to follow former Undersecretary Dean Acheson out of the Treasury. Hewes called at the White House and left a memorandum that was also a resignation. He is being edged out to make room for appointees of Acting Secretary Morgenthau. Morgenthau, by way of preface, had issued orders directing Internal Revenue Commissioner Guy T. Helvering and Chief of the Secret Service William Moran to report direct to him in the future, instead of to Hewes. The Internal Revenue Bureau, which deals with all taxation matters, is the largest in the Treasury. The orders left Hewes little dominion.

2—Seemingly to keep financial nerves steady while the Treasury was raising money needed to meet December 15 maturities, the Administration held the price of newly mined domestic gold at $34.01, for the sixth successive day, this being about $1.79 above the world price at London.

3—Chairman Jesse Jones of the R. F. C. reported that so far the R. F. C. has exchanged $11,750,000 of its notes for 354,000 ounces of domestic gold, which means an average price paid of $33.192. He continued to be silent about gold-buying abroad save to remark that the amount purchased was "hardly enough to make a good bridge work in your mouth." To Paris reports that buying there had ended and sundry suspicions that the foreign buying has been "psychological" rather than real, he would say nothing.

Soothes "Young Liberals."

4—As a further soothing for the agitated "young liberals" who are up in arms lest their securities act be sabotaged, the President made known that, while he is ready to be shown that the rigid liability clauses inhibit corporate financing, he is against any weakening of the act. And he assigned Federal Trade Commissioner James M. Landis, who helped draw the law

Negro Educator Dies in Carolina

Dr. E. E. Smith, 81, Founded Normal School.

Fayetteville, N. C., Dec. 7 (AP).—Dr. E. E. Smith, 81, Negro educator and former Minister to Liberia, died here today.

Dr. Smith was founder and president emeritus of the North Carolina Normal School for Negroes. He was born in slavery May 23, 1852, in Duplin County, North Carolina.

Liquor Runners Kidnap 4 Coast Guards, Flee to Sea

North Sydney, Nova Scotia, Dec. 7 (AP).—Wireless messages, flashed to ships throughout the North Atlantic today, warned them to watch for a speedy vessel whose crew turned the tables on its captors, the Coast Guard, by kidnaping four guardsmen and fleeing out to sea.

"Keep lookout for Kromhout," was the report sent out and on it Canadian Coast Guard officers pinned hopes of releasing the seamen and recapturing the suspected rum-runners and their vessel.

The kidnaping was carried out with striking swiftness just after daybreak, in stormy seas, after the Coast Guard cutter Stumble Inn had captured the Kromhout.

Warning Shot Ignored.

It was off Bleak Flint Island, that the Stumble Inn came across the cutter's path. Her hail went unanswered as did a warning shot across the Kromhout's bows.

More shots followed in a long chase and finally the quarry heaved to in a heavy sea and allowed the government boat to come alongside. Capt. E. L. Croft placed a tow line on the captured ship and sent four of his men aboard as a guard and the Stumble Inn started to tow the captured craft into North Sydney.

Shortly, men aboard the government vessel heard sounds of a struggle on the seized boat. They saw a man hack the towing cable with an ax and the Kromhout turned swiftly about and raced for the open sea.

Police Boat Loses Chase.

Firing warning shots, the Stumble Inn gave chase. For 27 miles the pursuit went on, but the police boat was outdistanced.

Every available police craft in the Cape Breton area was sent in search of the fugitive vessel.

The captives were Chief Officer F. M. MacKenzie, Second Engineer J. McIntosh, and Able Seamen W. R. T. Oxford and M. D. MacDonald.

Members of the crew of the Stumble Inn said the other boat was loaded with whisky.

With nearly every vessel in the North Atlantic advised, coast guardsmen expressed confidence the fleeing boat would soon be retaken.

Group Votes Resolution as "Duty to Policyholders."

New York, Dec. 7 (AP).—The Association of Life Insurance Presidents, representing 57 life insurance companies, tonight adopted a resolution urging that the "gold standard be maintained; that our currency be stabilized promptly; and that the people be assured that there will be no experiments with new monetary systems."

After the resolution was adopted a statement was issued which said: "* * * Any monetary ease from inflation always has proven to be dearly purchased; any immediate stimulus to business is rapidly exhausted; a reaction invariably sets in with a resulting demand for more of the same remedy; the stimulus of inflation is like that of a drug, and there is an ensuing depression which can be eased only by increasing the dose at the expense of final utter collapse.

"Inflation through political action has rarely ever been held within the limits designed or fixed. It seems idle to talk about controlled inflation in the face of practically all experience."

"Duty to Policyholders."

The statement, issued, the executives said, "as a duty to policyholders," concluded:

"We therefore urge that the gold standard be maintained; that our currency be stabilized promptly, and that the people be assured that there will be no experiments with new monetary systems. We are convinced that maintenance of the gold standard, the prompt stabilization of the currency, and assurance that nothing will be done to impair it, would do more than any other thing to restore confidence, to cause business to go forward, and to promote recovery.

"This country is still the richest in the world and with great capacity for further creation of wealth. With returning confidence it should resume its course toward an even greater and wider prosperity and well-being."

Gov. McNutt Speaks.

Gov. Paul V. McNutt of Indiana spoke to the executives earlier in the meeting and scored repudiation of obligations by State and municipal governments. He said such defaults are "unthinkable" and bring misfortune to "great numbers of our population which have savings invested in municipal securities" and to life insurance companies, whose holdings of such securities "is an absolute essential part of the credit structure of the Nation."

States, he added, "retain a large measure of moral responsibility in seeing to it that none of its political subdivisions ever defaults on obligations. The credit of the State and its subdivision must be maintained."

Gov. McNutt said he was unable to find, anywhere, any "real movement supporting the repudiation of Government obligations."

In discussing political subdivisions, he said the "present era of depression demands a critical and searching examination of all governmental agencies to see which, if any, have outlived their usefulness."

Scoffs at "Defeatism."

The Indiana governor, a former national commander of the American Legion, scoffed at the "preachings of defeatists" and said he believed more profoundly than ever in Democracy as a system of Government, "despite the support given in some circles to Communism and Fascism."

In citing the necessity for meeting the needs of the unemployed, Gov. McNutt said such classes have always been in the vanguard of every revolt against established order.

"A hungry man is never rational in his attitude toward the life of the community or toward himself," he said. "Therefore, it is the business of government to make those adjustments which guarantee to every man the right to live as a normal human being."

Miss Robinson Worth Salary, Johnson Says

NRA Head Defends His Administrative Assistant.

General Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, came to the defense of his administrative assistant, Miss Frances M. Robinson, yesterday, following publication by The Post of the fact that she went from a stenographic job with the Democratic National Committee to one of the highest-salaried posts in the relief administration.

Miss Robinson, it was revealed, is on the pay roll for $6,800, which, with pay cuts, makes her actual salary $5,780, or $220 less than that of Johnson himself.

"I think that was one below the belt," Johnson said, commenting on The Post story. He explained that Miss Robinson was not a secretary or a stenographer, but an administrative assistant.

"In the original set-up of this organization," he said, "there were two assistants to the administrator, Miss Robinson and Robert Straus (son of the Ambassador to France who left recently) and the salaries were, I think, $5,000 a year.

Recommended as Assistant.

"Miss Robinson came recommended to me as an excellent administrator and executive from the RKO. I think the story said she stepped up from a $25-a-week stenographer. I am quite sure that when she was with the Democratic committee she was a volunteer worker.

"She came in here as an executive administrator's assistant, and in many ways she knows more about this law and the administration of it than anybody else.

"I don't think I need say that anybody around here thought she was a stenographer and secretary. I don't think there was any misapprehension about her position as personal assistant to the administrator and she has acted as such straight through. It was approved by the Industrial Board and by the President.

Johnson said he had no objection to anyone looking at the NRA pay roll.

In Stenographic Pool.

"Only three men in the entire organization draw more than $6,000," he said. "The administrator is not one of them."

At the Democratic National Committee it was said that Miss Robinson had served there for three months as a stenographer. She was described as being a "member of the stenographic pool," a group of stenographers not assigned to any particular work, but who take letters from whomever is in need of a stenographer.

Later Miss Robinson, it was learned, sought a job as a typist for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. She took an examination but did not go to work. The personnel officer for the R. F. C. refused to permit Miss Robinson's application card to be seen.

The Radio-Keith-Orpheum office in New York told the Associated Press that it had no record of a Frances M. Robinson having been in the employ of the concern. A young woman named Frances M. Robinson, however, had been employed in a secretarial capacity in one of the offices of the Radio Corporation of America, an official of that concern told the Associated Press.

Texas Mob Drags Body Of Attacker in Streets

Beaumont, Tex., Dec. 7 (AP)—The body of David Gregory, Negro, slain in resisting arrest on a charge of slaying a white woman, was taken from Sheriff Miles Jordan by a mob of 300 men in Kountze, Tex., at 11:30 tonight, tied to the back of a motorcar and dragged through the Negro section of the town.

Hints at Fiat Peril Through Congress

New York, Dec. 7 (AP). — The Roosevelt dollar was pronounced "the soundest money on the face of the globe now—or at any other time" by Hugh S. Johnson, head of the NRA, in an address tonight, which he called a message for "those who think."

"Don't let anybody do your thinking for you," he said in discussing critics of the Roosevelt Administration. He voiced a characteristically worded defense both of the NRA and the rest of the Roosevelt program in his speech to the National Association of Manufacturers. The speech was broadcast over a National Broadcasting Co. network.

He dwelt again on freedom of the press and said the recent charge of radio censorship "is a bugaboo out of the whole cloth."

Brings in Politics.

For the first time in answering criticism, Johnson brought in politics, saying:

"It may be merely a coincidence, but nevertheless a fact that, with few exceptions, most of the prominent newspapers that have been assailing the NRA are severely Republican in their sympathy."

"We could hardly expect that such journals as the Chicago Tribune, or the Chicago Daily News, whose affiliations and political allegiance have never wavered, could be very enthusiastic for a Democratic administration."

Preceding this, he had observed: "I am reluctant even to mention politics in connection with the matters we are discussing, but actually I think our Republican friends who are getting out campaign books assailing the Roosevelt policies have more logic and reason in their course than any of the other critics. They at least have a definite, tangible and understandable object."

The NRA chief urged the manufactures not to let the "bullion pundits who are now most vocal" or the "so-called captains of finance, who skinned the country alive by misnamed securities" do their thinking for them.

Asks "What Do They Offer?"

"What do those who criticize the President's monetary policy—on either side of the argument—propose? Would they have him go to a 100 per cent gold dollar? There is no doubt that the majority sentiment in the country and in Congress would instantly, on the opening of the next session, impose on him a fiat money law that would wreck our economic system.

"Do they now propose a specific

Copeland Bill Foes Protest Food Powers

Czaristic Rights Vested in Cabinet Member, Avers Witness.

Declaring that under the Copeland food and drugs bill "citizens can not have what they want, but only what the Secretary of Agriculture thinks good for them," opponents of the measure opened fire late yesterday at hearings before the Senate Committee on Commerce.

Flanked by jars, bottles and boxes of patent medicines, castor oil and face powder, the committee heard the bill indorsed by Secretary Wallace and Walter G. Campbell, chief of the Food and Drugs Administration, and then vigorously attacked by spokesmen for the National Drug Trade Conference.

The charge that the bill, written by Prof. Rexford G. Tugwell and designed to strengthen and modernize the existing act, "changes the basic theory of the law" and "constitutes a dangerous innovation in placing unlimited power in the hands of an executive," was made by Dr. J. H. Beal, of Florida, chairman of a committee of drug trade officials.

"Oversight Pointed Out."

Mixing genial ridicule with the logic of the pharmaceutian, Dr. Beal brought out what he characterized as numerous "oversights" in what he said was all too obviously a "professor's bill."

"We chased Prof. Tugwell around Washington for weeks, trying to help in the writing of this measure," the National Drug Trade Conference spokesman said. "But we never caught up with him."

The chief objection raised by the drug trade, said Dr. Beal, was to "the enormous power it confers upon the Secretary of Agriculture." The Copeland bill, he complained, "leaves great gaps to be filled in by bureau definitions."

"Manufacturers," Dr. Beal said, "will be governed, not by laws, but by regulations of the Secretary, which may change from day to day."

Prof. Tugwell's bill means annulment of a vast amount of Federal regulation and will necessitate new legislation which will keep the drug trade in a turmoil for 5 or 10 years, he added.

Drugs Defined Widely.

Raising detailed objection, Dr. Beal pointed out that under the term "drug" is included "all devices intended to affect the structure of the body of man or other animals."

"This means eyeglasses, tooth brushes, check reins for horses and dog muzzles," he suggested, while the audience and several hundred men and women, representing manufacturers, advertising agencies and civic organizations enjoyed one of the few laughs of the hearing.

Interrupted by adjournment shortly after 6 p. m., Dr. Beal complimented Prof. Tugwell on the "beautiful language" of the bill, but added that, unfortunately, it was highly ambiguous.

The hearings, which may prove lengthy, opened with a statement by Secretary Wallace, who said need for broader and stricter legislation has been brought about by increased traffic in foods and drugs, development of cosmetics, and "totally new food constituents and important nutrition elements, such as vitamins." He outlined the proposed changes in the present 27-year-old law.

Food and Drugs Administrator Campbell, with the aid of X-ray photographs of the human stomach and an assortment of bottles, labels, cans and advertising exhibits, then presented the Department of Agriculture's plea for the measure, section by section.

Advertising Penalties Severe.

Dealing with the section devoted to false advertising, over which many manufacturers have expressed alarm, Judge Campbell said:

"We anticipated opposition to this section, but we are determined to prevent exploitation of the public and the advertising of worthless goods. It is no use to restrict the claims on labels, as under the present act, and not extend the restriction to advertising."

He characterized as "extreme" predictions that many manufacturers would withhold advertisements through fear of having them held false by inference or through ambiguity—an offense for which Prof. Tugwell's measure imposes heavy penalties of fines and imprisonment.

Anticipating opposition to the power given the Secretary of Agriculture under the new bill, Judge Campbell sought to minimize this point, saying it "seemed better, instead of having innumerable determinations of the law, to make provision for current determination by a single authority, in these days of shifting policies."

The sentence in the Copeland bill which had drawn the most opposition read: "The findings of fact by the Secretary shall be conclusive if in accordance with law."

Judge Campbell agreed to amend this to read: "In formulating regulations, findings of fact, &c."

He concluded by describing the bill as "a debt to the American public, long overdue."

Three college professors, Landell Henderson, of Yale; Allen Freeman, of Johns Hopkins, and Haven Emerson, of Columbia, besides a representative of the American Federation of Labor, indorsed the bill.

Shipping Board Gives 60-Day Reappointments

All the 88 employes of the U. S. Shipping Board whose temporary appointments expired yesterday were reappointed for 60 days, it was announced by the Department of Commerce.

The board was merged with the department last summer. The employes, who were automatically dropped by the consolidation, were rehired on temporary appointments.

There were originally 92 of these, but four have been transferred to other agencies. Pending the permanent appointment of employes to be retained indefinitely, none of them will be allowed annual leave. Leave provisions apply only to permanent appointees.

Testifying on Food and Drugs Bill

cut in gold content, and, if so, what cut? Nobody knows. One might as well flip a coin and the President doesn't happen to be a coin-flipper.

"The depreciationists say that prices vary with the price of gold. They can't prove it. They believe it. Well, the President is giving that theory as careful and complete a test as was ever conceived.

"But the test he has invented keeps everything in his own control. It preserves the credit of the United States. By buying gold he increases the gold reserve in our vaults and—if gold coverage is an index of the soundness of a currency—he increases that coverage and fortifies that soundness.

Cites Trade Policies.

"He makes exports easier and imports harder so that, if a favorable balance of trade be a criterion of Federal credit—he enhances it. While—against the terrors of a fifth hard winter—he is spending billions as we would spend them in a war, he is balancing the normal budget and covering emergency spending with income sufficient for interest and amortization of the debt for relief.

"In other words, from every measure of currency value—gold coverage, favorable trade balance, balanced budget—the Roosevelt dollar is the soundest money on the face of the globe now—or at any other time.

"The country is conducting a monetary experiment, but it did not throw away body, soul and breeches to do it, as it would have done if it had gone headlong to the printing presses—either on the urging of the greenbackers or on a Congressional rebound from the insistence of the inflexible '100 gold centers.'"

Johnson added that the President "is giving the inflationist theory an absolute test, but he is doing it without jumping into an unmeasured abyss, and he should have the support of every prudent man in doing it.

"President Roosevelt came in with a comprehensive plan. If that plan works; if his Administration is a success, they (the Republicans) will be left wandering in the Sinai wilderness for 40 years. The only hope of the opposition party is to make the Roosevelt Administration a failure. Will you let this outfit do your thinking for you?"

"The politicians," he went on, "naturally lead us to the newspapers."

After enumerating critical papers, he remarked:

"I don't know that I have any quarrel with them for their activities. After all, a newspaper is a good deal like any other business and its opinions, even though the editorial 'we' is employed in their expression, is the view of the individual who owns it."

He said none of the assailing papers had shown just how the alleged "attempt to institute a press censorship" could be carried out by an executive department with Congress and the Supreme Court sitting over it. He noted newspaper insistence upon a code declaration of freedom of the press, saying:

Holds It Unnecessary.

"We have regarded this as superfluous, but the newspapers so eagerly asked for it that I don't know why it should be denied — it has about as much meaning as 'eeny-meeny-miney-mo.'"

Johnson listed as indications of Administration accomplishments: also expected. If profits aggregate $100,000 the reduction will be ap- American Federation of Labor figures that 4,000,000 were working; codes operating; steel industry asking code renewal; textile industry reporting doubled pay rolls; mills prospering; contiguous communities sharing in the benefits; New York department stores reporting addition of six to seven thousand workers, and pay roll of $7,000,000; two mail order houses with business $8,500,000 above October last year.

Johnson recalled that he himself used to be a member of the Illinois Manufacturers Association and said that since those days "we have all learned a lot."

He recounted in detail the critical labor of writing the coal code, noting: "I have seen men get so sore at each other they could commit mayhem sometimes just because they got tired of seeing the same face, saying the same things, day after day, week after week, and occasionally month after month."

He urged his listeners to go to the men who sat on those conferences and ask if "anybody tried to put them in a straitjacket, or was dictatorial or impatient or unfair. Ask them whether they would give up the coal code. Ask them how much Government has interfered with their business, and whether they have self-government.

"This administration has not imposed one single code. It has never delivered an ultimatum. Every code came by agreement."

Without mentioning him by name, Johnson referred to a recent article by Assistant Secretary Tugwell of Agriculture which said, "* * * It might be better if the Government originated the proposal for each industry * * *."

"The only trouble with that," said Johnson, "is that it would be a violation of the law * * * which requires that industries offer codes."

He emphatically asserted that NRA and President Roosevelt were committed to the principle of industrial self-government.

"I have been criticized for harshness," he went on. "I have not been harsh to the willing cooperators. I admit harshness to chiselers. I think that is the very essence of our chance for success.

Charges Libel.

"An article in a recent issue of a rabidly opposing Chicago paper, by the aid of two outright libels and a score of misstatements of fact, sought to create a contrary picture about myself—a blustering, roaring, fist-banging martinet. No man can appraise himself, and I would not care except for its effect on the public reaction on NRA. I don't think I'm quite as loud as that."

Referring to Representative Beck (Republican), Pennsylvania, who recently criticized the NRA, Johnson said:

"'The Blue Eagle,' says he, 'is a symbol of economic bondage.' If it is, then the Ten Commandments are a symbol of social bondage and the Star of Bethlehem and the Golden Rule are stigmata of slavery."

At the end he came to labor questions, saying: "I know what distresses some of you—your fear of organized labor."

The law, he said, has to be carried out as it is written and "as a matter of fact, I can not see how industry being given not only the right but full governmental assistance for organization to the ultimate, can greatly object to the naked right of labor, without any assistance at all, to organize also."

He warned them that any "violent reactionary propaganda" would swing Congress into passing a tighter labor law, possibly a 30-hour-week law, and that "for any unreasoning attack on the codes you will get an unreasoning Congressional mandate."

"Rum Row" Threat.

Aroused at a threatened "rum row" on Rhode Island avenue, Mount Rainier residents gathered for a mass meeting in the Cameo Theater. A special session of the mayor and town council was called last night to suggest plans of action.

Authorities of Hyattsville, Riverdale, Mount Rainier and Laurel requested that no license application be considered until public sentiment had been sounded. The county board, however, has been asked to issue licenses in sections from which no protests have been received.

A total of 29 applications have already been received for off-sale and on-sale permits. Approval of applications has become more complicated than at first expected, leaders pointed out.

Residents of Hyattsville will be given a chance to voice sentiments on the question tonight. The town council will meet at 8 p. m.

List of Applicants.

Requests for on-sale licenses have been received from Joseph A. Moran, restaurant, Colmar Manor; Frank Stoffl, hotel, Oakland; Philip H. Banville, barbecue stand, Bladensburg; Emil C. Stamm, Maryland Garden Club, Marlboro pike; Bessie Kans, Capitol Heights; Mrs. Sadie E. Stanton, Bladensburg; Hugh M. Waldrop, Dixie Pig barbecue, Bladensburg; John L. Dade, Forestville Inn, and Mary J. Gafford, Bladensburg.

Cummings Says Only Old Offenders Will Feel Full Penalties.

As Attorney General Homer S. Cummings announced the Government's intention to deal leniently with "prohibition prisoners," the new Federal Alcohol Control Administration yesterday continued its efforts to ease the flow of legal liquor and thus drown out the bootlegger.

Cummings pledged protection to dry States, to the best of the Justice Department's ability, but foresaw this as a problem depending largely on Congressional appropriations for an adequate enforcement unit.

A grant of only $4,000,000 was given for prohibition enforcement by the last Congress, he pointed out, and the next allotment probably will be smaller. On the basis of a halved maintenance, about 700 men would have to safeguard 28 dry States, he said.

He announced that 3,764 persons are now in jail for prohibition offenses, and that the end of the dry era found the Government with 2,219 pending cases, of which 500 represent violations of the now-dead law. Those who have served time, he said, will receive more leniency than offenders out on bond.

"The general attitude toward first offenders, those who previously had good character and who probably will not offend again, will be extremely lenient," he said. "Some may turn out to be legitimate cases for adjustment by the Revenue Department.

Crime Problem Remains.

"As to racketeers and persistent offenders, however, especially those criminal minded and those with bad records, each case will be governed by its circumstances. Essential justice is the question."

Declaring he did not believe repeal would solve the crime problem "except in a minor degree," the Attorney General went on to say he anticipated possibly 10,000 new cases concerned with violation of internal revenue laws in the coming year.

Concerning the protection of dry States, Mr. Cummings said agents would be stationed "where needed," which might well be in wet States serving as a source for smuggling. The department, he explained, will take up the problem cautiously, adding, "States really wanting to be dry will have all the cooperation we can give, but they must cooperate with us."

He turned from his discussion of repeal problems at his press conference to add his condemnation to the recent wave of lynchings, which he termed "a very distressing thing with no possible excuse"

"They are injurious," he said, "to the cause of law enforcement. They are reprehensible, intolerable, and so inexcusable that it is difficult for me to speak about them in a parliamentary fashion."

Import Figures Secret.

Meanwhile, the State Department continued to receive foreign diplomats, anxious to obtain information as to the liquor import quotas allowed their countries, the Associated Press reported. But the figures worked out by Joseph H. Choate, jr., chairman of the F. A. C. A., and Ray C. Miller, of the Agriculture Department, were still kept secret, except for minimum quotas announced by the Tariff Commission.

The marketing agreement for distillers, now under a temporary contract, will be presented for their signature Saturday, the Agricultural Adjustment Administration announced. In final form the agreement provides that distillers may use products other than grain for 10 per cent for their needs, whereas the first draft allowed unlimited use of existing stocks of nongrain products.

Thieves Get $35,000 From Film Head

Rapf's Home Is Robbed of Jewels, Furs.

Los Angeles, Dec. 7 (AP).—Jewels and furs valued at $35,000 were stolen tonight, police were informed, from the residence of Harry Rapf, film executive, while the family and servants were absent.

Detectives John Rasmussen and Harry Stromwell said that almost everything of value had been removed, but the intruders failed to find a number of valuable watches.

Rapf discovered the robbery upon return from visiting friends.

Distant Roads Watched For D. C. Mail Bandits

Highways and trails as far as North Carolina and Pennsylvania were being watched for the two armed bandits and four accomplices who Tuesday night shot Francis J. White, 57, of 2 I street northwest, a Terminal guard in the Union Station, and escaped with three mail pouches of revenue stamps.

Meanwhile White, who probably prevented them from getting valuable mail, is recovering from two pistol wounds in his thigh at Providence Hospital.

Glass Drops NRA Row as Dentist, Sculptor Await

(United Press.)

Senator Carter Glass (Democrat), Virginia, foe of the NRA, made this reply yesterday to questions about his plans toward President Roosevelt's recovery and monetary program at the coming session of Congress:

"I'm going back to my home in Lynchburg, Va., where a dentist is waiting to prepare me for life and a sculptor waits to prepare me for death."

Farm Office War Defies Roosevelt

the status quo can be continued long.

There was no doubt that the "officer of a coordinate arm of government" to whom Gen. Johnson referred was Prof. Tugwell, because at his morning press conference the recovery administrator named the Assistant Secretary of Agriculture as the author of an article contending the Government should propose codes. He added that the NRA had a "different method."

Gen. Johnson made this remark during an explanation that he did not believe the NRA would have any difficulty taking over the A. A. A. codes as ordered by the President Wednesday night. He said he believed the NRA could quickly solve the problems which have delayed making A. A. A. codes effective.

Attaches of the A. A. A. spent yesterday checking over approximately 455 codes which have been filed with that agency to determine which should be transferred to the NRA and which would remain under the jurisdiction of A. A. A. as first processors or handlers of foodstuffs. Of the codes filed during six months with A. A. A., only four have been approved by the President—one for the date packing industry and the other three for the distillers, brewers and liquor importers. These latter actually were handled by the President's interdepartmental committee.

Difference Deep-Seated.

Although the handling of A. A. A. codes was one point of the controversy between Mr. Peek and the brain trust, the quarrel goes further than that, as President Roosevelt found out yesterday when he realized that his plan to remove the bone of contention to another agency had not brought peace.

The situation in the Agricultural Department is that Mr. Peek and Secretary Wallace, the latter supported by the brain trust, differ on a fundamental issue which is regarded as of the utmost importance in framing the economic structure of the Nation.

Mr. Peek has believed that greater effort should be spent on creating markets to fit the farmer's production than on reducing his production to fit the domestic demand. It is his view that acreage reduction can only be a temporary solution of the farm problem; that in the end, outlets must be found for the produce of the agricultural population.

With this thought in mind, Mr. Peek has put the emphasis on the framing of marketing agreements to obtain for the farmer a price more in line with his costs. He has favored the use of codes to get a preferred position and the best possible price for the farmer. Long an advocate of the McNary-Haugen equalization fee plan, Mr. Peek favors the promotion of an agricultural export trade.

Secretary Wallace, on the other hand, believes it is futile to permit farmers to produce for "a foreign market which no longer exists." He favors adopting a middle course between nationalism and internationalism, but believes that until the United States reduces its tariffs in order to permit two-way trade, the farmer should forget about the foreign market and adjust his production to domestic needs.

Opposes Loans Abroad.

Until tariffs are adjusted downward, he has maintained, the only way the farmer can sell abroad is for this country to lend other nations the money with which to buy American exports. It is his opinion that this is a disastrous procedure and he has confessed that he has such strong feelings on this question it was his reason for leaving the Republican party.

Efforts to reconcile the Peek and Wallace viewpoints have not been successful—if they can be. The "brain trust" has supported Mr. Wallace and, adding flame to the bitterness which exists, one of their number yesterday recited a list of charges against Mr. Peek.

This member of the "brain trust," who has figured prominently in the controversy, maintained that Mr. Peek has been reluctant to accept Mr. Wallace as his superior. This official pointed out that the farm act makes no mention of an "administrator" and lodges all its powers in the Secretary of Agriculture.

Mr. Peek has delayed the cotton, wheat and corn-hog reduction programs by raising objections to such an extent that these programs have been jeopardized, this "young liberal" argued. On the other hand, he added, by creating red tape, Mr. Peek has delayed adoption of the codes and marketing agreements which he seems to favor.

On behalf of Mr. Peek it was contended that the codes, agreements and the acreage-reduction programs have been delayed because the "brain trust" insisted on inserting into them "wild and half-baked" ideas. It also is contended that all Mr. Peek has desired is a free hand, such as that given Gen. Johnson, to push his programs without interference from the "young liberals" pressing their pet theories for the regimentation of the Nation under the control of the Government.

Duce's Threat Spurs League Crisis Abroad

Reorganization Rumors Continue; Henderson Frankly Gloomy.

Geneva, Dec. 7 (AP).—Reports that a European political conference may be convoked to consider disarmament and reorganization of the League of Nations reached Geneva tonight, but were not confirmed.

A league spokesman said the universal interest aroused by the Italian demand, made yesterday, that the league be readopted to a changing world proves the League of Nations is not dead but is very much alive.

The league was described as welcoming any and all suggestions for reorganization as long as they came in concrete form. The league's desire to have all nations, including the United States, Russia and Germany as members, was reiterated.

The spokesman denied the league perpetuates the Treaty of Versailles, which ended the World War. On the contrary, he said, Article 19 of the League Covenant empowers the assembly to advise reconsideration of treaties and Article 26 authorizes amendments to the covenant.

Seen at Crisis.

(The League of Nations was formed by the terms of the treaty of Versailles, and its covenant, or Constitution, was incorporated in the treaty itself. Germany has objected to the terms of the treaty and withdrawn two months ago from the league and the Disarmament Conference, claiming she was being discriminated against.)

The German gesture was followed by an Italian threat of league resignation. Observers believe the league, like the Disarmament Conference, is in a perilous position. Already the league had been weakened by the resignation of Japan.

Premier Mussolini of Italy, like Chancellor Hitler of Germany, has criticized the league as a futile institution, as conducted at present.

Avenol on Hurried Trip.

Joseph A. M. C. Avenol, secretary general of the League of Nations, made a hurried visit today to Lausanne to consult with Chairman Berenger of the Foreigns Relations Committee of the French Senate concerning French reaction to the Italian demand for reorganization of the league.

French circles in Geneva deemed the situation grave. They were represented as believing revision of the league covenant would lead inevitably to revision of the peace treaty and would result in removal of the principle of equality of all states, which is the basis of the League of Nations.

Italy Hears Rumors.

Rome, Dec. 7 (AP).—Diplomatic circles reported today that recommendations will probably be made in the near future to Premier Mussolini asking him to prepare and present a definite program for the reform of the League of Nations.

It was expected here that the representations would come from the British foreign office.

The request, it was explained, would be a result of Mussolini's declarations concerning the league made at the meeting of the Fascist Grand Council Tuesday night.

France Still Loyal.

Paris, Dec. 7 (AP).—Neither Premier Mussolini's attack on the League of Nations nor the rumored preparation by Chancellor Hitler of a five-point plan for Franco-German friendship had succeeded tonight in shaking France's faith in the league and her determination to protect her rights.

A government spokesman said the league was certain to remain a democratic institution, but that France is willing to listen to any suggestion for a procedure of simplification.

France Queries Britain.

(Copyright, 1933, by the United Press.)

Paris, Dec. 7 (U.P.).—France has asked Great Britain to restate its attitude on the general question of armaments, particularly with reference to Germany, the United Press learned on reliable authority tonight.

Informal representations through the French Embassy in London have been made to discover whether the British disarmament position has changed since the joint Franco-Anglo-American formula for arms control, agreed to here October 14.

Arthur Henderson, of Britain, chairman of the Geneva Arms Conference, left for London today after lengthy arms conversations here.

Henderson Is Worried.

London, Dec. 7 (U.P.).—Arthur Henderson, arriving from Paris tonight, expressed grave fears for the success of the Geneva arms parley and the world's peace machinery. He said he expected to remain in Great Britain until the conference resumes, late in January.

French Cabinet Calls for Halt Of Gold Drain

Demands Balanced Budget on Threat of Going Off Standard.

Paris, Dec. 7 (U.P.).—With its tremendous gold reserve flowing swiftly abroad, the French government faced the Chamber of Deputies today with demands that the 1934 budget be balanced to halt the drain which threatens to push France off the gold standard.

Finance Minister Georges Bonnet vigorously defended the gold franc against the world attack to jar it loose from its present stability. He declared, however, that the situation only could be saved if the 6,000,000,000 franc deficit (about $361,000,000 at current exchange) be met in the budget, which came up for debate today.

Bonnet warned the Chamber that overthrow of another government on this delicate issue would destroy world confidence in the franc and revive the inflation dangers of 1925-26, when internal confidence likewise was undermined and the franc finally stabilized at 4 cents, instead of around 20, par before that crash.

Loss Continues 13 Weeks.

His speech came simultaneously with the weekly statement of the Bank of France, showing the thirteenth successive loss of gold reserves. The gold which was withdrawn during the week was worth 429,806,676 francs, leaving a total of 77,372,612,848 francs in the vaults beneath the River Seine.

The statement showed that in the last 13 weeks this steady drain has taken over 5,250,000,000 francs in gold out of the vaults.

The ability of the Bank of France to weather this serious drain depends largely on whether the new government of Premier Chautemps can win the chamber over to its program for balancing the budget—an issue which has overthrown two governments in recent weeks.

Bonnet told the deputies that fresh unrest would be certain to follow if a new crisis is precipitated and pessimistic reports continue to emanate that France will not be able to balance her budget.

Issues Defense Warning.

"I give categorical declaration that this government will not allow attempts against the nation's money," Bonnet warned.

He traced the gold flow, and said United States purchases under the Roosevelt purchasing plan had entirely ceased.

"The American purchases of gold totaled only $10,000,000," he said, "and now have stopped. United States capital is migrating heavily, with the result that dollars are being converted into pounds. The Bank of England has received so much of this flood of money that it has been forced to sell sterling, buying francs, which it has transferred into gold. Half the gold which has left since October 20, totaling over 4,000,000,000 francs, has gone to the Bank of England."

Herriot Opposes Talks With Hitler

Some Deputies, However, Favor Direct Move.

Paris, Dec. 6 (AP).—Direct talks by France with Chancellor Hitler of Germany were favored by a portion of the foreign affairs committee of the Chamber of Deputies today. A vote will be taken later.

Former Premier Edouard Herriot, president of the committee, opposed the direct talks in favor of working through the League of Nations.

Chinese Music Recital By J. H. Levis Today

Continuing his exposition of ancient and contemporary Chinese music, John Hazedel Levis will give a second lecture-recital this afternoon at 4:45 o'clock in the Wardman Park Theater. His program will include in the first part songs dating from the T'ang dynasty (618-907 A. D.) and the Ming dynasty (1368-1644), and pianoforte compositions by Mr. Levis illustrating the tone patterns and rhythms of the old art.

The second part of the program will be devoted to Chinese music of today, songs from the different provinces, musical cries of street vendors, excerpts from wedding and funeral music, and examples of romantic lyricism. Mr. Levis uses native instruments, such as the So-Na (oboe), Yang-Chin (dulcimer), Ti-Tze (flute) and Erh-Hu (two-stringed violin).

Cilff Dwellers Life Lecture Subject Here

Mysterious cliff dwellers who built vast communal buildings, cultivated fields, irrigated lands and made pottery before Columbus discovered America, will be the subject of an illustrated lecture by Paul R. Budget Group Would Extend Pay Cut Right

5% Restoration Foreseen by Appropriations Committeemen.

A new economy bill, extending the President's power to raise or lower the pay of Government employes within a 15 per cent range for another fiscal year and carrying other features of the present economy act, will be submitted to Congress by the Budget Bureau. This executive authority expires June 30 next.

Lacking extension of his authority, pay rates appropriated at the January session would hold for an entire fiscal year.

It was learned from an authoritative source the Budget Bureau and the House Appropriations Committee has no intention at present of allowing this power to lapse.

Rests With President.

Any action the House Appropriations Committee takes on 1935 budget estimates and proposed new economy provisions will in no way affect the amount of the cut for the next six months. This must be determined by a Presidential proclamation based on cost of living research.

Members of the House Appropriations Committee generally believe the proclamation will call for restoration of 5 per cent of the 15 per cent slash, and the Budget Bureau similarly is allowing the identical percentage in its 1935 estimates.

Whether the Independent Offices subcommittee allows for full salary payment, or makes the 10 per cent salary reduction recommended by the Budget Bureau, in making up the first supply bill Monday, will not materially affect the situation, members said last night. If full salary restoration is warranted by continued increases in the cost of living by the time the appropriations go into effect next July, the needed funds could be made up in deficiency appropriations, it was said.

Advantage Pointed Out.

One influential member of the committee pointed out it might be to the employes' advantage to have the pay cut limited to 10 per cent in the 1935 appropriations, as planned.

In the event prices went down, the President then would have authority only to cut pay within a 10 per cent range, instead of the present 15, this member observed.

On the other hand, if the Administration is successful in its drive to force prices up to 1928 levels, the law would require the President to restore all salaries 100 per cent.

James Joyce Hails "Ulysses" Victory

Author's Friends Hope It Will Lift His Income.

Paris, Dec. 7 (AP).—James Joyce, Irish author, rejoiced today in the lifting of the American ban on his book "Ulysses."

Joyce, who continues to write although he is nearly blind, happily telephoned friends the news of Federal Judge John M. Woolsey's decision at New York last night holding that the prose epic is not "obscene."

Friends said that Joyce, faced with a dangerous operation on his right eye, hoped the American decision would increase his income, which never has been large.

Costly Meal

Panhandler Jailed When He Spurns Food.

A panhandler went to jail when he failed to eat a meal purchased by a policeman.

Park Policeman A. D. Cook testified yesterday that while out of uniform he was approached on Ninth street northwest by Samuel E. Etheridge, of Macon, Ga.

"Please, mister, can you give me the price of a meal; I haven't eaten for 48 hours," said Etheridge.

Cook said he smelled liquor on the man.

"I'll buy you a good meal," said Cook.

Who's Who

Capital Social Register Keeps Longs Name.

The social prestige of Senator Huey P. Long is intact, whatever his reputation as a pugilist or political leader may have suffered.

Omitted, however, are Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, Recovery Administrator; George N. Peek, A. A. A. Administrator; Harry L. Hopkins, head of the Civil Works and Federal relief programs, and Prof. George F. Warren, principal monetary adviser to President Roosevelt.

Also among the missing are such officially elect as Senator Kenneth McKellar of Tennessee, who was listed last year, and Senators La Follette of Wisconsin, Ashurst of Arizona, and Neely of West Virginia; the three Presidential secretaries and House Republican leader Bertrand Snell.

Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins is listed both as Miss Perkins and Mrs. Paul C. Wilson.

Lindberghs Will Be Home By Christmas

Colonel Tunes Up Plane; Couple May Leave Brazil Today.

Natal, Brazil, Dec. 7 (AP).—Anne Morrow Lindbergh revealed tonight that she and Col. Lindbergh plan to return to the United States by way of the northwest coast of Brazil in time to be home for Christmas.

In conversation with women acquaintances in Natal she said they planned to fly northward by way of Para (Belem), Brazil, and reach New York and home in time to spend the holidays with their small son.

Col. Lindbergh had the big red monoplane in which they flew the South Atlantic from Bathhurst, West Africa, ready for a take off, and their departure tomorrow was expected.

The route via Para is the regular path of the Pan-American Airways for which Lindbergh is technical adviser and for which he and Mrs. Lindbergh have spent the last five months on an aerial survey of the Atlantic.

It was apparent at nightfall the Lindbergh plane was ready to take off at any time. Both Lindberghs arose early, at the home of British Consul Scotchbrook, where they spent the night, ate breakfast and left the house; the colonel to work on his ship and Mrs. Lindbergh to go sightseeing with Mrs. Scotchbrook.

Lindbergh discovered the left wing of the plane was slightly damaged, and effected repairs. He tuned up its motor, loaded it with 225 gallons of gasoline and filled the oil tanks. At noon he joined Mrs. Lindbergh at the residence of Mario Camara, the government interventor (official representative), where they had lunch.

The colonel and Senor Camara talked of aviation. Mrs. Lindbergh and Senhora Camara talked of domestic matters, and Mrs. Lindbergh told her she hoped to return to the United States soon.

The colonel eulogized the climatic conditions about Natal and characterized the State of Rio Grande do Norte, of which Natal is the capital, as "the best south transatlantic aviation base because of its even climate and favorable winds."

Man Arrested Here in Virginia 1926 Slaying

Faces Prince William Trial as Killer of Woman in Liquor Feud.

Major Montgomery, 42, a contractor, of 1439 W street northwest, yesterday was held at the Third Precinct station awaiting return to Prince William County, Va., to face charges of slaying Mrs. Minnie Keyes in 1926.

Montgomery was arrested yesterday on information from Independent Hill, Va. Mrs. Keyes was fatally shot six years ago as she answered a knock at her door in Dunfries, Va.

Prince William authorities say the shooting climaxed a liquor feud between Keyes and enemies, and that the fatal shot was apparently intended for Keyes.

Montgomery is expected to be returned to Prince William County at once. Two other men are sought in the slaying.

Gifts to Dewey To Be Included In Estate Sale

Historic Furniture Pieces Will Be Auctioned Next Week.

The last of the possessions of the late Admiral George Dewey will be sold at auction next week, just 35 years after America, amid a frenzied wave of hero worship, welcomed back the victor of the Battle of Manila Bay.

In the collection, on display at C. G. Sloan & Co., 715 Thirteenth street northwest, are household furniture, pictures, silver, china and glassware from the Dewey home. A few of the pieces have been identified as some of the thousands of gifts showered on the admiral. However, the history of most of the pieces, many of them not obviously ordinary household possessions, has been lost.

Among the things that have been identified as having been among the historical possessions of the admiral, are four red laquered tea tables, the gift of the Emperor of Japan. There is a large quantity of china bearing the White House crest, but those in charge of the auction room do not know how it came into Dewey's possession.

Included in the sale also is a jardiniere and stand of hugh proportions, presented by the people of Wheeling, W. Va., and an engraved whisky bottle sent to Dewey by the town of Paducah, Ky. Spread out on a table is a wine set of engraved and gilt glass containing 160 pieces.

Among the pictures is an oil painting of Dewey standing on the bridge of the Olympic at the Battle of Manilla Bay. The picture is the work of R. F. Zogbaum. Also among the pictures are a number of prints of birds. In glass cases are delicate fans, the collection of Mrs. Dewey.

The Dewey possessions are being sold to settle the estate of Mildred McLean Dewey, widow of the admiral. They were taken from the abandoned Dewey home at Sixteenth and K streets northwest.

Chest Leaders Continue Work As Drive Ends

Only 77 Per Cent of Quota Raised on Final Day; Solicitors Stay.

The 1934 Community Chest campaign ended officially yesterday at the final report luncheon at the New Willard with the 6,000 workers undaunted by the fact that $452,802.95, or 23 per cent of its quota, had not yet been raised.

To the last minute the workers fought to go over the top with their teams and units, and even when it was seen that the goal could not be reached yesterday they pledged themselves to continue unofficial campaigning until the last penny set for the minimum amount that would sustain the 60 welfare agencies in the Chest for 1934 had been raised.

On the huge Chest calendar nearly a hundred big bad wolves remained in mute defiance to the campaigners, meaning in terms of support that the Community Chest contains at present only $1,492,432.28, in contrast to the $1,945,235.93 needed to insure proper support of Washington welfare organizations during the coming year.

The governmental unit, headed by Col. U. S. Grant 3d, had only 61 per cent of its quota when the campaign closed, but Col. Grant, true to Army traditions, promised efforts would not cease and that his unit would "attack again," adding:

"We propose to fight it out along this line if it takes all winter."

The governmental unit reported yesterday 3,686 new givers with a total of $19,707.86, while Maj. Daniel O'Donovan, of the District government, reported that the municipal employes had gone over their quota, and he turned in yesterday $12,859.01.

Commissioner Melvin Hazen, speaking at the luncheon for the District government, heartily indorsed the Community Chest, which he called "one of the greatest institutions of the city, well managed and run," adding that "it was not the fault of the Community Chest workers that it had not gone over the top, but because of the times."

The units reported yesterday as follows: Special Gifts Unit, 28 gifts, $14,414 in cash, with the 92.2 per cent of its quota in hand; Group Solicitation Unit, 2,552 givers, $10,986.71, or 95.6 per cent of its quota; Metropolitan Unit, 710 givers, with a total of $8,417.95 turned in yesterday, making its entire collections 83.6 per cent of its quota.

It was announced that the entire Community Chest community campaign to date had netted 77 per cent of its quota. The total number of givers to date are 109,392 persons.

Mrs. Cabot Stevens announced that Miss Grace Moore, the opera singer, who sang at the mass meeting of the Woman's Crusade, has sent an autographed letter which would be given to the woman worker in the Governmental Unit who brings in the largest number of pledges.

At the suggestion of Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, a Public Relations Council of the Community Chest has been formed to keep alive the interest in the chest the year around. It will hold its first meeting December 12.

The luncheon concluded with votes of thanks to Frank J. Hogan, general chairman of the chest, and other officials. Newbold Noyes, president of the Washington Community Chest, declared the entire community owes a debt of gratitude to Mr. Hogan for his labors for the chest.

Quezon Maps Independence Bill Revision

Commission of Filipinos Arrives; Dern Meets Leader Tomorrow.

Modification of the Hawes-Cutting bill or passage of a new Philippine independence bill will be sought in Congress, Manuel Quezon, president of the Philippine Senate, and head of the independence commission of the islands, said on arrival of the commission in Washington yesterday.

Quezon will confer with Secretary Dern tomorrow. Dern said the next move for Philippine independence is up to the Philippine leaders themselves. He said that the Administration had formulated no plans, so far as he knew, for reopening the independence question.

Quezon praised Frank Murphy, the new Governor of the Philippines.

"Mr. Murphy was received very well by both the Filipinos and the Americans there," he said. "He is doing excellent work. Through his inspiration, the budget will be balanced this year. He is rapidly gaining a splendid understanding of our many problems."

Quezon said that Gen. Emilio Aguinaldo, famous revolutionary leader, Quintin Paredes, speaker of the House Representatives, and other delegates will arrive in Washington in February to join the mission. He expects that the delegation work will be completed here in time for return of the delegation to the Philippines in July, when the Legislature of the islands convenes.

Indian Who Worshiped Flier Gags at Movies—They Can't Be

By James H. Street.

New York, Dec. 7 (AP).—The Little Shepherd of Costa Rica has returned to his tribal hills, convinced that all men are liars.

He's an Indian boy of 12, a prince among his people—far wiser than the patriarchs of his nomadic tribesmen who have hidden in the Costa Rican Mountains since Cortez drove them from home and plundered the civilization of a vanishing race.

The boy's story came here in a routine report to headquarters of Pan-American Airways.

Every day at 11 a. m. and 4 p. m., Rab Sullivan, a big Irish flier, took his plane over the mountains, never realizing the flights were spreading terror and wonder among the hill tribes. The Indians still believed the world was flat.

They hid in holes when the plane first came over and it was days before they ventured out to study it. The wise men held a conference.

"It's a bird," said one.

Another contended it was a machine that shuttled over the flat earth on a cable, "seeing all, knowing all." This was accepted.

Then all the tribe was happy except the 12-year-old shepherd, who studied the "thunderbird" while his herds grazed. He announced his departure to San Jose to seek knowledge of the strange thing.

At San Jose, he learned the thing was a machine and that a man flew in it. So he sought out the man and plied Sullivan with questions.

"Indeed," the lad told him, "you are the fortunate one. You fly to the stars. You are the great wise man my people sing of."

The pilot told him stories of other countries and other people. The boy's brown, beady eyes never left Sullivan's face.

Then one evening Sullivan told the lad to "come with me into town and I'll show you pictures that move and talk."

The boy's eyes grew sad. He backed away from Sullivan—a gasp of horror on his face.

"No," the boy said. "No, you are not the great wise man. I was wrong. The wise man wouldn't lie. You can't expect me to believe everything."

He fled. Out through the Indian villages he ran, then away to the slopes where his herd and kinsmen awaited him.

Some little heart will be made happy Christmas morning with these three French dollies. They were presented to The Post Toy and Doll Fund by "Germaine," the little French girl who sings songs of her native land over the radio.

"Germaine" Helps Santa; Crowd to Aid at Puppet Show Tomorrow.

Three little French girl dolls, gay as Christmas time in their bright red satin skirts and black velvet-fitted corsages, joined the array of dolls at The Washington Post Toy and Doll Fund headquarters in the Washington Building, at Fifteenth street and New York avenue northwest, yesterday.

They were the gift and the dresses the handiwork of "Germaine," the little French girl who sings French peasant songs and relates tales of her native France over the radio.

The dresses are replicas of the ones Germaine wears herself. The dolls have been named Germaine, Marie and Jacqueline.

A telephone call came into the headquarters of the Toy and Doll Fund yesterday morning from the four daughters of Senator and Mrs. James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania—Jane, Jean, Joan and Jewell—who were among the first to enlist in behalf of The Washington Post Toy and Doll Fund. The four "Js" will have an important announcement and a round sum of money to contribute to The Post Toy and Doll Fund at the party to be given at the Willard at 3:30 tomorrow.

They will tell how they evolved a Christmas enterprise which brought 10-cent pieces jingling into The Washington Post Toy and Doll Fund. Tomorrow they will point the way for other boys and girls to help the fund.

Marionette Show Tomorrow.

A record crowd of boys and girls, who may be accompanied by their parents, is expected at the Willard tomorrow afternoon. The only admission is a real interest in The Post Toy and Doll Fund, with some kind of a toy. Theodore Tiller, jr., will give a marionette show introducing some new Christmas features.

Encouraged by good reports of the last few days, The Post Toy and Doll Fund moved forward yesterday with the knowledge of all workers that it was only 18 days before Christmas.

Every possible gift of both toys and money must be obtained in that time if the 25,000 and more needy children in Washington are to be certain of a merry Christmas.

Neighbors of needy families where children are awaiting Christmas with hope in their young hearts, but where the families will be unable to provide toys, are sending in word to The Post Toy and Doll Fund of their need.

Where Santa Claus Is Idle.

Such a letter was received yesterday from one signing herself simply "A Neighbor." It read:

"I am writing to tell you of a case I know that is really sad and pitiful. I am only a neighbor, but I feel that I am doing the right thing in writing to you for aid for them, as they are the type of people who hate to ask for anything themselves. Please won't you give them some aid? He is or was a plumber, but he's been out of work for almost two years and has only begun to work one or two days a week now, and they have two little babies.

"So if you can possibly do it won't you try to let the little ones believe there is a Santa Claus and send a few toys. Their people are not fixed to help them."

The Post Toy and Doll Fund will see to it that these babies do know there is a Santa Claus this year.

New Orleans, Dec. 7 (AP).—Former Senator Edwin S. Broussard today addressed a letter to Senator M. M. NationalBanks' Asset Pledges Up for Ruling

Two Cases Involving Issue Are Argued Before Supreme Court.

(Associated Press.)

The question of the authority of National Banks to pledge assets to secure deposits was argued yesterday before the Supreme Court in two cases.

In one the Texas & Pacific Railway sought to set aside a decision holding the receiver of the First National Bank of El Paso was entitled to recover Federal bonds it had pledged as security for deposits made by the railroad.

In the other Marion, Ill., contended a decision returning to the City National Bank of Herrin, Ill., assets it had pledged for deposits by the city should be reversed.

Philippines Interested.

Counsel for the Philippine Islands participated in the argument of the latter case and Chicago filed a brief sustaining the position taken by the City of Marion, insisting it was in the interest of the public that deposits made in National banks by municipalities should be secured by the pledge of assets of those banks.

The Philippine Islands has on deposit in this country between $65,000,000 and $75,000,000 to maintain the stability of its currency. Her attorneys asserted people of the islands were entitled to the protection of having the deposits secured by bank assets.

U. S. Argued Sole Exception.

Counsel representing the Comptroller of the Currency argued that National banks are not permitted, under existing law, to pledge assets to secure any deposits except those made by the Federal Government under authorization by Congress.

Justice Brandeis said the Federal Government has the right to examine National banks and ascertain their stability before making deposits, and then requires pledging of assets.

Finland stands alone in this respect. It is the only country which has met all its obligations to date. The Finnish Minister said he had no instructions as to whether he should ask for a revision of the funding agreement.

Ford Agencies To Display New V-8 Tomorrow

1934 Models Embody List of Improvements, Makers Say.

Combining greater motor power with improved body lines, the new Ford V-8 for 1934 will be displayed in all Ford agencies in the United States tomorrow, Edsel B. Ford, president of the automobile concern bearing his name, announced yesterday.

In a statement to newspaper correspondents, Henry Ford and his son said the new model was built for more speed, smoother performance, more miles to a gallon of gasoline and quicker starting in cold weather.

A new built-in system of clear-vision body ventilation and refined body lines are claimed for the model. The company engineers said improvements in engine performance are the result of the use of a new dual down-draft carburetor and dual intake manifold which is said to increase the engine's power approximately 12 per cent and provide an improvement in pick-up.

"The new car is the best car the Ford Motor Co. ever built," the Ford president said. "Basically it is the same car as the hundreds of thousands of the other V-8 models on the road. It simply incorporates numerous improvements in engine and chassis design, new body ventilation and refinements in body styling."

A draft-free circulation of air is claimed for the model, which has a system of individually controlled window glass which provides both an intake and exit of air.

The principal changes in the lines of the car are the newly designed radiator shell and grille. The interior decorations also are said to be of an improved type.

Eleven body types will be made available, all of which will be equipped with safety glass windshields. The de luxe models will be fitted with safety glass throughout.

Ford Urges All to Work.

Detroit, Dec. 7 (AP).—In one of his rare addresses, Henry Ford today said to his automobile dealers:

"I think 1934 will be a very good year for everybody that works. This is the only way to get our country through this depression and to help our President. There is plenty of work, so we have all got to pitch in and get all the business we can."

Ford thus briefly addressed the dealers through an international telephone hookup from his Dearborn office. Edsel Ford also made an address, with other Ford officials.

Stern Acquires New York Post

Philadelphian Will Assume Editorialship on Monday.

New York, Dec. 7 (U.P.).—The New York Evening Post, founded in 1801 by Alexander Hamilton, has been purchased by J. David Stern, Philadelphia newspaper editor, it was announced tonight.

The Post, since 1923, had been one of the properties of the Curtis-Martin Co., owners of the Saturday Evening Post, the Philadelphia Public Ledger and the Philadelphia Inquirer.

Conservative in policy, the Post has now become the property of a man famous as a liberal progressive. Stern, at the age of 47, has created a name for himself as one of the Nation's most vigorous and dynamic editors.

Purchase of the Post is the first big newspaper transfer to occur since the Scripps-Howard organization bought the old World and combinded it with the Evening Telegram to make the World-Telegram. The other evening newspapers are the Sun and the Journal.

It was announced that the first issue of the Post under Stern's ownership would appear Monday and that the paper would abandon its recently assumed tabloid size. Stern said no changes were anticipated in the present personnel.

The Post is steeped in tradition. Its editors have included William Cullen Bryant, Carl Schurz, E. I. Godkin and Oswald Garrison Villard.

Single Traffic On 13th Street Is Under Study

Would Be Effective From Massachusetts to Kansas Avenues.

In an effort to speed Washington traffic, tentative plans for additional one-way streets were under consideration yesterday by District officials.

The plans, outlined by Melvin C. Hazen, District Commissioner; Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, and William A. Van Duzer, director of the Department of Vehicles and Traffic, propose to make Thirteenth street a one-way thoroughfare during morning and evening rush hours. The street would be restricted, from Massachusetts avenue to Kansas avenue, to southbound traffic between 8 and 9:30 a. m. and from 4 to 6 p. m., to northbound traffic.

Final action was postponed until the entire program can be reviewed by Mr. Van Duzer and members of the Traffic Advisory Council. A meeting is scheduled Tuesday.

Van Duzer has taken under study the question of extending the one-way traffic plan to other streets.

District employes are to be polled on the question of changing the beginning and end of the official work days. Commissioner Hazen has suggested beginning the day at 8:45 a. m., instead of 9 a. m., and ending it at 4:15 p. m, insteading of 4:30 p. m. How such a change would affect public transportation as well as flow of traffic of private automobiles will be considered in the light of information obtained from the employes, he said.

Meanwhile, the Highway Research Board of the National Research Council, meeting here, reported that of various traffic control systems, the traffic officer causes least delay.

Reporting on Washington traffic, the council said 200 vehicles per hour crossed a downtown intersection with least delay when the intersection was under no control. The two-hour peak caused as much delay as eight hours of normal traffic, the report stated.

Convicts Stage Revolt On Devils Island Ship

Algiers, Algeria, Dec. 7 (AP).—Two or three convicts aboard the convict ship La Martiniere, en route to the French prison colony (Devils Island) in Guiana, attempted a revolt against their guards on the passage between St. Martin de Re and Algiers, it was announced here tonight.

Reports that 40 prisoners had been killed in a general mutiny were denied. The rebellious prisoners were put in irons.

Four shareholders of the closed North Capitol Savings Bank were sued in District Supreme Court yesterday, charged with failing to pay 100 per cent stock assessments on their holdings. John S. Bryan, receiver, filed the suits, through the law firm of Hill, Ross & Hill.

C. Vernon Sparrow, 4339 Chesapeake street northwest, was sued for $1,500; George Clagett, 3711 Warren street northwest, $1,500; Patrick J. Ward, 1226 F street northeast, $9,060, and Elizabeth Holmes, 1848 Wyoming avenue northwest, $1,500 balance, she having paid $500 on an original assessment of $2,000.

Charles A. Coolidge Named to Arts Body

Charles Allerton Coolidge, prominent Boston architect, was appointed to the National Commission of Fine Arts yesterday by President Roosevelt. The announcement was made at the White House following the President's conference with Secretary Harold L. Ickes and Dr. Charles Moore, chairman of the commission.

The new member was architect for Leland-Stanford University, the new Harvard Medical School buildings, Chicago's public library and art institute, Merchants National Bank in Boston, and many other important structures. He succeeds John L. Mauran, who died several months ago.

Canal to Link 2 Bays Asked

Baltimore, Philadelphia Project Indorsed by Engineers.

The construction of a sea level ship canal connecting Delaware and Chesapeake Bays was recommended yesterday to the House Rivers and Harbors Committee by Maj. Gen. Edward M. Markham, chief of the Army Engineer Corps.

The estimated cost of the canal was put at $12,500,000, and it would require $200,000 annually for maintenance and operation, Gen. Markham reported.

This proposed channel would reduce the water distance for most ocean freighters from Philadelphia to Baltimore from more than 450 to about 100 miles.

The canal would extend from a point about 41 miles below Philadelphia across to the Elk River and thence to Chesapeake Bay.

It would accommodate vessels drawing 25 feet. The channel would be 27 feet deep and 250 feet wide to Elk River, where it would be 400 feet wide to deep water in Chesapeake Bay.

Ickes Receives Report on U. S. Building Needs

Johnson Submits Survey Mapping Expenditure of 14 Billions.

Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson yesterday announced he had forwarded to Public Works Administrator Ickes for consideration, reports of the NRA research and planning division setting forth how $14,000,000,000 could be spent in a building program to speed recovery.

Johnson stressed, however, that the reports were simply statistical analyses authorized under the recovery act and representing what the NRA felt should be done to revive capital goods industries.

A copyrighted United Press dispatch stated that one of the reports recommends establishment of a $2,000,000 fund for use in initiating a National real estate inventory.

Slum Clearance Aid Seen.

An inventory is necessary, the report states, to enable the Government "effectively and swiftly to put out the desired amount of money for the construction of socially useful low rental housing and for the initiation of properties which will aid our cities in clearing themselves of 'slums."

The report is the result of months of research by a group of experts retained by the NRA. It states that there is room for the construction of 800,000 residences annually for the next several years, that possibilities exist for nearly $14,000,000,000 in construction work, and that more than 4,000,000 workers could be reemployed in this field.

The first part of the proposed $2,000,000 fund would be assigned to Cleveland, New York, St. Louis and Philadelphia, where the work already is well advanced.

50 Cities to Be Added.

The second part of the proposed allotment would go to such cities as have conceived or initiated similar studies. Los Angeles, Detroit, Chicago, Denver and Toledo are named on this list.

After this the inventory would be expanded into 50 leading cities of the country.

The report listed advantages of the real property inventory as follows:

Absence of such information in the past has led to periods of alternate disaster and oversupply.

Data would be produced for the regular administration of real estate, irrespective of its use for the regulation of new construction.

Cheese-Sick Lad Talks Governor Into Job for Dad

Columbus, Ohio, Dec. 7 (U.P.).—Little Leonard Baker, of Cleveland, was so weary of a continuous cheese ration that he appealed to Gov. George White with this letter:

"Dear Governor: I read in a newspaper that you ask the people of Ohio to eat cheese this week to clean up 30,000,000 pounds of cheese.

"Well, Mr. White, I have been eating cheese for the last two years because we did not have with what to buy food and had to take the cheapest.

"Please give my father a job and I will eat cheese for the next four months, even though I am sick and tired of it."

Deeply impressed by the letter, Gov. White instructed C. W. A. officials to see that little Leonard's father gets a job at once.

Truckers Quit Carriers' Meet, Accusing Rails

Competitors Flaunt NRA, They Say in Open Outbreak.

The American Trucking Associations, Inc., yesterday withdrew as participants in deliberations of the National Transportation Conference, designed to coordinate the Nation's carriers for recovery efforts, charging rail delegates "were deliberately flaunting the national recovery act in their recommendations, failing to consider the activities of the trucking organization in formulating a code."

Representatives of the trucking organization had participated in the six meetings of the conference, but broke openly, it was announced, when they suggested the code for their industry be taken into consideration in the conference's recommendations for Federal legislation affecting highway transportation, only to be voted down.

Spokesmen of the truckers said that even though the railroads are not under the recovery act, they could not fail to consider the effect of the act on competitors subject to the code.

"No good end can be served by the participation of the trucking industry in a conference whose principal consideration is the problems of the rails," the truckers said.

An Astute Move.

The President's decision to transfer to the N. R. A. all codes under the jurisdiction of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, except those relating to the first processing of agricultural products, was an astute solution of one aspect of a most delicate problem.

Secretary Wallace, with a difficult and thankless job, found himself in a position where it was necessary to make a choice between opponents of opposing principles.

The group led by Jerome Frank, general counsel of the A. A. A., has advocated, with the support of Assistant Secretary Rexford G. Tugwell, embodiment into the codes of drastic price-fixing and Government control regulations. The group headed by George Peek, administrator for the A. A. A., has advocated less stringent regulations and preservation of a larger degree of business initiative and self-government.

The conflict of principles has resulted in almost a paralysis of the code work of the A. A. A. Although approximately 455 codes have been submitted and half that number have been approved by the agricultural administrator, resistance from the inside has been so strong that only four have been signed by the President and actually are in operation. They govern the distilling and date industries.

The situation reached a crisis when Mr. Peek is reported to have said that if Mr. Frank and his "young liberals" did not go, he would find it necessary to do so. Secretary Wallace laid the whole matter before the President, who solved it by removing the bone of contention from both warring factions within the A. A. A. and handing it over to the N. R. A. Only the codes "pertaining to the manufacturers engaged in the first processing of agricultural products and the handlers previous to the first processing" are left to the A. A. A., in addition to matters relating to processing taxes, acreage curtailment, and the like. Thus the basic principles of A. A. A. codes about which most of the controversy raged are to be determined by neither Mr. Peek nor Mr. Frank, but by Gen. Johnson.

Upon the face of it, the "young liberals" won a victory in having jurisdiction removed from Mr. Peek, but what actually happened was that Mr. Peek was sustained indirectly in his contention as to what should be embraced in codes. Those regulations which have been approved by the N. R. A. adhere much more closely to the principles for which Mr. Peek contends than to those for which Mr. Frank has stood.

Aside from any question of dividing honors, the President's decision serves the useful purpose of simplifying and coordinating the formulation and administration of codes.

Case of "Ulysses."

The United States has a customs censorship, which has prevented adults from reading some of the recognized literary masterpieces of ancient and modern times, while the children of many of our cities have easy access to vulgar and pornographic publications of the most debasing sort. The results of such illogical efforts to control the reading habits of the American people have been as perverse in their special way as the outcome of the attempt to impose temperance by resort to intolerant Federal legislation.

The ineptitude and futility of efforts at Federal censorship are due to a very large extent to the inability of untrained official censors of literary manners and morals to distinguish between license and legitimate freedom of expression. Federal Judge John Munro Woolsey has performed a real service, therefore, in undertaking to define the terms "pornographic" and "obscene" in a rational way that appeals to the understanding of the average man. The decision that afforded the opportunity for making these distinctions related specifically to James Joyce's "Ulysses," which had been seized by customs agents on the ground that it was obscene.

In ordering release of the book, Judge Woolsey emphasized his belief that it was not written with pornographic intent and that it was not "obscene" within the legal definition of that term, rationally interpreted and applied to the case of the average man. The importance of the decision does not lie in the fact that it makes Joyce's book available to the public. It has been read by thousands of Americans in pirated editions, and other thousands have condemned themselves to the hard labor of trying to read it often with no success.

Indeed, "Ulysses" is one of those modern masterpieces which had to be forbidden in order to be read extensively. As the judge states, it is by turns brilliant and dull, intelligible and obscure. Even for the most persevering and sophisticated reader, it is extraordinarily difficult of comprehension.

In refusing to ban "Ulysses," Judge Woolsey has laid down certain standards by which to separate the literary wheat from the chaff in a way that will delight the souls of liberals. He emphasizes the patent sincerity of intention of the author, his honesty of delineation, and his loyalty to his chosen technique. The fact that the writing at times is "somewhat emetic" and the words decidedly rough are, Judge Woolsey held, incidental matters which do not condemn the book as a whole.

Nobody is compelled to take strong literary medicine against his will. However, the adult readers of this country are entitled to decide for themselves, without relying upon the judgment of Treasury agents, whether they will or will not read a book which a body of literary opinion concedes to be a work of art.

Few judges are endowed with Judge Woolsey's keen sense of values and his skill in analyzing the essentials of a literary production. Nevertheless, a sound decision of this sort has an educative effect upon public opinion. It helps to dissipate the ignorance and intolerance which bring even the most necessary forms of official censorship into general disrepute.

Murder Most Vile.

The millions who listened in to the President on Wednesday night must have felt deeply grateful for his forthright condemnation of lynching. "That vile form of collective murder," Mr. Roosevelt called this barbarous practice. Strong words, but none too strong for an exhibition of social degeneracy which far too frequently disgraces our National reputation at the bar of world opinion. In expressing the real sentiment of the people of the United States, the President rendered an outstanding service.

There can be no provocation, no crime, no matter how foul and brutal its nature, which in this country justifies mob action as a form of social vengeance. Those who condone such action show themselves, as the President intimated, unfitted to hold positions of leadership in an enlightened community. When the mob takes charge, the machinery of civilization breaks down. Those who can not see that anarchy is never tolerable are not safely entrusted with the controls of our social order.

It is a truism that the worst disservice of prohibition was the disregard of law and legal processes which it engendered. And recent lynchings are of course not unconnected with the widespread decay of respect for legal procedure. Where there is reasonable contempt for an unreasonable law, unreasonable contempt for reasonable laws is not to be regarded as surprising.

Now that the courts are cleared of the debris of the prohibition era, the restoration of the judicial function in its proper majesty is again possible. In pledging himself immediately to that effort of restoration, President Roosevelt will have the support of every thinking citizen.

Flexible Federal Pay.

Government employes have a vital interest in the appropriation bills which are being put into shape by subcommittees for consideration by Congress next month. Under the present law the 15 per cent pay reduction will not extend beyond next July 1.

Contrary to its previous intention, the Budget Bureau has based its estimates on continuation of a salary cut amounting to 10 per cent instead of 15 per cent as at present. Apparently Director Douglas anticipates that Congress will extend the pay reduction features of the economy act another year or adopt a new measure. Otherwise it would be necessary to provide for payment of salaries in full.

The basic theory underlying the reduction of Federal salaries last spring was that during the emergency rates of pay should fluctuate with the cost of living. The President was given authority to adjust salaries every six months in accordance with changes in living costs during the previous half year, provided always that the reduction should not be more than 15 per cent. Being made effective at a time when the cost of living was rising sharply and the Government was endeavoring to raise wages in private industry, this measure is considered a hardship by most Government workers. Its sponsors contend, however, that its flexibility saves Federal employes from any grave injustice.

Now it is proposed, however, to curtail the flexibility of the law by cutting the appropriations that would be available to pay higher salaries if the cost of living should continue to rise. Obviously, a provision that would hold in reserve only one-third of the fund necessary to restore salaries to their former status is not sufficient to guarantee Federal workers against injustice.

So long as the flexible arrangement is retained Congress certainly ought to appropriate sufficient money to make it fully operative.

Import Quotas.

The United States has established a system of quotas limiting the amount of alcoholic beverages to be admitted to the country under the terms of an A. A. A. marketing code applicable to importers. The Government not only plans to license all importers and regulate the total volume of imports, but it means to determine the kinds of liquor that may be imported and to allocate shipments to exporting countries. The system is described as a provisional arrangement which will remain in force pending the passage of permanent legislation regulating the liquor traffic.

Under the special conditions created by the repeal of prohibition, some sort of control over liquor imports seems desirable until the domestic industry has become adjusted to the new situation. However, the Government is said to be contemplating later revision of temporary quotas in favor of countries that agree to take American products in exchange. Thus a larger whisky and gin quota might be assigned to Great Britain, if that country would agree to buy more of our butter and hogs. Or France might be permitted to ship a larger quantity of wines to the United States if she were to relax her restrictions upon imports of American goods.

In other words, the provisional quota arrangements for the liquor trade seem to be regarded in certain official quarters as an entering wedge for a form of commercial treaty negotiation or bargaining which represents a significant departure from the customary American practice of admitting goods freely upon payment of duties applied uniformly to countries of origin.

The spread of currency depreciation and the disorder in foreign exchanges have created conditions which make it extremely difficult, often impossible, to regulate the volume of imports or protect domestic industries by relying upon tariff schedules. Quotas, licenses and comparable restrictions provide an alternative and more certain method of cutting off undesired imports, regardless of incalculable monetary factors.

Many of the countries with which we trade already are involved in a maze of special agreements and quota restrictions which in some cases are fixed by law or by governmental decrees, and in others through direct negotiations among interested groups acting with the approval of their respective countries. In view of these developments abroad, the suggestion that liquor quotas should be employed as a bargaining device in order to obtain trading concessions from other countries should be weighed carefully.

The experience of France, which has been a leader in developing the system of import quotas on an extensive scale indicates that such quantitative restrictions arouse more resentment and invite swifter retaliation than simple increases in tariff rates. Serious difficulties are apt to be encountered also in administering quota systems, since governmental supervision of a complicated and expensive character often is necessary.

Consequently, if the licensing provisions of the A. A. A. as applied to liquor importations are to become the starting point for a new orientation of our tariff policy, the American people should be apprised of that fact in advance and be given an opportunity to consider the far-reaching implications of such proposals.

Delaying School Projects.

A resolution adopted by the District of Columbia Public School Association urges the Commissioners to proceed with construction of the proposed Anacostia Junior High School, in spite of the fact that Director of the Budget Douglas has eliminated from his estimates an item providing funds for completion of the building.

Congress appropriated $225,000 for this school and authorized the Commissioners to erect a building costing not more than $450,000. Funds to begin the work are available, and there is no indication that Congress will refuse to appropriate additional money to complete it.

In fact, the authority already given the Commissioners carries with it an implication that funds will be forthcoming when needed. Under these circumstances the Commissioners are not obliged to take note of what the Budget Bureau may recommend to Congress.

It is more convenient, of course, to have all the money available before letting a contract, but if an authorized project actually is undertaken there is not much likelihood that Congress will leave it partially completed for want of funds, especially when large amounts are being spent on public works.

It is not always possible to avoid delay in the construction of schools or other public improvements. In the case of the Woodrow Wilson High School, for example, it became necessary to revise the original plans because of objections of the Fine Arts Commission.

As between delay and a waste of tax funds on poorly planned projects there can be only one choice. But obviously every effort should be made to reduce the lag between the appropriation of funds and the awarding of contracts.

Letters to the Editor

The Post welcomes letters from its readers. All communications should be signed with the writer's name. Upon publication initials or pen names will be used if requested. Letters should be limited to 300 words.

From Mississippi.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I feel that I want to commend you on your editorials "Sounding the Alarm" and "From Within the Ranks." Also Mr. Ralph West Robey's "Johnson's Picture Too Rosy" in The Post of November 26; also Mr. Bargeron's "Along the Potomac" on November 25.

I am a Democrat, have always been one (am 62 years old). I hope I can remain one. I voted for President Roosevelt, but will never do so again. I feel that there are thousands, probably millions of Democrats who feel as I do. Time seems to be adding to the number. "The Alarm" needs to be sounded, broadcast, not only concerning his money policy, but also his arbitrary, dictatorial decisions.

I think any government's policy should be "as little regulation as possible." Under that policy a government and the world would get the individual and unfettered ideas of the millions. Of course, I don't like the NRA—didn't from the start—and like its methods still less. I think Bargeron will demote Johnson to a clown's standing. Robey will show him to be a bluffer. Kindly let the good work go on.

F. E. RICHARDS.

Jackson, Miss.

High Speed Dinners.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The mortality rate among motorists and the number of accidents on wide, open roads is certainly appalling and something should be done about it. It is possible that a large number of accidents are the result of rank carelessness and criminal negligence on the part of the drivers.

Everybody seems to have a car and driving permits are held by irresponsible half-wits who have no right to be at a steering wheel. Examinations for driving licenses should be rigid and exacting so that only those who demonstrate their ability to handle motors and prove expert skill in judging speed, distance and space would be permitted to drive a motor car.

Motoring will be a pleasant and safe means of transportation when fast cars will be sold only to those who have proven themselves by rigid tests to be expert drivers and can handle machinery at high speed. There are plenty of drivers who own high speed cars and are mentally incapable of handling a car traveling at a rate of 25 miles per hour.

A. GEARY JOHNSON.

Suggests Roman Candles.

To the Editor of the Post—Sir: All this publicity about the efforts being made to eradicate the starlings reminds me of a remedy I once saw effectively used. A neighbor of mine was tormented by these birds that made several large trees in his yard their roosting place. Having some Roman candles left over from a Fourth of July celebration, he shot one or two up through the trees on several nights in succession. Of course, the birds left in great alarm, and, after having their slumbers disturbed and nerves shattered a few times by the frightening but otherwise harmless candles, they left, never to return to the neighborhood.

I imagine that a troop of Boy Scouts would gladly take over the responsibility for ridding the public buildings of these pests—if supplied with a sufficient number of the Roman candles by the city fathers.

L. E. VAN ALLEN.

Build Footpaths, He Urges.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Walking on two legs is one of man's epochal achievements racially and individually. In the mad rush to build motor highways, we have converted this useful and delightful ability into a source of discomfort, disgust and deadly peril for those who attempt for esthetic or utilitarian reasons to use it.

If the civil works program could provide for the building of footpaths along busy highways and for cross-country trails, it would be doing something of permanent social value, delighting the souls of those who walk by choice and protecting the lives of the children and the poor who walk by necessity.

J. P. D.

He Liked an Editorial.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I write to congratulate you and The Washington Post upon the very able and timely editorial appearing in your issue of December 3, under the title of "Scottsboro Justice."

You hearten and give encouragement to all who with steadfast faith look forward to the coming of the millennium of equal and complete justice to all in this the land of the free and home of the brave. More power to you.

WEST A. HAMILTON.

District Liquor Law.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A bar of justice for John Barleycorn that will satisfy the consensus of opinion: Repeal is near. All are talking about the new law; each one has a different opinion as to what kind of law will be best for Washington. No one, man or woman, is capable of giving an opinion that will satisfy the majority. I suggest that The Post offer a prize for the best essay of all readers of your paper; have three prizes, $100, $50, $25. Have five judges, two from churches, one Protestant, one Catholic, one labor, one prominent merchant and a banker. Submit the winning essays to the Commissioners for their consideration. In that way they could get an idea what would be best for the majority. The majority is willing to pay and pay. Congress should not pass important laws for our city unless all the citizens are consulted. Legal minds should grant us this favor. We will do the drinking; their conscience will be clear when some one abuses the law that the majority wanted.

Daily Talk About Books and Authors

Archibald Marshall.

All those who like the novels of Anthony Trollope, and many who do not, will enjoy a series of four novels written by a living English novelist, Archibald Marshall. Shortly before the Great War, he began to write a succession of stories dealing with a typical English family, living in a big country house, devoted to outdoor sports.

The order in which the books should be read (and this is important) is as follows:

1. The Squire's Daughter.
2. The Eldest Son.
3. The Honour of the Clintons.
4. The Old Order Changeth.

There is no more accurate picture to be found anywhere of the way in which a typical aristocratic English family lived between the years 1900 and 1914.

In England the pleasantest season to live in the country, provided one has sufficient means, is the winter. The outdoor life in winter is much more exciting than in the summertime. Then at the end of the short winter day, at four o'clock, the men and women come in from hunting, the curtains are drawn, the open fire of logs is blazing, and the family and their friends sit down to tea, which is a substantial meal; in the opinion of most Englishmen, the pleasantest meal of the day.

These four novels are wholly delightful. The interest is steadily maintained, though there are no heroes and no villians; and there is a pleasant afterglow in the mind of the reader caused by the meeting such charming people. The twins, Joan and Nancy are irresitible girls. There are no better novels for refreshing the mind.

You Can't Withdraw From the Game Without Paying Your Losses

By Robert Quillen

A certain lady who drives the family car is blessed with unwavering self-confidence so long as nothing goes wrong.

Holding the steering wheel makes her conscious of authority. She is the one who decides which route to follow, how fast to travel and when to stop for a view or a drink. She is the boss and others must adjust themselves to her whims.

She is irritated by her man's suggestions when she has difficulty in starting the car on a cold morning or backing into a narrow parking space. Her way is the right way, and let's have no argument about it.

But when the car balks many miles from anywhere or mires in a ditch or goes lame in one foot, she turns on him, sitting patiently at her side, and inquires resentfully: "Well, why don't you do something?"

Her behavior is not an unusual example, but is typical of this people and this era.

People of the "best families" demanded their own way in the matter of liquor control. Nobody could tell them what to drink. They were free citizens and they would demonstrate their freedom by encouraging Tony to break the law.

But when their patronage had made criminals rich and fearless, so that honest men lived in dread of kidnapers and extortioners, they turned to the Government and cried reproachfully: "Why don't you do something?"

People also demanded freedom for the movies and for smutty magazines. Let the Government keep its hands off. All censorship is dangerous.

But when the land had gone sex-mad and chastity had become old-fashioned and tipsy youngsters devoted themselves to "necking," frightened parents cried again: "Why doesn't somebody do something to save our children?"

Now it is a matter of production. We produce anything we choose, and as much as we choose, without any impudent government meddling. And when we have made a mess of things, we turn to the Government and say: "Why don't you do something to make us all prosperous?"

Alas! It can't be done. We can have complete liberty and pay for our mistakes, as of old, or we can have a "managed" country and avoid wasted effort. But we can't have both.

The one who does the dissipating must do the hurting next morning. He can't escape by telling the doctor to make him as good as new.

Along the Potomac

With

Carlisle Bargeron

IT IS rather a strange commentary on the fracas between Mr. George Peek and the Young Liberals that all the speculation, following Mr. Roosevelt's intervention, turns on whether the former will resign. Nowhere is there any suggestion or thought that the leader of the Young Liberals, Prof. Rexford Guy Tugwell might himself quit.

BARGERON.

Why the situation is this is difficult to understand. Only a few days ago, in fact immediately preceding the open rupture between Mr. Peek and the Young Liberals we read at length in the newspapers about how dissatisfied the professor and his colleagues were, how they were thinking of leaving in disgust. At that time there was no talk of Mr. Peek leaving. It was the Young Liberals who were threatening to leave us in the lurch.

* * * *

Now, however, the burning question is about the possible resignation of Mr. Peek. Can it be that the professor definitely squelched the rumors—the hopes that beat in some breasts—that he was going to leave, or is it that the reporters came to the realization of how much he loves his job and that speculation as to his leaving it was therefore quite absurd?

It isn't that he won the fight with Mr. Peek. He did not do this at all. The foodstuffs industries are to go to the NRA for their codes and there they will get them along the principles which Mr. Peek has been seeking to apply. The professor and his superior, Mr. Wallace, will have left the processing codes in which to apply their principles if the processors will accept the codes, which the indications are they won't.

* * * *

The point is that insofar as the outcome of their fight is concerned the professor has just as much reason to be in a quitting mood as Mr. Peek. But he isn't.

From a zeal for public service such as it is seldom our good fortune to see the professor has gradually developed a martyr complex. If his recent remarks before the institute of arts and sciences of Columbia University are indicative of his inner feelings, and surely they are, the professor is willing to suffer in his service here, is only sorry, in fact, that there aren't two of him to suffer jointly and at the same time, to give such an exhibition of suffering, indeed, as would make all previous sufferers in the public weal pale into suffering insignificance. Said he before the institute:

"I have called some of them (professors) to Washington myself. Others have called more. They have come with fresh minds, clean motives and unselfish aspirations. Numbers have come from this university at sacrifices known only to themselves. And their only reward will be unspectacular, the personal sense of having served in a crisis to re-create the gigantic strength of America.

"Those who have come from this and other universities have come quietly and gone to work in prosaic ways. They have found that what they had to do was really only an extension and an intensification of what they were used to doing. But under the lash of need they have been driven almost unbearably."

Oh, professor!

* * * *

There is a lament here, the lament of a man whose heart is aflame.

I suppose all of us have, at one time or another, heard the lament of downtrodden, underprivileged people. Particularly, have I heard the chantings of plantation Negroes. But nowhere do I believe I have heard such poetic esctasy as there is in that wail of the professor. There is an esctasy in good old-fashioned wailing, you know.

In the professor's outburst there is a regular wailing spree. It sounds like the "Volga Boatmen," in fact.

WHY CRITICIZE?

Dominion Bureau of Statistics figures show that there are some 770,436 radio receiving sets in Canada, according to the Montreal Gazette, and as each of these pays $2 for an annual license, the revenue is well over the $1,500,000 mark. Such a contribution to national radio upkeep entitles the contributors to criticize programs if they do not come up to the popular expectation.

The Trinket.

He brought a little trinket home,
 A pin to deck the gown she wore.
Came changing style, and in a while
 She thought about the gift no more.

There was no value to the thing,
 So lightly was it tossed aside,
But later on when he was gone
 By chance that trivial gift she spied.

With tenderness she picked it up—
 Cheap token of departed years—
And to her eyes began to rise
 Man's fairest tribute—woman's tears.

She saw him as he used to be,
 She heard his step upon the stair
And lived again, glad moments when
 He joyed in having gifts to bear.

Poor bit of gold and glittering glass,
 Scarce worth a thought in times long flown.
Recalling one, forever gone.
 How very precious you have grown.

Reed Pledges Help in Dollar Stabilization

Senator Would Support President in Move Against Inflation.

Philadelphia, Dec. 7 (AP).—Describing Congress as ready to adopt almost any kind of inflation, Senator David A. Reed today promised wholehearted support to President Roosevelt in a move to stabilize the dollar.

In a speech before a joint meeting of the Philadelphia Board of Trade and the Manufacturers and Bankers Club, the Pennsylvania Republican said:

"If a vote were taken today in the National Legislature on the proposition to pay the Government's expenses and refund the National debt by unsecured paper currency, I believe it would pass by a considerable margin.

Pledges Other Republicans.

"I pray the President may have the courage and strength to resist the pressure for direct inflation.

"If he does, it will be my privilege and the privilege of the other Republicans in Congress to fight beside him."

In an interview preceding his speech, Senator Reed expressed regret that he had been portrayed as opposed to the President's drive for industrial recovery.

"I don't know what his money plans are," said the Senator. "If they are sound, I expect to be fighting shoulder to shoulder with him. It isn't a question of politics in the partisan sense."

Reed asserted the fight for inflation will be led by the West and South.

Saying Southern industry would be "devastated" by its continuance, Reed called for an early abolition of the NRA, to escape "disastrous" results throughout the entire country.

Has Served Purpose.

The Senator said the NRA "has served its purpose as an emergency measure." This, he said, was at the expense of the "small business man, causing many to operate at a loss."

Reed in his address asserted that under inflation "the speculators gain and the middle and working classes are hit the hardest."

"Only by an aroused public opinion can American fiscal policies be maintained on a sound basis," he continued. "The expenses of the Government are now out of all proportion to its income. The national industrial conference board estimates a $15,000,000,000 increase in the national debt in the next few years, although I doubt that it will reach this figure, more than half is in the offing.

"The temptation to pay this by unsecured currency is as great as in the time of our Revolution."

The Once Over.

By H. I. Phillips.

ELMER'S TRIP TO WASHINGTON.

"My trip to the White House was pretty much of a bust," said Elmer Twitchell, after a recent trip to Washington.

"See the President?" we asked him.

"Nope," said Elmer. "He was tied up at the moment preparing a couple of public statements, a radio talk to the country and an anniversary address to the people of some place."

"See Mrs. Roosevelt?"

"Nope. Mrs. Roosevelt was very busy answering correspondents in her service to the women of America. She had 2,600 more letters to go at the time I dropped in. She was also busy on a few magazine pieces and a newspaper article."

"See Lou Howe?"

"Not a chance. I tried hard, but I heard Lou was all in a tangle preparing his regular weekly radio talk on the general situation, and I could hardly ask him to pass up a chance to talk to 20,000,000 or 30,000,000 people to talk to me."

* * * *

"How about Marvin McIntyre and Steve Early, the other secretaries?"

"They were doing some writing, too, I understood, and arranging for some newsreel contacts. I believe the newsreel men haven't been giving complete satisfaction. They got only 132 shots of the President last week."

"Did you happen to run across Mrs. Dall?"

"She flashed by me on the run in the corridors as I went in," replied Elmer. "I guess she was hurrying to catch a magazine with her interior decorating, care of the baby, how to preserve rugs, White House recipes and general household hints articles."

"Did you see Jimmy Roosevelt?"

"Just a second. He was going upstairs four steps at a time with a quart of ink in his hand. They told me he was starting on his impressions of Venice, Rome, Florence and Naples for a newspaper syndicate with a special description of the Blue Grotto at Capri."

"See the other boys at all?"

"Nope."

"How about Gen. Johnson and the Cabinet officers? Did you see them?"

"No, but they were in all right. I heard their typewriters pounding," concluded Elmer.

PORTRAIT OF A STATE LEANING OVER BACKWARD.

Consider the case of Connecticut.
It thinks it is terrible etikut
To drink on the level,
And works like the devil
To keep the old State in a petticut.

NO SCARCITY REPORTED.

We could nominate a number of football teams for a New Year's game in the Razz Bowl.

After listening to the radio and viewing a few movie comedies you can't avoid the conclusion that what America needs is a war on the gagster.

Tempo Building "C."

You are no work of beauty, grace,
Nor architect's fond dream;
In fact, you're very commonplace
From sill to ridge-pole beam.
Your paper walls, tar roof that leaks;
Plumbing far from "late;"
Splintery floor that sags and creaks
With all—you're antiquate.
Yet history quite well recalls
What fates you've witnessed sealed
In days when Washington heard calls
From that far battle field.
Hence, you endure our jibes and jeers
Without a fear or fuss,
For we all know the chance appears

Unit May Be Permanent; 69 Virginia Teachers to Get $165 Jobs.

The Civilian Conservation Corps may be continued on a permanent basis, Robert Fechner, director of the corps, said yesterday, as he revealed that nearly 1,500 persons will be employed to carry on an educational program in the camps.

Mr. Fechner has reported to the President that the corps has justified its existence and should be continued.

Each of the 1,466 camps will have an educational adviser to direct an educational program. These advisers are being appointed by the camp commanders from lists furnished by State authorities.

Attendance at the schools is not compulsory, it was explained, and the classes will not interfere with the hours of forestry work.

Sidney B. Hall, of Richmond, has been charged with selecting 69 Virginia teachers to be appointed to camps in that State, while J. D. Blackwell, of Baltimore, is making up a list of 13 to be appointed in Maryland and the District. Unemployed school teachers, particularly those with training in vocational guidance, will probably be selected for the jobs, which will pay $165 per month until April 1, 1934. They must live at the camps.

$84,000,000 Pennsy Loan Deadline Seen

Ickes May Cancel Offer Unless Accepted by December 14.

Unless the Pennsylvania Railroad Co. accepts terms offered by the Public Works Administration for a loan of $84,000,000 with which to complete electrification of its Washington-New York line by December 14, the offer may be withdrawn, Secretary Ickes, public works administrator, said yesterday.

More than a month ago the loan was offered to the railroad by the P. W. A. Pennsylvania engineers have been studying the loan contract for several weeks. P. W. A. officials said an agreement might be reached within the next few days. There are differences over wage scales to be ironed out.

It was understood that the railroad at first objected, then agreed, to pay P. W. A. wages to laborers working on the tracks between Baltimore and Washington.

Secretary Ickes appeared to be irked at the delay of the railroad in accepting the loan, which has kept large numbers of men out of work.

"They can make up their minds in 10 days if they can do it in 10 months," he said.

The administrator at the same time announced additional railroad loans amounting to $5,500,000 to the Lehigh Valley and the New York, New Haven & Hartford lines.

These were the first loans made by the P. W. A. for reconditioning of rail equipment. The New Haven received $3,500,000 to rebuild freight and passenger cars and repair electrical equipment. The Lehigh will receive $2,000,000 with which to repair freight cars.

The New Haven plans to reemploy 700 men in its shops at Readville, Mass., and Van Nest, N. Y. The Lehigh will increase its present schedule of operation at its shops in Sayre and Packerton, Pa.

1928 Tariff Rates Sought In Montevideo

Uruguay Motion Follows Criticism of U. S. Law; Chaco War Studied.

Montevideo, Uruguay, Dec. 7 (AP). The Pan-American Conference was called upon today to restore tariffs to a basis of those in effect in 1928, before the United States' Smoot-Hawley act went into effect.

Sponsored by Uruguay, a resolution was introduced providing that on July 1, 1934, the 1928 duties go into effect for five years.

A truce would be declared in effect until July 1, providing against changes in present duties.

Asking immediate action, Uruguayan delegates said they hoped it would be possible to cable all Pan-American governments within a fortnight, asking adherence to the truce, pending the five-year agreement.

Hull Motion Delayed.

The high Smoot-Hawley tariff measure has drawn criticism from several South American countries, who claim it virtually bars their products from the United States. The resolution provides for restoration of duties to those in existence at the time of the Pan-American Conference in Havana five years ago.

The resolution came after the steering committee postponed action on the motion of Cordell Hull, head of the United States' delegation, to "reexamine" the request of the League of Nations and possibly of Spain and Portugal for official observers.

It veered the conference into the channels of economic discussion, which has been the aim of several delegations since the opening.

Spokesmen for both Bolivia and Paraguay, opposing forces in the Chaco War, expressed appreciation of the conference's efforts to settle the conflict.

7 Nations Discuss Chaco War.

David Alvestegui, of Bolivia voiced gratification and Justo Pastor Benitez said Paraguay was at the disposal of the conference. They were cheered.

The steering committee adopted a subcommittee recommendation to refer Mexico's financial plan, involving a moratorium on public and private debts, to the Inter-American High Commission.

PWA Revokes Three Grants

Mt. Rainier Loses Out on $33,000 Due to Legal Snags.

For the first time, the Public Works Administration yesterday rescinded three non-Federal allotments, including a loan and grant of $33,000 set aside on October 19 for Mount Ranier, Md.

This action, Administrator Ickes said, was taken because self-imposed local regulations or results of bond elections prevented the applicants from benefiting from allotments.

Pending lawsuits and other legal technicalities, which prevented Mount Ranier from proceeding with its proposed PWA projects, resulted in the rescinding of the loan, it was stated. The loan and grant were withdrawn with the consent of the applicant, Mr. Ickes said.

Allotments of $8,200 and $7,000 to Barre, Vt., also were canceled, because of legal reasons.

Illinois Orders Chain Gang Fugitive Returned to Florida

Requisition Signed Despite Prisoner's Story of Tortures.

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 7 (AP).—Gov. Horner tonight honored Florida's requisition for James A. Larue, 27, who escaped from a chain gang there.

The extradition papers were signed by the governor within two hours after a hearing before Dewitt Billman, secretary of the Legislative Reference Bureau. Larue's attorney said removal to Florida would be opposed by a habeas corpus writ at Chicago.

Chicago, Dec. 7 (AP).—James A. Larue's story of tortures while serving time on a Florida chain gang won for him today a promise from a judge for "every break in the world" in opposing extradition.

Larue, 27 years old, has four and one-half years of a five-year sentence left to serve. He told Judge Alfred O. Erickson that the sentence was imposed in Dade County, Fla., because he broke into a deserted house "just out of curiosity." He was sentenced for burglary.

"I could tell stories about the chain gang that would make your blood run cold," Larue said. "One day out of every week I was put in 'the hog box.' It was a tiny board shack where the sun blistered me all day and the swamp winds made me ache with cold all night."

Judge "Knows" Florida.

Judge Erickson continued the case until tomorrow, or until Gov. Henry Horner acts on a request of Florida authorities for Larue's removal.

"I'll give you every possible break in the world," the judge said. "I know how they treat Northerners down there in Florida. Five years ago my son was arrested for some difficulty about an automobile license. I had great difficulty in gaining his liberty and had to enlist the services of the Attorney General."

Since he escaped from the chain gang camp last April 15, Larue has been charged in Chicago with a burglary, but the complainant, Mrs. Alberta Clawsen, appeared in court today and declared she believed him innocent.

British Authoress Acts.

She said $800 worth of jewelry was stolen from her home shortly after Larue had been employed there at odd jobs, but that subsequent developments had convinced her that Larue was not the thief.

Miss Rheba Forbes, British authoress visiting here, became interested in Larue's case several days ago and retained an attorney to defend him.

Larue said he escaped by weakening the chains that bound his legs with a file smuggled to him by an Indian squaw. He said he lived in the swamps for days, eating berries and traveling by night.

3,000 Reserved for CWS Relief Workers in New Policy.

The 20,000 C. W. A. job quota allotted the District was reduced yesterday by instructions from Federal officials that the several thousand persons placed on Civil Works Service jobs are to be counted as part of the quota.

District officials previously had regarded the service jobs as separate from the C. W. A. projects. The ruling left only about 1,000 C. W. A. jobs remaining to be filled, said Capt. Howard F. Clark, assistant Engineer Commissioner and executive officer of the District Civil Works Administration.

Of the 16,000 persons now holding emergency jobs, pproximately 1,000 are on C. W. S. work. Of the balance of 4,000 jobs remaining to fill the quota, 3,000 are to be reserved for C. W. S. workers. These are limited to persons on the emergency relief rolls. A policy has been formulated to require some sort of work from every able person receiving relief, Capt. Clark said.

Alan Johnstone, field representative of the Federal CWA, met with District officials yesterday and emphasized need for drawing a sharp distinction between the two classes of work. The Administration is anxious that relief work be charged to relief funds, he reminded.

Wage Scales Undecided.

No decision was reached on the question of wage scales to be paid on District CWA projects. A ruling on that is expected from Federal officials in the next day or so. Jacob Baker, assistant Federal administrator, instructed local administrations to pay union wage scales, but these instructions have not been followed by District officials, who have based local CWA wages on the wages paid District per diem employes.

Approval was given to opening Fort drive from Nebraska avenue for a distance of 1,200 feet past the Alice Deal Junior High School. This will give an approach to the school from the west and will supply work for about 100 men. It is to be done by the parks office.

Rink Plan Given Up.

Closing of Fourth street northwest from Van Buren to Sheridan streets was approved by the Commissioners at a meeting with representatives of the parks office.

Objection had been made to plans for development of the recreation center outlined by the parks officials. Objectors were led by H. L. Thornton who said property owners felt building of a skating rink and a swimming pool would lower the value of their property.

It was agreed to build the swimming pool farther to the east than first planned and to abandon the proposal for the skating rink. Mr. Thornton told the Commissioners property owners would agree to closing of the street if plans were thus modified. Expenditure of $200,000 on the recreation center is planned.

St. Joseph, Mo., Dec. 7 (AP).—A second warrant charging first degree murder in connection with the lynching of Lloyd Warner, Negro, was issued late today.

Aaron Levin, 50, a junk dealer, is charged in the warrant with being one of the men who procured the gasoline which was hurled on the Negro's body and set afire after he had been hanged to a tree near the Buchanan County Jail.

Mercy Slayer Of Aunt Freed

Inquest Decides Cancer Killed Woman, Not Blow on Head.

Atlanta, Dec. 7 (AP). — Johnny Stephens, 32-year-old recluse, today was exonerated of killing his aunt after doctors attributed her death to cancer rather than a blow he struck her to end her suffering.

Stephens talked freely of his design to take the life of the 60-year-old spinster, Miss Allie Stephens, "because I couldn't bear to see her suffer so." And when it became apparent she was beyond help, he said he crashed a flower pot on her head.

At most, the doctors testified, the blow could have hastened her death by only a few moments. She had been in a dying condition since Tuesday night, said Dr. W. A. Selman, the family physician.

Airman Story Under Inquiry

Would-Be-Suicide Held for Observation at Gallinger.

Ernest DeVanie, 43, of 453 I street northwest, who was saved from suicide Wednesday night when passersby saw the shadows of a noose against the drawn curtain of his window, was taken to Gallinger Hospital yesterday for observation. He claimed to be a wounded World War airman.

Officials at the War Department said they had no records of anyone by the name of DeVanie serving with the American Expeditionary Force, and expressed skepticism about the patient's overseas service. DeVanie when booked at Police Headquarters for observation, gave his occupation as a mechanic.

DeVanie, Wednesday night, was provided with a meal by Policeman J. P. Day, and told to report to Capt. Holmes at the First Precinct the next day to see about a job.

Flaws in DeVanie's story led to his being booked and taken to the hospital. Several influential citizens, however, called police in connection with possible jobs for DeVanie during the day.

Lottery Battle Goes to House In Maryland

Committee Fails to Agree; 65-Cent Whisky Stirs Demand for Inquiry.

By a Staff Correspondent.

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 7.—An eleventh-hour battle over proposals to legalize State lotteries began today as leaders sought to force early adjournment of the Maryland Legislature.

A 4-to-4 deadlock resulted in the constitutional amendments committee after a hearing on a resolution asking a referendum on repeal of a State constitution clause forbidding lotteries. The committee decided to submit the issue to the House without recommendations.

Those for a favorable report were Delegates Alexander Goodman, Richard M. Baker, Lawrence P. Williams and Richard C. Zantzinger, while opponents include Douglas H. Gordon, Lavinia Engle, Charles Carroll, jr., and Ernest W. Miller. Outstanding witnesses in behalf of unlimited public wagering as a means of obtaining revenue for the State and Baltimore were E. Lester Muller, president of Baltimore City Council; Fred P. Stieff, president of the Baltimore Retail Merchants Association, and Richard F. Cleveland, son of President Grover Cleveland.

Liquor Profiteering Attacked.

Race track interests used their influence with legislators in hopes of killing the lottery proposal. They feared lotteries would sharply curtail track betting and probably result in closing of Maryland race tracks.

Reports that liquor dealers had been charging as much as 65 cents a drink since repeal caused Delegate T. Warren Rice, Baltimore, to introduce a resolution calling for appointment of a House committee to investigate whisky profiteering in Baltimore. The measure was referred to the rules committee.

Delegate James J. Lindsay, jr., Democratic floor leader, predicted the liquor probe would die in committee.

Delegate Oliver Metzerott, Prince Georges County, introduced a bill to make illegal drinking of liquor in streets. He contended there already had been too much disorder by intoxicated motorists since repeal.

Bridge Measure Advanced.

The Senate concurred in House passage of a measure authorizing construction of a $3,000,000 bridge across the Potomac between Charles County, Md., and King George's County, Va. Other measures granted Senate approval would enable Rockville and Glen Echo Borough to get $37,000 in public works funds for street improvements.

Under a bill advanced by the Montgomery delegation, election districts could obtain referendums on liquor in April, 1935, by petitions containing the names of 30 per cent of the voters. After such petitions were filed immediate sale of light wines and beer could begin.

Dry districts eligible to demand liquor elections included Laytonsville, Poolesville, Clarksburg, Colesville, Darnestown, Olney, Gaithersburg, Barnesville, Damascus, Kensington and Takoma Park.

Wet districts which could vote to become dry were Rockville, Bethesda, Potomac and Wheaton.

The Prince Georges delegation introduced a bill to authorize a referendum next May in Hyattsville on a proposed 5 or 10 cent real estate tax for library maintenance funds.

Oyster Parley Voted.

Annapolis, Dec. 7 (AP).—A solution for some of the complications involved in the Potomac River oyster controversy—over which he filibustered for more than eight hours at the last session—is sought by Senator Joseph Allen Coad in a joint resolution which was favorably reported to the Maryland Senate.

The report was adopted without discussion.

The resolution directs the conservation commissioners of Maryland to confer with the commissioner of fisheries of Virginia in regard to establishment of a line on the Maryland side of the Potomac, defining the waters lying south of the line and extending to the Maryland-Virginia boundary line which may be used in common by the citizens of both States.

Skyline Drive Gets Advance Of $4,000,000

PWA Announce Initial Allotment for Park Project.

The first allotment of the $16,000,000 to be advanced by the Public Works Administration for construction of the extension of Skyline Drive, to connect Shenandoah and Great Smoky Mountain National parks, was made yesterday with the award of $4,000,000.

In announcing the allotment Administrator Ickes said the exact route of the parkway and drive has not been determined. Preliminary plans contemplate that the drive, in general, will follow as nearly as possible the summit of the mountain chain connecting the two parks.

The approximate length of the roadway from the southern point of Shenandoah National Park, in Virginia, to the northern point of Great Smoky Mountain Park in North Carolina and Tennessee, will be 350 miles.

These three States have agreed to acquire a 200-foot right of way along the route except where it passes through the property now owned by the Federal Government. This right of way and the road then will become a component part of the two National parks.

Interior Department officials who supervise the National parks are contemplating the eventual asquisition of areas along the drive for scenic and recreational purposes.

New Social Register Lists Local Elite

Latest Edition Shows Slump in Marriages Here.

The 1934 Social Register for Washington is now being distributed.

Marriages show a surprising slump, the number of persons married having dropped from the 143 listed in last year's edition to 113 in the present volume. Deaths have increased from 88 to 110, of which number 38 were women and 72 men. This reflects the general trend of higher percentage of deaths among men than women found in the other cities for which Social Registers are published.

The Social Register continues to be bound in the same black and red cover with the same typographical make-up which it has had since 1887. Full names and addresses of members of families are grouped to show family relationship, and designations of clubs and societies to which they belong are added. Girls from 12 to 17 and boys from 14 to 20 are listed as juniors. In the back is the famous list of "Married Maidens," from which it is possible to obtain the present name and residence of former debutantes.

Mrs. Harriman Will Leave for New York

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman will leave tomorrow for New York, where she will spend Christmas with her daughter, Mrs. Harriman Russell. Mrs. Harriman will return to her home, Uplands, shortly after the holiday.

No End of Books

Government Ends 11-Year Ban on James Joyce's Novel, "Ulysses;" Decision of Federal Judge Will Mean That Great Books May Be Read for Literary Intent.

Slipped quietly into a corner of yesterday's Post was a small item which marks the end of an era as distinctly as does the vastly more publicized repeal of prohibiton. According to an Associated Press dispatch, Federal Judge John M. Woolsey, of New York, ordered the United States custom officials to admit to this country a copy of James Joyce's huge narrative of 24 hours in Dublin, the famous "Ulysses."

Since 1922, when the Shakespeare Press in Paris first printed the book, all the copies in the country have been contraband, bootlegged across the border, because the Government decreed the book "obscene."

In reversing this state of affairs, Judge Woolsey said of the book from the bench: "It is a sincere and serious attempt to devise a new literary method for the observation and description of mankind. To be understood, the book must be read in its entirety. In spite of its unusual frankness, I do not detect anywhere the leer of a sensualist. Of course, if one does not wish to associate with such people as Joyce describes, that is a matter of personal choice. I hold, therefore, that the book is not pornographic."

The United States attorney, who had sought to exclude the book, said he welcomed the result, and added:

"I think the opinion a masterpiece." He declared he would recommend that the case be dropped without appeal.

The defense counsel remarked: "The first week of December, 1933, will go down in history for two repeals—that of prohibition and that of squeamishness in literature."

Without approving in any way the hordes of sniggering books which are printed in this country, one can not help seeing that it is a mark of good government to allow great literature to be judged solely as literature. For "Ulysses," whether one cares for the book or not, has already left its permanent impression upon English and American writing.

Congressional Cooks.

"THE CONGRESSIONAL COOK BOOK," Favorite National and International Recipes. (Compiled and published by the Congressional Club, Washington. $1.50.

Fanny Farmer's nose is getting a bad tweaking, and by the ladies of the Congressional set. After all, when so many Congressional cooks put their heads together, what can Miss Farmer do about it?

From the press to the kitchen comes this concentrated textbook of culinary art, "The Congressional Cook Book." It contains recipes from the wives and daughters of the members of our two governing bodies, together with favorite recipes of the wives and daughters of the diplomatic circle, and some from the gracious ambassadors themselves. Not only that, but this remarkable book tells the reader what to do when calling on the President, what kind of menus the wives of the Presidents have enjoyed, how many calories and vitamins are contained of the foods you eat, everything from the setting of a table to the washing of the last dish.

The fact that 60 foreign nations are represented by their recipes has little imaginative value. But when you run across names like "Huauhchinango a la Veracruzana," and "Kinkkukohokas" (the latter, freely translated into English, means "Ham Souffle"), the whimsical mind has something to work on. It might not be wise, however, to attempt the verbal announcement of the dishes when serving them.

The Congressional ladies have done an excellent job by their book. It has a clear and easily comprehended table of contents. Many bits of knowledge, which would be difficult to find elsewhere, are contained in this truly princely cook book.

KATHERINE SMITH.

Mrs. Barnes Up to Date.

A novel, "WITHIN THIS PRESENT," by Margaret Ayers Barnes. (Houghton-Mifflin, $2.50).

No one who has read it will want to forget Margaret Ayer Barnes' Pulitzer prize-winning "Years of Grace." Out of the ingredients of Chicago's last four decades she concocted a rich and succulent literary dish. But no one who has read "Years of Grace" will want to remember her last and least book, "Within This Present," which tries to follow the prize-winning recipe, but has turned out poor fare indeed.

"Within This Present" is about a banking family. Nearly 400 pages are devoted to the economic and financial difficulties which continue to beset us; it is a little like hearing the details of an operation while still coming out of the ether. Whatever worth as a contemporary picture the book may have is hampered more than anything else by the slight story of the marital ups and downs and outs of the Sewall, Truesdale and MacLeod families. Gone are the Carvers of the "Years of Grace," except for incidental mention toward the end of the book. The Sewalls are neither so vital nor so authentic.

As in her former book, Mrs. Barnes contrasts pioneer virtues and present-day diversions. As usual, too, she has a mother of men and a "new woman" dissecting life in a way which movie audiences will probably relish eventually from the lips of Ann Harding. However, by far the best part of the book is that which concerns the years 1914-1919, the war-time adolescence of the Sewall cousins. And when she writes of old-time Chicago, Mrs. Barnes is always enthusiastic, often interesting.

Despite the failure of the family bank, the book ends on a note of cheer wrought by the salvage of a marriage and the inaugural address of Franklin Delano Roosevelt. The Sewalls, the Truesdales and the MacLeods, though they don't like being called money-changers, think everything is going to be all right.

Congressional Cook Book Full Of New Recipes

First Lady and Many Others Contributed Their Favorites.

"Let's have some kedgemakooge for dinner tonight," says the housewife.

So she opens her Congressional Cook Book, finds the recipe for the American Indian tapioca pudding, throws the ingredients together, and there it is!

Or she may use one from Siam, or Russia, Turkey or Denmark, all found in this wonderful book. The recipes have been contributed by the ambassadors from various countries, their wives and daughters, as well as the wives and daughters of the Congressmen. The Ladies Congressional Club has just published a new edition of this book, which was placed on display in the Senate Office Building yesterday afternoon.

Said Mrs. Ross A. Collins, chairman of the cook book committee:

"There are about 3,000 recipes"—she ruffled the thin pages—"handed in by 982 contributors. Here is a section of favorite recipes of 60 foreign countries, there is a section on invalid and child feeding, cooking time-tables, a large list of menus for every occasion. Some of these include luncheons given in honor of President's wives, and menus that the ladies of the club have used."

Here is a list of culinary terms, the most used French ones among them, and ordinary cooking terms, like "marinate," "saute," with explanations. There are tables giving nutritive values of foods, a chapter on table service and decoration, and many others.

"As I said in my introduction, I really don't think there is another cook book like it in the world."

Mrs. Roosevelt has contributed a number of her favorite recipes, and in addition has written a foreword in the book. She writes:

"Cooking should be considered an art, and the arts should certainly be of assistance in the Government; therefore it seems particularly appropriate that the wives of our lawmakers should get out a cook book, for good cooking means good health and good health is the basis of all good work. I am greteful for the opportunity to share in this enterprise, and I hope that the recipes which I have contributed may prove as popular with all those who use the book as they have proved in our family.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

This column recently carried an article dealing with zinc as a poison. It was stated that persons who inhaled air laden with zinc dust or brass dust were prone to have zinc chills. However, metal dust from other sources may cause metal chills.

It also was stated that vomiting after eating food that had been left in zinc, copper, tin or other metal utensils and cans was apt to be due to the emetic action of zinc salts. The ware that is most liable to contribute to this effect is that which has been galvanized.

Forunately this kind of poisoning stops with nausea and vomiting. It is caused by combinations of acids and zinc and not by the metal itself. To this pair possibly a third should be added. One of the types of dusting powders that is liable to cause suffocation when a person, and especially a baby, is drowned in it is that which contains zinc. The effect is caused by the powder and not by the metal zinc.

These three sources of harm done by the use of zinc about exhausts the debtor side of the ledger. Zinc is about the least harmful of the metals. As a source of poisoning humans it stands lower than iron, tin, copper and aluminum. It is reasonably near correct to say that the metal itself has no poisoning properties.

There is an old, unofficial standard for drinking water which puts a limit of five parts per million of zinc. Drs. Drinker and Fairhall say there is no occasion for any zinc standard in water or food. If there is to be one it should not be lower than thirty parts per million, and fifty parts would be safe enough. In 14 groups of analyses of water from various parts of the world only five were found to have less than five parts per million of zinc.

Water that has been drawn from galvanized pipes has been found to have 56 parts per million. If water is carbonated or if it is very soft, as rain water, for example, it is wholesome, and protecting metal pipes and containers by coating with zinc compounds is often advisable.

What Today Means

"Sagittarius"

If December 8 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 1:45 to 2:30 p. m., from 4 to 5 p. m. and from 8 to 9:20 p. m. The danger periods are from 9:30 to 11:30 a. m. and from 10 to 11 p. m.

You will be inclined to be forgetful on this date and as a result it is possible that you will "ball" up something in the home and cause a good deal of embarrassment to another. Children will tend to do the reverse of what it expected of them. Without being willful about it, they will casually ignore instructions.

The child born on this December 8 will probably take life pretty much as it comes and will show few enthusiasms. It will not be greatly affected by either surprises or disappointments and will truly be a philosophic little one. Will follow the instructions of its parents without comment and without questioning them.

If December 8 is the date of your birth, you will probably exert a considerable influence over a large group of people. You are not cut out to take a back seat and unless you run into a lot of hard luck, you will make yourself heard over and above the noise of the masses. You probably plan your life very carefully; you are sure to do the things you should do and you will be equally careful not to leave yourself open to criticism on any score. Your private life is an open book for all to read. You have nothing to fear from any quarter and if you should decide to embark on a public career you will have no skeleton to pop out of the dark recesses of your past. Your life will be a battle from start to finish, for you will aim high and will not seek to avoid competition. Rather, you will relish it. You are a keen person, shrewd but honest and sincere and you enjoy matching your wits against others, most particularly against others who have already established themselves. A good fight for a good cause is sure to be successful, you feel.

Born on December 8, you have a heart as pure as gold. You always have time to stop and give encouragement to another, and when you feel that a person is truly worthy of help you will go any lengths to give him a real boost. You are sympathetic and understanding, you never criticize except in a constructive way, and once a man is down you do not try to keep him there. You will probably marry somewhere in your thirties and your mate will devote his or her life to furthering your own interests.

What's in Fashion?

Leather Jackets Once Fad Now Rank as Necessities

Directed by Amos Parrish

New York, Dec. 7.—If you know an outdoors man, and you want to give him something warm, something comfortable, and something that sheds rain without water-spotting, the answer is almost too easy. A jacket of soft, pliable leather will fix him . . . right. And if you know a college man, the answer's the same . . . he can never have too many.

There have been few successes as great as the leather jacket—or the windbreaker. Of the hundreds of novelties that have been tossed at men during the past decade, it's one of the few to stick and become a Nation-wide fashion.

The windbreaker stayed arouhd of course, because it offered certain really permanent advantages. And because it filled a big hole in men's wardrobes that called for something to keep them warm on blustery days without limiting their arm and body freedom.

Golfers, fishermen, hikers, motorists, almost anyone exposed to outdoors in the raw, has a definite use for leather jackets.

Leather Big Point of Popularity.

The most popular ones have always been of leather. Either calfskin, suede, or cape. Or some other soft, pliable leather combining durability and wearability.

Incidentally, the leather in windbreakers has had a good deal to do with their success—good, firm, soft, sweet-smelling leather. Especially when its tanned to a butter-like softness that makes it kin to silk or wool for comfort.

Leather windbreakers, every wearer knows, can take more punishment and show less wear than almost any known material. In addition to which, they do exactly what their name boasts—break the wind so efficiently that little if any can penetrate.

Then, too, the windbreaker makers have tailored them in models which provide the most in comfort and practicality . . . So it isn't hard to see why the windbreaker stepped from a craze to a permanent National custom.

Necks of Three Types.

Most windbreakers extend from the neck to the hips. Many newer ones are specially short—reaching just to the waist. This cuts the bulk of the jacket to a minimum, and, incidentally, gives the wearer freer access to his trousers pockets. Necks are either of the turn-up military type, or the V-type, which has no collar at all. Or the cossack type, which has a short collar.

Generally, they have slide-fastener fronts these days (though some still use the button front). And because they are thoroughly practical things, they all have pockets. Deep, roomy pockets. Some of them two. Some three.

One more point to remember—if you're buying a windbreaker as a gift. You'll find the jackets are finished either of two ways—with a knitted trim which makes them hug the hips and wrists, or a straight hanging jacket with adjustable strap and buckles at the sides, and cuffs.

And there's no limit to the colors you can choose, though most of them are some shade of tan—running all the way from gold to chestnut shades.

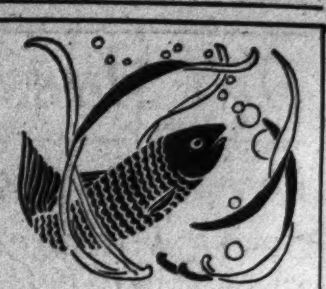
The Family Marketer



Crabmeat and Oysters Both Look Tempting to Marketer.

The Marketeer hurried down to the wharf, to see her fisherman friend.

"Hello, how are you?" with a wave of the hand. Greetings were exchanged.

"What's the news today?" she asked.

"Not much," the fisherman smiled. "Us fishing folks are as happy as if we had good sense. The weather's fine, the fish are coming in, there's no excitement at all."

"Is crabmeat procurable now?"

"Oh, yes, the meat sells at 25, 35 and 50 cents a pound."

"And oysters are still 40 and 50 cents a quart?"

"That's right. We have flounders at 3 pounds for 25 cents, croakers at 4 pounds for the same price, speckled trout at 12 cents a pound, small trout at three pounds for 25 cents."

"So that's all the excitement you have," the Marketer frowned, "I was expecting a good fish yarn from you today."

"Wall, I'll try to think up a good story for you for next week." Fisherman are most agreeable.

There she found delicious green peas, at two pounds for 25 cents, lima beans at 15 cents a pound, tomatoes are 10 cents a pound, cucumbers, three for 10 cents, lettuce, home-grown, is 5 cents a head, iceburg, two for 15 cents.

Both red and white potatoes are 25 cents for 10 pounds. Green peppers are three for 5 cents, spinach, 2 pounds for 15 cents, or 4 for a quarter; cabbage is 3 pounds for 10 cents.

Pineapples are 15 cents each; grapefruit range from 3 to 8 for a quarter. Tangerines are 20 cents a dozen. Pears for cooking are 6 pounds for 25 cents, for eating, 30 cents a dozen. Extra large and luscious Delicious apples are 3 for a dime.

MR. SYLVESTER: "Two things I do know—a good golfer, and a good sandwich."

Bond can't help but be the finest tasting bread, when you consider these definite reasons why: (1) 43,040 of the best home bakers in America showed us how to give it that home-like flavor; (2) Every pure ingredient used in making is guaranteed, right on the wrapper; (3) Rising of Bond Bread dough is stopped at the flavor peak, so that finest tasting flavor can't escape; (4) Thru-and-thru baking brings out the full, delicious taste of every morsel. Dresvelopes Save Clothes From Mussing

They Keep Out Dust and Are Convenient for Travel.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

Dresvelopes are here to save our clothes. They're dust-proof, moisture proof containers which are guaranteed to keep a new dress looking like new for many months to come.

An F street store is featuring them this week. The garment is placed on a hanger stretched to full length and put into a dresvelope. Side flaps are closed and tied to keep the dress in a firm position. In this way a frock may hang for months at a time in the closet and never suffer a single wrinkle. Or it may be folded and packed for traveling and never show signs of hard usage.

All of which make dresvelopes the most convenient things in the world for overnight, week-end, or motoring trips, or for storing summer clothes.

Bright berets and scarfs are Dame Fashion's pets this season. She has seen to it that they're sold at prices well within the schoolgirl's reach and in colors which will blend with her fall outfits.

An F street shop has a new supply made of rabbit's hair. They come in an assortment of polka dots and stripes in rust and brown, orange and brown, green and black, red and black. Any of these worn with suede jackets or polo coats will turn a somber outfit into a colorful ensemble. Price $1.95.

Playing cards are always welcome gifts. No sooner do store windows take on a merry look with jolly displays of toys and dolls, no sooner do holly wreaths, red bells and tinsel stars decorate the interiors, than the counters lure us with their loads of cards.

An F street store has some specials—two decks for a dollar—which have attractive monograms against a modernistic background. These will prove particularly useful during the holidays when there are many parties, and much borrowing of cards. The hazard of misplacing or losing them is automatically offset by the tell-tale initials which stamp them as yours.

The suede cloth handbags in a downtown store have a lot more than their sleek finish to brag about. They're made of durable material which wears for years. Their style adapts them to sport or afternoon wear, and their roominess enables them to carry the usual assortment of lipsticks, rouges, and compacts without bulging.

Many bags look very well from the outside, but lose their appeal on closer scrutiny. Not these! A satin lining of the finest quality makes them thoroughbreds from the inside out.

The lounging pajamas featured at a Twelfth street store are ideal costumes. A pair of rose angora woolen ones make a person yawn, stretch, and utterly relax to look at them. Another pair of brown and rust jersey, with the zipper fastening up the front, look every inch a lounging model.

There are several different styles, a variety of colors, some with short sleeves, others with long sleeves, all of them warm, comfortable and serviceable.

Metal bracelets, which look as though they are studded with rhinestones and aren't, are among the new jewelry mirages.

These consist of six baguette metal bands held together with an onyx large enough to carry one initial. (The store will do the lettering free of charge.)

Several features make these bracelets extremely delightful bits of jewelry. First of all, they're practical—no danger of breaking or losing the stones (it's hard to believe there aren't any!) In the second place, they're conservative enough to suit almost any type of dress. And thirdly, they're only 59 cents.

The new dressy sweaters are delightful combinations of soft wool and metal threads. There are several in a downtown department store which have a Parisian smartness about them we shoppers can't resist.

A black one with silver threads worn with a black satin or velvet skirt would make any one of us look like a fashion plate. Another tan and tinsel beauty would be ravishing with a brown skirt. They also come in peachglow, canary yellow, and white, all of them with attractive pearl clips at the neck.

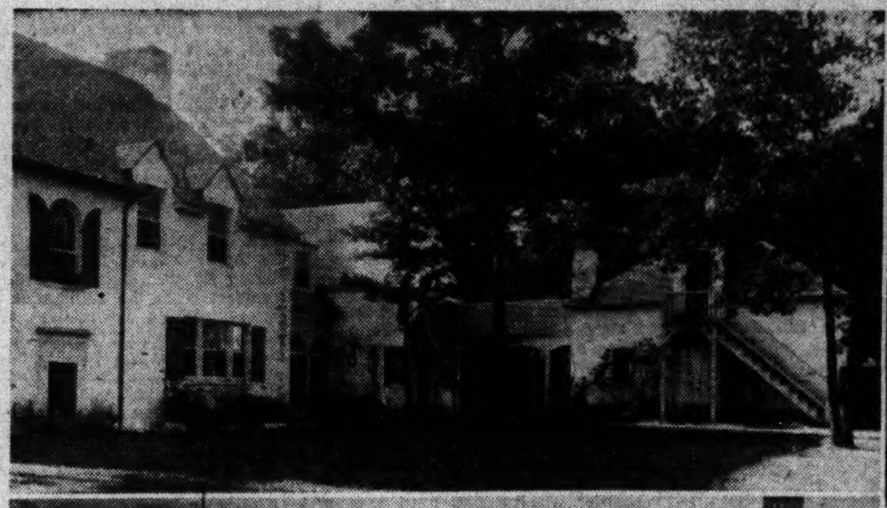
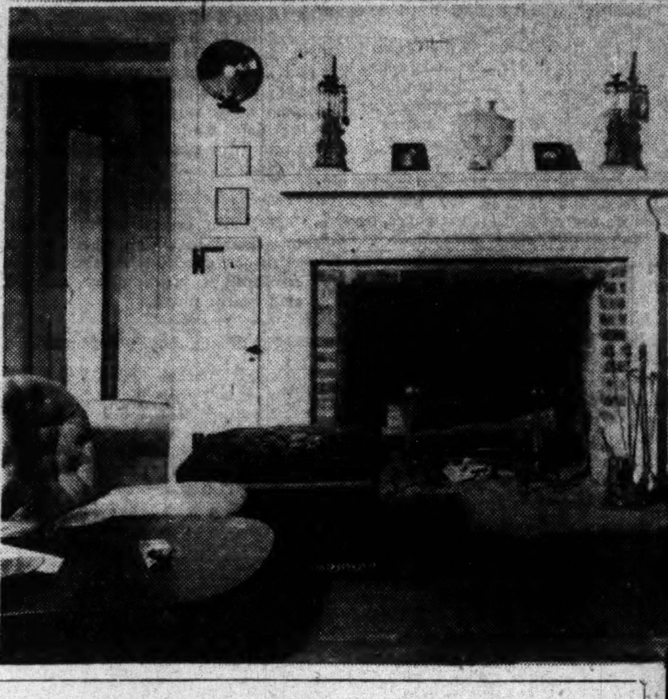
St. Mary's Auxiliary Meets.

Leonardtown, Md., Dec. 7 (Spl.). There will be a meeting of the auxiliary of St. Mary's Hospital held here on December 12, at which the final plans for the Christmas dance will be completed, and committees appointed. The next meeting will be on January 9, 1934.





Mrs. William G. Hill's beautiful Riverdale home is as ancient as an heirloom, as modern as a 1934 model car. She and her husband fulfilled their dream of an "historic mansion" by picking up rare old bits of tumbled-down houses and having them fitted together into this remarkable place.

Capital War on Rats Needs Housewives' Cooperation

Major St. Austell Asks Women to Help Rid City of Pest.

The rat war that is on in Washington is a serious business. It is decidedly not a laughing matter. And it requires the cooperation of every housewife in the Capital.

Maj. Francis St. Austell, of the Transient Relief Bureau, who is responsible for sending into the sewers, cellars and subterranean regions of the city the first battalion of 100 men to fight the sharp-toothed, villanous-eyed rodents, made clear in an interview yesterday how very grave the Washington rat menace is.

"The winter colony of Washington rats are just moving in on us," he said, "and our most strenuous efforts may not suffice to stem the invasion.

"Rats by the millions are already here to spend the season, taking up their comfortable abode in the markets, the cold storage houses, the wharves and private homes of the city.

Do Not Carry Plague.

"It is not the bubonic plague that they carry. That rumor is ridiculous. Washington's rats are not of that variety.

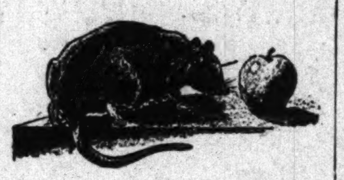
"But at a time when men, women and children are without enough to eat, a single rat can destroy as much food in a day as would be needed to sustain a human being.

"This city can not afford to maintain rats, millions of them, in luxury, while humans are having a hard time keeping body and soul together.

"Yet, if 500 rats were exterminated daily, it would be insufficient to stem the ever increasing tide.

"Rats," Maj. St. Austell explained, "live and move in large colonies, migrating twice yearly. The winters they spend in the cities, because the houses are warmer and their food easy to obtain. In summer they move out again into the open spaces.

In dealing with them, he pointed out, man has to do with a shrewd, sharp, clever enemy, difficult to eliminate, voracious of appetite and a wanton vandal of private and public property.



The rat hordes gnaw through and utterly destroy beams, rafters and building supports, undermining the foundations of homes and office buildings. More than $160,000,000 worth of property is destroyed by rodents in the United States yearly. Some of those recenlty captured in the rat crusade are more than a foot long, with powerful teeth and thick fur to protect them from the cold.

But Maj. St. Austell is determined to make short shrift of them. He has appointed Mr. Louis A. Lindcop, rate exterminating expert, to lead the first forces of men into the field of action. And he is determined to stop at no measures that might rid the Capital of its subterranean pest.

Meanwhile he wishes every woman who believes her house cellar is furnishing a haven for the rats to report it to his office immediately.

Gridiron Takes No Chances on Miss Perkins

(Associated Press.)

The Gridiron boys will be boys, so Mrs. Roosevelt is going to entertain again for the ladies, including Labor Secretary Frances Perkins, Saturday night.

She issued invitations to high women officials, Cabinet wives, Gridiron wives and women of the press, all by their sex barred from the semiannual stag dinner of the club which the President will attend.

On the last such occasion, Miss Perkins, chatting with other White House guests, laughingly said the club would just as well have invited her along with the rest of the Cabinet, for she'd have gracefully declined. She's the only Cabinet member ever omitted.

Finnish Women Active in All Professions, Says Visitor

Miss Nina Strandberg Tells of Their Progress in Her Country.

New York, Dec. 7 (AP).—The only two roles still closed to the women of Finland are those of soldier and priest, said Miss Nina Strandberg, of Helsingfors, Finland, today at the Finnish Consulate.

She is touring this country under the auspices of the International Federation of Business and Professional Women.

"With all our social and political freedom, however," she said, "Finnish women prefer professional and social welfare work, rather than becoming political figures.

"There are many women doctors in our little country of only 3,000,000 Of the 440 dentists, 320 of them are women.

"It is a blanket rule that cashiers be confined only to the feminine sex—in banks, shops or any kind of establishment There are a few, very few, bookkeepers who are men.

"Women are street car conductors, barbers, inspectors and, in fact, almost everything except soldiers and priests.

"However," she said, "there are 70 women now striving to become priests, who have passed all examinations and received their degrees. The ordination ceremony is all that is lacking.

"These women perform any function in the church except christenings, weddings or burials."

She said there were few social clubs in Finland, "because distances are so small that women are constantly in contact with their friends, without the aid of a club. Social life is very much in the home, over the family coffee pot."

"The Finnish woman likes to dress very simply," she said. "Nor does she change her type of clothes with the change of season. On the other hand she does read, and to some extent follow, the fashion magazines of both America and France."

Elman Celebrates 25 Years in America

New York, Dec. 8 (AP).—A comparative young man with a past fondled an old violin today and prepared to fuse that past with the future in an outpouring of rapture.

The young man is Mischa Elman, aged 42. The past includes 25 years of concert playing in America. The night of December 11, in Carnegie Hall he will give a concert that will celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of his American debut.

A quarter century ago he stood on the same stage, a lad of 17 (the wonder-child from Russia, they called him) and astounded the critics with his playing. Before that, in the straw-thatched villages of his native Russia, he had given concerts when he was five years old and then—"a small atom"—had gone on to play at the Russian court and in Berlin, Vienna, London.

A small man, vibrant with energy and with vehement gesticulations he likes to tell anecdotes, followed by gay shouts and pealing laughter.

For instance, ask him for his definition of a genius.

"My daughter Nadya—she's seven—has a definition. She says:

"'My daddy's a genius. Why? Because people recognize him on the street.'

Soft Matlike Powders Excel Heavier Ones

The heavier face powders are taboo, today.

Once upon a time they were chosen because women thought they stayed longer. And so they did, in the days before the smooth foundation cream took its place in the cosmetics cupboard.

Now, instead of the heavy, pore-clogging variety of powder, lighter ones of soft and silky texture are to be preferred. They tone down shine and give to the skin a soft mat finish without sealing the pores and making it impossible for the skin to "breathe."

There is scarcely one woman in a hundred to whom the dead white powder which grandmother used is becoming. Women have learned that powder must harmonize perfectly with their natural skin tone. They hunt about for the right shade. If they can't find it ready prepared, they mix their own, or have it blended at powder shops.

The way powder is applied has much to do with its becomingness. It must never be ground into the skin. Pat it on The place to start is with the neck. Work up over the face, forehead and temples. Dust it on generously. Then gently smooth the excess with another puff, a fresh pad of cotton or a powder brush.

Mrs. Sabin's "Wets" Disband After Victory

Her 400 Women Leaders From All Parts of Country Hold Farewell Meet.

In her farewell address to the 400 women leaders in her army, gathered from 43 States and the District of Columbia, Mrs. Sabin told them that dissolution of the organization "does not imply any abatement in the responsibility of its members or leaders toward decent liquor control laws."

"Moderation in tax levies is essential if we are to be rid of the bootlegger," declared Mrs. Sabin. Elimination of the bootlegger she cited as one of the most important tasks confronting the States "in the restoration of orderly social life."

"This can only be done," she said, "if the governing authorities of each State take extreme care in avoiding the imposition of State taxes, be they excise or license," which might result in "the price of legal beverages being raised so high as to afford the bootlegger a chance to compete with a legitimate trade."

"We must bear in mind," she warned, "that that element—the spawn of National prohibition—is today hopeful of and intent upon establishing itself in the liquor traffic," under the new regime.

"The moral tone of drinking must be raised from the illicit, behind-closed-doors excess of the prohibition era to that of a temperate, decent and respectable social custom.

"As a very wise man once said to his son: 'The only important thing about drinking is that it should not be important.'"

Mrs. Sabin's address followed a four-hour session devoted to hearing reports from State organizations.

I Get Over It.

By Katherine Smith.

I brought the salt of seven seas
To line my mouth
With bitterness, and stole the winds
That hurried south,

To pull my ragged hair, but now
They will not blow—
The salt upon my lips is still
Not mine to know.

Builders Combed Seaboard For Most Ancient Materials

From New England to Virginia, They Culled Rare Timbers, Beams, Doors, Fireplaces, Hardware, Bricks and Panelings.

A historic house that is only two years old! Impossible? Not at all. The house is the River road place of Mr. and Mrs. William G. Hill (better known as just the "Billy" Hills).

Though the Hill home is so new, all of its materials are at least a hundred years old, with the exception of the roof slates. Hardware, bricks, doors, panelings, furnishings—have been picked up all along the Atlantic Seaboard from New England down to Virginia. It took a couple of years to get all this material together, but once it was assembled, the Hills were fully equipped to fulfill their dream of having a new house about a century old!

The wrecking of the old section of Washington near the Capitol to make way for the new Government buildings provided an excellent hunting ground for young Mr. and Mrs. Hill. Here they found the old bricks and the wide, irregular flooring for their home. The old John Marshall house contributed the uniquely paneled doors and pine paneling used on the first floor of the Hill house.

Down in an old Maryland farm house they found the heavy hand-hewn beams now used in their living room. Driving through another section of Maryland they discovered a farmer committing the sacrilege of chopping up some old beams for firewood. These beams, too, were promptly annexed and now appear in the tap room of the River road house.

From Baltimore came some more classically paneled doors—these from the wrecked house of a prominent physician. From New England came two other doors, these from an old Connecticut farm house which had belonged to Mrs. Hill's grandmother. At Narragansett, R. I., the Hills found an ancient battened door—just the thing for their tap room. The doors from Baltimore and Connecticut are used on the second floor.

Just as an example of the ingenuity used—who would think an old Virginia barn that fell over because it couldn't stand up any longer would mean anything to folks planning a new home? But it did to the Hills. The moss-covered, warped shingles of the old barn made an ideal roof for the Hill "spring house" which shelters their well and pumping apparatus.

Ancient Hardware.

The wrought iron hardware used throughout the house was collected bit by bit through New England, the hinges being of the fine old "H" or "H and L" types. This latter shape, tradition says, is a relic of Puritan piety, the "H and L" being supposed to stand for "Holy Lord."

One of the great advantages of having a new "old house" as against modernizing an old house for modern needs, is that you can put in all of the newest conveniences without rending your structure apart like a surgeon performing a major operation.

Thus, the second floor of the Hill house with its five bedrooms and play room, has four bathrooms, something that would be almost impossible to achieve in a really old house. Incidentally, these bathrooms all have wooden floors. Mrs. Hill said:

"Tiled bathrooms cost so much and aren't really necessary. Our four bathrooms didn't cost any more than two tiled bathrooms would have. Also, the wooden bathroom floors are more suitable, since the house is supposed to reproduce an old Connecticut farm house."

Air-conditioned heating that does not require radiators is used. This modern type of heating can also be used the other way round to cool the house in summer.

As for closets, they are everywhere in a profusion never to be found in any sure 'nuff old house. Every bathroom has its own closet for towels and the like. There are huge linen closets. Some of the bedrooms have closets that are literally almost as big as the rooms themselves, since they utilize all the space under the slope of the roof.

Panel Closet Doors.

Mrs. Hill's room is the perfect example of what can be done in providing closet and cupboard space. At one side of the room is a paneled arrangement with three doors, all opening into the same big closet. Over these doors are small brass-knobbed panels that open into storage space for blankets and comforts. At each side of a deep windows embrasure are cupboards that provide shelf space for all sorts of gadgets. The bathroom attached to this room is a big, roomy affair, with an adjoining dressing room, another luxury hardly to be found in an ancient manse.

The upstairs arrangement is very pleasant. One wing was planned for the use of the Hill children. Half way down the hall is also a wide alcove space, very airy and sunny, which has been set aside as the children's play room and study.

Amusing reminders of scores of "antique hunts" on the countryside and in city shops seem to cluster around the remarkable collection of early American furnishings.

There are plenty of heirloom pieces and old family portraits, too.

The Hills take their greatest pride, though, in their "tap room" opening off the living room. It is a prize room. Its flagged floor, brick walls and "cooking fireplace" are a grand setting for a collection of the quaintest of the household items used by our ancestors.

The "cooking fireplace" is not only a curiosity. It's practical. During a blizzard last year, when the electricity was cut off, the Hill family cooked all their food over its open fire for a day or so. There is an old-time crane for the utensils, plenty of heavy iron pots and pans, a toast holder and a waffle iron (but Mrs. Hill admits that she didn't try making waffles over an open fire), and old unshaded oil lamp.

Cooking Fireplace.

Beside the fireplace is a perfectly usable Dutch oven. Here we also find an old foot warmer, a pewter candle and a brass bed warmer. Over the fireplace and at one side is a tiny cupboard like those in which our great-grandmothers used to keep spices and odd utensils.

There are no end of things in the tap room. A Revolutionary musket and its powder flask hang over the mantel. There are an equally old saber, a set of cock-fighting prints, an old spice box, a pipe rack, a saddle bench, an incredibly old kitchen cupboard. This last the Hills planned to use for a bar, but there was some difficulty about getting running water in the tap room and the thought was given up. Trickiest of all is an old coffee grinder that has been turned into a lamp while its little drawer is used as an ash tray.

There are just four new things in the tap room—a fox head and brush; the radio, a group of riding pictures of Mrs. Hill and her young daughter, Margaret, and a big collection of cups which they have collected at various horse shows. These last are stowed away out of sight, but Mrs. Hill plans to have a pine trophy case made for their proper display.

Old Butter Churn.

Mrs. Hill has a fine knack for taking old articles and putting them to new uses. Thus she has taken an old butter churn and had it finished and put together to form a sewing box. In a study there is an old dough tray—now a very effective occasional table.

In the living room we find a mantel that will simply "knock your eye out." It was copied from one in an old farm house at Wilton, Conn., with the coziest of little flat cupboards at either side, while overhead are two original circular sconces made of bits of mirror applied to tin. On the mantel is an old candy jar of Sandwich glass and two gilt and crystal girandoles.

Old and new family portraits vie for attention. There is an oil portrait of Mrs. Hill's great-grandmother and a modern pastel of Mrs. Hill's young daughter. Outside in the hall is a portrait of Mrs. Hill's great-great-grandfather, Commander Thomas Truxton, who commanded the U. S. S. Constellation, sister ship to the Constitution.

Other prized belongings include two Hepplewhite dining room tables from the Carlyle house in Alexandria.

Upstairs is a six-legged maple bed, the double of which is in the Metropolitan Museum in New York. And scattered through the house are ancestral mahogany, fiddle-back chairs, stretcher tables, Boston rockers—enough to make a collector of early Americana succumb to envy.

The outdoor layout of the Hill home is graceful and unusual, but still pleasantly simple. A brick pergola that will some day be covered with wistaria leads to the garage, this latter structure having living quarters upstairs which are reached by an outside stair. Directly at the back of the house an old-time double door opens on a sunken tea terrace, partly flagged.

Hawaiian Court Decides Repeal Extends There

Decision Conflicts With Cummings Rule Keeping U. S. Islands Dry.

Honolulu, Dec. 7 (U.P.).—Repeal of the eighteenth amendment is effective in Hawaii as well as the United States, a local Federal court ruling held today.

The opinion superseded that of Attorney General Cummings, who asserted at Washington that prohibition remained in force in territorial possessions of the United States.

Justice Department officials expressed surprise last night when informed of a Federal court ruling in Honolulu voiding the eighteenth amendment in Hawaii. Attorney General Cummings has ruled prohibition would remain in force in the territorial possessions at least until Congress provided otherwise.

Officials said information on the court ruling was insufficient to warrant interpretation, and reaffirmed Cummings' view that repeal of the eighteenth amendment did not repeal the Volstead act in the territory.

Pending scheduled investigation by the Interior Department's solicitor, Congressmen appeared uncertain as to whether war-time prohibition statutes still are applicable to Hawaii.

It was recalled that former Delegate Victor Houston made representations to the House Territories Committee against such special restrictions two years ago.

President Hails U. S. Note Sale

and is its ardent champion, to sit with Secretary of Commerce Roper's group now collaborating with the Senate Banking Committee on possible changes in the act.

These, in brief, were the day's grist, but from them it was generally deduced that the President feels vindicated in gold buying so far as maintenance of public confidence in Federal credit goes, and that he will now feel free to go on with monetary manipulations having gotten by the December 15 financing easily, and there being no more big obligations due until next March 15.

Result Expected.

Monetary critics, however, had not doubted the abliity of the Treasury to raise money at this juncture, especially by offering such a comparatively attractive interest rate on one-year certificates as 2¼ per cent. Save for the first issue put out after the March banking debacle, at 4¼ per cent, the interest rates have been extremely low, down to one-quarter of 1 per cent in one case, on short-term paper.

This was the first issue under the aegis of the new Treasury aid, Earle Bailie, and the rate was put high to make a good showing and erase the aftermath, if possible, of the failure to get the public to take the Treasury conversion bonds after the gold-buying operations frightened off capital.

After telephoning, jubilantly, to the White House, announcing the success of the 2¼ per cent one-year issue, Morgenthau issued this statement: "Preliminary and incomplete reports from the Federal Reserve Banks indicate heavy oversubscription to this offering. Announcement of the total amount of subscriptions and the basis of allotment will be made on or about Tuesday, December 12."

The money was needed to meet December 15 maturity of $473,328,000 in the 4¼'s issued last March, $250,000,000 of three-fourths of 1 per cent certificates, and to meet $114,000,000 interest on the public debt. It will provide a surplus of some $108,000,000 to be added to the Treasury's cash balance of a billion dollars.

Debt Passes 23 Billions.

The operations put the public debt up to $23,575,000,000, which compares with the war peak of $26,596,000,000 in 1919 and a subsequent low of $16,000,000,000.

The Hewes episode is as obscured, so far as the public is concerned, as the Acheson withdrawal.

"I have no comment to make; I'll have to let it go at that," was all Morgenthau would vouchsafe. But he confirmed the fact that he had stripped the Internal Revenue and Secret Service from Hewes' domain.

"I wanted to familiarize myself with the work and I felt that it was best to have direct contact with the men in charge," Morgenthau said of his orders to Helvering and Moran. So Hewes, called a "silk stocking" Connecticut Democrat, who has not been overly popular with the city bosses in Connecticut, will pack up and go back to his closed law office. He and Acheson were close friends, both being from Connecticut originally.

The departure of Hewes is not part of the "Young Liberal" revolt, for he was content and expected to remain indefinitely. Morgenthau's intimates stress the point, however, that he has a right to have his own appointees under him, and that he especially wants some advisers who are expert on commodity dollars and other monetary matters.

"Trained Men" Sought.

Mr. Roosevelt is also said to be eager to install men trained in finance, rather than solely in the law; this further betokens to outside observers a determination to go on with dollar depreciation as part of the program to achieve something close to the 1926 price level. Still another sign is the political satisfaction expressed by leading Roosevelt Democrats in the Administration over the alleged ineffectiveness of the monetary critics.

Moreover, leading Republicans are counseling against such attacks as the last Republican National Committee blast at the Administration, and are talking about early reorganization of the commitee. Thus Senate Republican Leader McNary and House Republican Leader Snell remain silent and dubious about the timeliness or strategy of the last Republican committee onslaught.

Rainey Certain House Will Act On Louisiana Seat Question

Issue May Be Placed in Hands of Election Committee.

(United Press.)

Whether the House of Representatives will become involved in controversy over Huey Long depended yesterday on outcome of a factional fight in the Sixth Louisiana Congressional District.

Prior to announcement by Mrs. Bolivar E. Kemp that she was willing to forget her "election" to the Sixth District vacancy Tuesday if anti-Long groups opposing her would permit a general primary, Speaker of the House Rainey predicted that the question of her right to a seat would "undoubtedly" be looked into by the House.

Mrs. Kemp was supported by Senator Long. The legality of the election had been questioned by "anti-Kingfish" factions because no primary had been held as required by State law.

Should the Long opposition turn down the resignation offer and Mrs. Kemp appear before the House on opening day to be sworn in, it was indicated that the case would be turned over to an elections committee.

It was expected that the anti-Long group, if it refuses Mrs. Kemp's offer, would hold a "rump" election. The House committee then would be faced with choosing between Mrs. Kemp and such a potential contestant.

The committee's recommendation to the House would result in a "showdown" vote, with party lines severed and the possibility arising of Long losing out because of his party irregularity.

Rum Import Control Group Is Given Title

AABI Constituted Code Authority for Foreign Supply Quotas.

Proving the infinite possibilities of the alphabet, the A. A. B. I. yesterday joined the numerous Government and quasi-Government organizations designated by mystic letters that only the initiate are able to interpret.

The new organization is the association of liquor importers that will be one of the three bodies formed to supervise distribution of alcoholic beverages under the new deal, and the letters stand for the "Association of Alcoholic Beverage Importers." Other letter combinations will shortly designate the separate groups that will represent American distillers and those who will blend domestic with imported products.

Speaking for the A. A. B. I., John A. Rainier and Ellery P. Mann, members of the temporary code authority for importers, expressed appreciation for the "fair and reasonable" treatment that they have received from the President's special interdepartmental committee on liquor control.

"While we are still 'not sold' on the quota idea, Ray C. Miller, of the A. A. A., and Joseph H. Choate, jr., chairman of the Federal Alcohol Control Administration, have explained its necessity in a manner that has taken the curse off the measure," Mr. Rainier said. "The quota allotment idea will greatly hamper individual businesses, but since a more equitable plan has not been developed we are confident that the system will eventually work out for the best interests of the importers.

Rainier and Mann emphasized that they are members of a "temporary" code authority for the importers who will shortly call a meeting, probably in Washington, for the election of permanent representatives under the conditions provided in the code of fair practice for the A. A. B. I.

Firm to Deny Code Violation

Laundry at Silver Spring to Resist Charges at NRA Hearing.

Charges that the Morningside Laundry Co., of Silver Spring, Md., is violating its NRA code will be answered Monday at a NRA hearing, G. A. Wood, president, said yesterday.

The laundry is one of four Washington and suburban dry cleaning establishments charged with cleaning suits for less than 95 cents.

Wood declared the Morningside Laundry heartily indorses the recovery program and at present it is operating under the temporary code established for the laundry industry.

"In our dry cleaning department we are paying as a minimum wage a higher figure than that prescribed for the dry cleaning industry. * * * The code selling prices fixed for the Washington trade area were temporary and subject to reconsideration after they had been in operation for 30 days," Wood said.

Britten Claims Liquor Taxes Are Excessive

(Associated Press.)

A warning that skyrocketing liquor prices might destroy the "principles" of repeal was given last night by Representative Britten (Republican), Illinois. He said:

"Prohibition is not dead. It is only starting.

"Professional prohibitionists in every State of the Union are attempting to write into the laws such extreme restrictions upon drinking that it will be but a short time when most of us will be patronizing speakeasies and exclusive clubs for a drink and a little wholesome relaxation, because of excessive State and Federal taxation and regulation.

"The old-fashioned bootlegger will become a purveyor of good, untaxed liquor. He will pay no city, State or Federal license or taxes.

"The hip flask will be more popular than ever, and once more we will become a Nation of cheaters.

"Real temperance will prevail when the novelty is taken out of drinking and when liquor is cheap, plentiful and good."

Britten mentioned his own State of Illinois as an example, saying:

"Illinois has been a haven for bootleggers and speakeasies for nearly 15 years, and now gives every promise of continuing in this direction because Gov. Horner and Mayor Kelly of Chicago appear unable to agree upon legislation for the common good."

The Most Rev. Michael J. Curley, Archbishop of Baltimore and chancellor of the university, will celebrate the solemn pontifical mass which is sung on the occasion of patronal feasts. The ceremony of investiture will take place before the mass, with Archbishop Curley investing Dr. Ryan with the purple robes of his title. The Rev Dr. Edward G Fitzgerald, O. P., will read the papel brief, and Archbishop John G. Murray, of St. Paul, Minn., will preach the sermon.

Among the guests will be Dr. Ryan's two sisters, both sisters of St. Joseph, Sister Constance, of Fargo, N. Dak., and Sister Mary John, of Grand Forks, N. Dak., and his brothers, the Very Rev. Lawrence F. Ryan, rector of St. Paul's Cathedral, St. Paul Minn., and Maurice Ryan, of the same city.

The new monsignor is a native of Minnesota, where he attended St. Thomas Seminary at St. Paul, and was ordained a priest in 1898. Pursuing graduate work at Catholic University, he received the degree of doctor of divinity in 1906. He became dean of the school of sacred sciences in the spring of 1933, when Msgr. Filippo Bernardini was recalled to Rome by Pope Pius XI.

Dr. Ryan is also director of the department of social action of the National Catholic Welfare Conference and holds the Francis A. Drexel chair of moral theology at the university.

Divorce Given Wife Who Filed No Application

Complaint Stirs Lawyers' Inquiry Into Alleged Mexican "Mill."

Investigation of the conduct of several alleged agents here of the so-called "Mexican divorce mill" was launched yesterday by the grievance committee of the District Bar Association following complaints by a woman that she had received notice she had been awarded a divorce for which she had not applied.

This woman took her complaint to Miss M. Pearl McCall, assistant United States attorney, who referred the charges to the committee. The only charge possible against the attorneys involved, it was explained, was that of unethical conduct.

Mexican divorces have withstood the challenge of the District Supreme Court until some one, necessarily an interested party, such as an aggrieved wife or husband, has complained of them. Until such a complaint is made the divorces are entitled to constitutional "full faith and credit."

The present complaint is that the laws of Mexico have been violated in the procuring of the divorces. These laws require certain citizenship rights and some states require property holdings. The latter requirement can be easily met by taking a small holding in a realty concern.

Miss McCall now has before her the case in which a husband procured a divorce on his wife's complaint, when, it is charged, she knew nothing of the affair. There is a minor child to complicate matters.

The only action possible under existing circumstances is that the "agents" here may be asked to explain their connections with the ring

Choosing the Right Contract.

When a Bridge player is so fortunate as to pick up a hand containing all the Aces and a seven-card major suit headed by the Ace-King-Queen-Ten, he probably should not be greatly blamed for assuming that he has a fair play for the tricks. The basic assumption is sound, but even with this wealth of honors and playing tricks there is no occasion for opening the bidding by undertaking a Grand Slam contract which may be defeated through some of the quirks of distribution, or by undertaking a Small Slam contract, which may be inadequate but which of course, partner can not be expected to raise.

Fortunately Contract players holding such hands as these have available a sure means of gaining some information as to distribution. This method is the Opening bid of two in a suit, which assures that partner will respond until a game contract is reached.

The hand below, which is an illustration of the tremendous advantage of exchanging information, occurred in a recent weekly competitive Duplicate Bridge game between the Melbourne and Chesterfield Bridge Clubs of St. Louis, Mo. It was submitted to me by Mr. S. J. Harbaugh with the request for me to give him my opinion of the correct opening bid. This I have already done in the opening paragraph, but the question of the correct final bid is so much more interesting that I give the hand below, together with the correct Rubber and Duplicate match-point Bridge bidding:

East, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

North: ♠ 8 ♥ 7 ♦ Q 7 6 5 2 ♣ J 10 8 6 5 3
West: ♠ Q J 10 7 6 5 2 ♥ 5 ♦ J 9 3 ♣ 9 2
East: ♠ A K ♥ A K Q 10 8 6 3 ♦ A K ♣ A K
South: ♠ 9 4 3 ♥ J 9 4 2 ♦ 10 8 4 ♣ Q 7 4

The correct bidding of this hand in a rubber game would be: (Figures after bids refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

East	West
2♥(1)	2NT(2)
4♥(3)	4♠(4)
4NT(5)	5♠(6)
5NT(7)	6♠
7♠(8)	Pass

1—The conventional Opening Forcing bid of two in a suit.

2—The conventional response showing a hand containing one-plus honor-trick or less.

3—The Jump Trump Rebid showing a nearly solid trump suit with not more than one loser.

5—This is not a sign-off but is the conventional Four-Five Notrump bid.

6—This is not a minimum response. If West's hand were no better than five spades to the Queen-Knave-Ten, he would respond with five hearts as a sign-off bid, even with the singleton in his hand.

7—This bid with the preceding bid by East shows all four Aces.

8—Obviously this is the best final contract from the standpoint of safety. While it involves the sacrifice of honors if played at notrump or if played at hearts, such minor consideration should have no sway in Contract Bridge.

At Duplicate play, with match-point scoring, the problem is much more difficult. In fact, I am inclined to believe that with correct bidding East and West would reach a contract of seven notrump, which, of course, is inevitably defeated 1 trick. This is one of the differences between rubber play and Duplicate play which brings to the surface a serious fault in Duplicate. Artificial and unnatural values are sometimes placed upon immaterial things.

Tomorrow's Hand.

If South opens with the bid of one heart, to which North responds with one spade, what should be the subsequent bidding by the North and South players?

East, Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.

North: ♠ Q 9 8 7 5 4 3 2 ♥ 8 ♦ 6 5 4 ♣ Q
West: ♠ — ♥ K J 5 3 2 ♦ A Q 3 2 ♣ J 8 5 3
East: ♠ K 10 6 ♥ 10 7 6 ♦ 10 9 7 ♣ K 10 9 2
South: ♠ A J ♥ A Q 9 4 ♦ K J 8 ♣ A 7 6 4

The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

Treasury Gets PWA Award For Buildings

Extension of Warehouse Included in $1,916,667 Allotment.

The Public Works Administration yesterday allotted to the Treasury Department a total of $1,916,667 for building construction to include an addition to the Federal Warehouse, Ninth and D streets southwest, into which the Supervising Architect's Office will be moved.

A fund of $1,750,000 was set aside for construction of the warehouse addition and to fit it for the architect's office, which is now housed partly in the main Treasury Building and partly in leased quarters. The Government now is paying $51,762 annually for rent for this office.

While a complete study is to be made by Treasury officials of their housing needs, it was stated yesterday that the fourth floor of the main buliding, now occupied by the Supervising Architect's Office, will be remodeled and some branch of the Treasury given the space.

Out of the P. W. A. allotment the Treasury will be given $140,000 with which to remodel the fourth floor of the building. Branches of the Treasury now using rented space will be moved into the remodeled offices.

Among these branches are the Coast Guard, Customs Service and Bureau of Narcotics. No decision has been reached as to which will be moved to the main buliding, it was stated.

In addition to these allotments, $15,500 was allotted to aid in construction of a chemistry building at Howard University. An award of $11,167 was made for repairs to a heating plant at the National Training School for Boys.

Chase Hearing Ends With Big Losses Shown

$30,000,000 Dropped on Rail Shares; McCain Airs Couch Loan.

By Martha Dalrymple.

Testimony was presented to the Senate Banking subcommittee yesterday that losses of $30,000,000 were sustained in two syndicates in Seaboard Airlines securities by a group of banks and individuals, including Norman H. Davis, American Ambassador at large; Harvey C. Couch, a director of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and Charles S. McCain, chairman of the board of the Chase National Bank.

The committee also received testimony that Couch has had large loans outstanding with the bank ever since he has been on the R. F. C. and that during that period his Government agency has made loans to railroads which have permitted them to pay obligations of about $10,000,000 to the Chase Bank.

Committee members indicated that the information about Couch's financial relations with the bank would be passed on to the committee investigating R. F. C. loans and that the evidence might be followed up by a separate inquiry.

Hearing of this and other testimony concluded the investigation into the affairs of the Chase Bank and the hearing was adjourned until December 18. At that time the Detroit closed bank situation will be taken up.

Couch Still Has Loan.

McCain, who was on the stand all day, said that at present Couch has a loan of $153,000 outstanding with the Chase Bank, which had been reduced from an original loan of $625,000 that had been made jointly by Couch and C. H. Moses, a lawyer of Little Rock, Ark.

The banker related details of his personal financial relations with the bank, to which he himself is now indebted for $226,000. At one time, he said, he increased his loan by $95,000, of which he paid Couch $60,400 for personal obligations. Couch, in turn, paid the bank $36,690 of this money as a payment on his loan.

The bright moment of the day occurred when McCain denied that he had been responsible for the 21-day Senate filibuster conducted by Senator Long against the Glass banking bill.

Senator Glass, who had intimated as much the day before rushed to the committee room to answer the denial.

Long Breaks Fast.

Explaining how Senator Long had come to see him in New York the morning after he successfully concluded his filibuster, McCain said they had gone to the senator's hotel to talk to him about Louisiana highway bonds.

"We decided to have breakfast and the senator ordered a dozen oysters, a sirloin steak, French fried potatoes and some vanilla ice cream."

The Virginia statesman, Senator Glass, had no reply to that. But he had a heated comment to make on McCain's statement that the banker respected the senator "not only because of his ability but also because of his age." Glass said of this:

"I wish people would stop referring to the venerable senator from Virginia and stop respecting me for my age."

Whereupon he stalked out to catch a train for home.

McCain recited a list of loans made by the R. F. C. to railroads, all debtors to the Chase National Bank, which permitted them to reduce their bank obligations. Among the roads concerned were the Rock Island, the St. Louis & Southwestern, the Chicago Northwestern, the Baltimore & Ohio, and the Wabash.

Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel, read into the record a letter written by Couch to McCain in August, 1932, in which the R. F. C. director expressed his appreciation of McCain's interest in him.

McCain explained that he had suggested Couch as the man to head a group of Insull properties in Chicago after the crash of the utilities magnate's interests. He said he did not know whether the offer had ever been made or not.

Two Held Conflicting.

A letter from Couch to Chairman Fletcher of the committee, in which Couch said his connection with the investigation might indicate "some irregularities," then was read by Pecora. The R. F. C. director said that in a telephone conversation with McCain he had refused the offer to head the Insull properties because he could not resign his Government post.

Pecora took this opportunity to claim an inconsistency between the statements of the two men, namely, McCain saying as far as he knew no offer was made and that Couch had given him no indication whether he would accept the post, and on the other hand, Couch making a definite statement that he had refused the offer to McCain.

McCain revealed that in addition to his position with Chase National Bank, he is now director of about 12 other corporations, from some of which he is receiving compensation in addition to the regular directors' fees.

He defended his position by saying that he felt he was useful to his own bank by his outside connections. Among these are National Cash Register Co. and the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co.

McCain concluded his testimony with an attack upon the securities act, which he said imposed "too great a risk" upon directors of issuing companies.

New York, Dec. 7 (AP).—Ferdinand Pecora, counsel to the Senate Banking Committee, announced today he had extended the stock exchange phase of the committee's inquiry to 35 stock and curb exchanges throughout the country.

A questionnaire similar to the one sent to members of the New York Stock Exchange more than a month ago has been sent to members of exchanges in practically every large city in the country. A letter accompanying the questionnaire requested the information to be in Pecora's hands not later than December 15.

Maryland Milk Price Claimed Below Costs

Baltimore, Dec. 7 (Spl.).—Taking the farm as a business unit, Edward E. Kennedy, secretary of The National Farmers Union, today estimated the total average cost in fixed charges and operating expenses of a farmer in the Baltimore milkshed is $3,440.69, while his total income is $2,454.08.

Kennedy, resident of Kankakee, Ill., testified during the third day of the hearing before John Henry Lewin, chief of the license enforcement and revocation section of the A. A. A. on the milk agreement for this area.

He offered his testimony in support of an amendment advanced by H. D. Alexander, representing the Maryland Farmers Union, which would fix price per gallon of class 1 and class 2 milk to the farmer at 33½ cents.

The secretary of the Farmers Union arrived at his estimates by applying to the farm the same principles which would be used in examining the operations of a large utility or manufacturing corporation. He estimated milk production should bear 20 per cent of the operating costs.

He pointed out that the productive capacity of a farm is relatively fixed, and that for the farmer to increase his income he must increase the prices of products. Kennedy set the production cost of milk containing 4 per cent butter fat at 30 cents per gallon.

From this figure he made an allowance of 1.6 cents as the differential on butter fat. He set the average salary of the farmer at $103.46 per month. In the five Maryland and two Pennsylvania counties comprising the Baltimore area, Kennedy estimated there are 22,457 farms of an average size of 77.25 acres.

The hearing centered chiefly around two amendments offered by William L. K. Barrett, jr., representing the Independent Milk Producers and Distributors Association, Inc. The Barrett amendments call for a reallocation of the basic or first-class milk on a more equitable basis.

At present, the attorney contended, the basic milk ranges from 40 to 80 per cent of the product. The second amendment would give equal recognition of the independent organization with the Maryland State Dairymen's Association.

McBride Faces Ouster as Dry League Head

Maryland Antisalooners Reported Leading Fight on Chief.

New York, Dec. 7 (AP).—The New York Times says that "a radical change in the leadership of the Antisaloon League is threatened as a result of the repeal of the eighteenth amendment." The fight, the newspaper adds, will be brought to a head at the biennial meeting of the directors in Washington January 3.

Resolutions drawn by the headquarters committee of the Antisaloon League of Maryland and calling for a new general superintendent to replace the Rev. Dr. F. Scott McBride, have been sent to all national directors, the Times says.

The resolutions also are said to provide for the stripping from the general superintendent of his present sole power of nominating State superintendents.

An unnamed spokesman is quoted as saying:

"The league has been a sort of dead center. What is needed most is new leadership that will appeal to the public imagination and enthusiasm."

It is further stated that a movement already has been launched to place Commander John D. Pennington, former prohibition administrator for New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Delaware, in Dr. McBride's post.

The amendments proposed by the Maryland organization are designed chiefly to avoid "the temptation of perpetuation in office."

"If," says the Times, "such an amendment is passed, league directors believe Dr. McBride is almost certain to be ousted. They point out that under the present arrangement the general superintendent is elected by the State directors, whom he himself appoints. Thus it is almost impossible to defeat a general superintendent who wants to succeed himself."

Ballou Reveals Grave Menace In School Cuts

Lauds Local Teachers for Upholding Standards Despite Slashes.

Lack of funds will close 20,300 schools in the United States by April 1, 1934, and one teacher in every four will be receiving less than the minimum NRA wage paid unskilled labor. Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of District schools, told local teachers yesterday.

The estimate is based on a survey just completed by the National Education Association, the superintendent said, adding that Washington is fortunate in escaping such reductions.

Reviewing effects of the depression on education, Dr Ballou declared that if the proposal to charge tuition for high school education is carried out, the American people will be reduced to the status of serfdom and a financial aristocracy will be established. Further retrenchment in education, he warned, will result in voters of such low intelligence that electoral systems probably will have to be altered in order that competent persons can be placed in office.

He congratulated the teachers on upholding the standards of public school education in the District in face of reductions. The teachers applauded the announcement that one item that escaped a cut in the school appropriation was $400,000 for teacher retirements.

"As long as the credit of the United States is good, Washington teachers will be paid their retirement allowance," he said.

Dr. Ballou spoke at Central High School under auspices of the Teachers' Institute.

ShippingBoard Heads Charged With Coercion

(Associated Press.)

Charges that the Shipping Board forced the Dixie Steamship Co. to make "a gift" of 50 per cent of its earnings to the Lykes Brothers' Tampa Interocean Co. in 1930, with resultant absorption of the Dixie and creation of a monopoly in Gulf-Mediterranean shipping, were made to the Senate Mail Investigating Committee yesterday by T. R. Hancock, of Galveston, Tex.

Chairman Black called Hancock to the stand at the end of hearings on the companies controlled by J. M. and J. T. Lykes, during which the Tampa Interocean-Dixie profit-sharing arrangement had been disclosed.

"The owners of the Dixie Co., which operated exclusively to the west Mediterranean," said Hancock, one-sixth owner of the old Dixie Co., "were called to Washington and told by Jenkins (J. Caldwell Jenkins, former vice president of the Merchant Fleet Corporation) and Gendron (U. J. Gendron, administrative assistant to the fleet corporation president) that if we were to retain that operation we would be forced to give the Tampa Interocean 50 per cent of all net income.

"This I considered most unfair and vicious because that company didn't own one dollar of the Dixie stock or make any effort to develop the company.

"As I view it, it was a gift. I see no more reason for giving it to them than to some preacher. It didn't redound to the credit of the fleet corporation or help the American Merchant Marine. The Government didn't save a dollar through this unusual procedure.

"I protested to Jenkins and Gendron against this unfair and unethical procedure, but as usual received no encouragement. During that period the president of the corporation was being changed every wash day and Jenkins and Gendron were in virtual control."

Big Revue Reverts to Form and Is Better Show—Famous Comedy Team Sundered

"Follies" Has Resumed Form Of Boston Hit

Much Improved as Result; Radio Signs Miss Todd; Theater Gossip.

By Nelson B. Bell.

Having become convinced that it is not a feasible undertaking to revamp the entire two acts of a big musical revue on a scant 12 hours' notice, the courageous and experimental Mr Lee Shubert has restored the routine of the "Ziegfeld Follies" at the National to practically the sequence of scenes, songs and dances that was followed in Boston and Philadelphia.

In fact, this was done on Tuesday night. The immediate result has been to afford local audiences that have attended the revue since opening night a far better performance than was witnessed by Monday's death watch.

Mr. Shubert fell victim to the lust for change that has been the undoing of more than one pretentious production before now. It is said that the best performance ever given of the present "Ziegfeld Follies" was the one in Boston on the occasion of the revue's first presentation on any stage. That is entirely comprehensible.

The late Flo Ziegfeld himself underwent a similar experience with his production of "Hot-Cha," given its world premiere in the National Theater here and then taken to Pittsburgh for "improvements" before opening in New York. The best "Hot-Cha" ever seen by any audience was the one that went on here opening night.

Died of "Improvements."

Pittsburgh's "improvements" turned out to be anything but that and when the show opened on Broadway it was hailed as something not up to the usual Ziegfeld standard. It was thereupon restored to as nearly the Washington form as could be remembered and contrived and did considerably better from then on.

That is about what has happened to the present, or Shubert, edition of the "Ziegfeld Follies," with Washington serving as the Pittsburgh of the present course of preparatory sprouts.

What was attempted on last Monday night was a sudden substitution of much of the second act material for much of the first, and vice versa. The net result was utter confusion in the minds both of the members of the cast and chorus and the audience seated out front.

Excellent showman that he is, Mr. Shubert was quick to perceive his error and the routine was promptly restored to its original sequence.

Hampered by Regulations.

There is still much to be done to smooth out rough spots that have not yet polished themselves off. This is not wholly the fault of Mr. Shubert and his associates and their representatives on the stage. A fair share of the culpability must be placed upon the District's fireproofing regulations, which are so stringent as to prevent the use here of much of the "Follies'" loveliest investiture—which, it is claimed, would be ruined by the spraying process to which it would have to be subjected. Thus it follows that Pittsburgh, once again, will see much in this production of which the Capital will not have been vouchsafed even so much as a glimpse.

This, by the way, is not the first time a big production on its way in to New York has been presented locally in something less than its full magnificence, for the same reason.

It surely can not be that fire hazards are so much greater in Washington than in any of the other key cities in the country. If they are, the regulations in force are, of course, correct and should be enforced. If not, they should be modified in such manner as not to work a hardship on touring companies, while still adequately protecting life and property.

Speaking of the National, it is an encouraging sign of the times that the advance mail order sale of seats for both Noel Coward's "Bitter Sweet," next week's attraction, and "The Lake," in which Katharine Hepburn, Frances Starr and Blanche Bates will be seen the week of December 18, far exceeds the average demand for bookings at this season. There were those who feared that "Bitter Sweet," falling between the "Follies" and Miss Hepburn's engagement, might find itself in a tough spot. Such, however, seems not to be the case, thus proving once more that virtue is its own reward—or something.

Mr. Zanuck's New Idea.

A new idea in stage tryouts for screen plays is said to be buzzing about in the active mind of Mr. Darryl Zanuck, and may be tested in connection with the filming of "The House of Rothschild," in which George Arliss will make his debut as a star in Twentieth Century Pictures, for release through United Artists.

It has long been the practice for Mr. Arliss to rehearse the casts of his pictures for a period of at least three weeks prior to the beginning of the actual "shooting" of the scenes. By this method the whole of the action and all of the dialogue is memorized in advance by the players exactly as is done in the case of a stage production.

A Real Stage Tryout.

Zanuck's idea is to complete the full rehearsals and then try the story out at a local theater before audiences before enacting it for the cameras and microphones. With a revolving stage it is felt that it would be a matter of no great difficulty to present virtually all the scenes of the picture in full length.

"The House of Rothschild," incidentally, will have a cast of 80 principals, inclusive of several figures of world prominence.

With Loretta Young, Boris Karloff, Alan Mowbray, Helen Westley, Reginald Owen, Florence Arliss, wife of the star; C. Aubrey Smith and Murray Kinnell already named to play in the picture with Arliss, it is apparent that practically all of the cast, excepting only Miss Young, has had wide stage experience, which would seem to augur well for the success of Zanuck's revolutionary scheme.

Handsome odds, with no visible takers, are offered that Miss Charlotte Henry, the screen Alice in Paramount's Christmas-time release of Lewis Carroll's "Alice in Wonderland," was a very tired young lady last night following the uninterrupted round of exhausting events planned for her entertainment during her one day of personal investigation of such "wonderland" as Washington has to offer. Her next stop in a whirlwind tour of the country is Philadelphia.

"Back Where They Started."

In addition to Miss Henry's gala party last evening at the Mayflower, there was one celebrated also out in Hollywood by Hal Roach in observance of the twentieth anniversary of his entrance into the hazardous business of motion picture production.

A parade of stars who once worked under the Hal Roach banner was a conspicuous feature of the party. Among those on the guest list who at one time or another have served on the Roach lot were such stars of the present as Jean Harlow, Lionel Barrymore, Janet Gaynor, Will Rogers, Lupe Velez, Harold Lloyd and Fay Wray.

Several of them met for the first time since their association on the comedy lot—which seems strange to us in the East, but is no more to be wondered at than that constant fraternization does not go on between employes of the Navy Yard and those of the Bureau of Standards. Many of the West Coast studios are more widely separated than that.

In the stage portion of the entertainment scheduled for first Washington presentations at the Earle Theater today, "The Washboard Serenaders" have ben replaced by the Three Miller Brothers, "Six Feet of Syncopation," hot from the Harlem Cotton Club Revue. Not that it matters, since you haven't seen it yet!

Miss Todd Toddles Along.

That long-standing and popular comedy alliance between Zasu Pitts and Thelma Todd seems definitely to have gone by the board.

Scoring a talent scoop after spirited bidding with other studios, RKO-Radio Pictures has signed Thelma Todd to a long term contract. This studio is reported to have ambitious plans for her, with probable stardom in the offing.

The agreement, announced yesterday by Pandro S. Berman, acting production chief during the absence of Merian C. Cooper, provides for Miss Todd to appear exclusively in RKO-Radio Pictures.

First Vehicle.

As her first assignment under the new contract, the blonde actress probably will play the feminine lead in "Strictly Dynamite." Maurine Watkins has been signed to adapt the stage play by Robert Colwell and Robert Simon for the screen, and is to start work on the script immediately.

The story concerns a radio gag man who learns about life and women from too much prosperity.

Negotiations for the contract which brought Miss Todd into the RKO-Radio fold exclusively began while she was appearing opposite Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey in "Hips, Hips, Hooray."

Physiology Class.

Judging from the advance "still" photographs of "Hoopla," opening today on the screen at Loew's Fox, rather less stigma than usual will hereafter attach to the accusation of being Bow-legged!

Former Resident Goes Hollywood!

The couple, Edward and Rose Bates, tried to end their own lives after their son had died.

Passersby found the couple almost unconscious in their automobile on a lonely road near here. Beside them in the front seat was the body of the son, dead of knife wounds.

Criticism of New Deal Errors Held Justified

New York, Dec. 7 (AP).—James A. Emery, general counsel for the National Association of Manufacturers, declared today "we will never surrender individualism for ragged collectivism."

"No group," he said, "has felt keener sympathy with the Chief Executive nor made greater sacrifices to make the New Deal effective than the American manufacturers." He added, American industry has a great stake in the success of the recovery act and can not afford to adhere blindly to identified error.

England Holds Irish by Force, Says De Valera

Challenges Britain in Wire to A. P. to State if Separation Means War.

(Copyright by Associated Press.)

New York, Dec. 7—Eamon De Valera, President of the Irish Free State, today declared in a cable to the Associated Press that England is keeping Ireland within the British Commonwealth by threatening force of arms.

He asserted that but for this threat the Irish people would be free within 24 hours.

"While relations between the two countries rest on the basis of force," continued De Valera, "there can be no real understanding, no real friendship between us and the British people.

"For 750 years Ireland has striven to win back her independence. She will not cease now."

The president's message was in answer to a request that he declare his position in view of England's latest refusal to discuss the age-old question of Irish independence.

Challenges British.

This issue, which neither diplomacy nor the boggy battle fields of Ireland have solved, cropped up the other day, partly because of the insistent demands of many of De Valera's followers that he establish a republic forthwith.

The president once more demanded that the British government make an unequivocal declaration as to whether it would resort to force of arms if the Irish people declared their absolute independence. He had long tried unsuccessfully to get an answer to this query. His fresh effort met with no better result, Downing street declining to discuss what was described as a hypothetical question. At this juncture the Associated Press asked De Valera for a statement of policy.

Asked Britain's Position.

In response, he departed from his taciturnity toward the press. He cabled his answer in no uncertain terms.

De Valera said the Free State had asked J. H. Thomas, British secretary for the dominions, to "say straightforwardly that the exercise by the Irish people of their right to sever the forced connection with the British Commonwealth would not lead to war or other aggressive action by the British government."

"Mr. Thomas has refused to answer," continued De Valera. "He has done so because he knows and the British government knows that the present relationship with Great Britain would not last 24 hours if the Irish people were free to end it."

De Valera Addresses Senate.

Dublin, Irish Free State, Dec. 7 (AP).—President Eamon De Valera, speaking tonight in the Free State Senate, said his latest dispatch to London sought to clarify the right of the Free State to secede from the empire, but "the British government ran away from it."

"On every occasion that that question has been put straight to them, they have balked us," he said.

Early Passage Of D.C. Liquor Bill Predicted

Rainey Urges "Adequate Hearings" to Insure Wise Measure.

Speaker Henry T. Rainey said last night he favored "adequate hearings" on the District liquor control bill before the measure reaches the House floor.

He said he has no criticism of the District Commissioners "for taking all the time they need to consider the measure."

"A bill of that type should not be hastily drawn, and I am in sympathy with efforts of officials to study the law from every angle," he said.

He predicted prompt passage when the bill is presented to the House January 4. Arrangements to call the measure up on the second day of the session were published in The Post when Chairman Mary Norton, of the House District Committee, visited Washington two weeks ago.

The Speaker said he thought the bill should provide for immediate sale of liquor on passage of the legislation.

New Cuba Revolt Rumors Persist

Reliable Sources Agree "Something in Air."

Havana, Dec. 7 (AP).—Rumors of a projected coup de'etat on the part of close associates of President Ramon Grau San Martin were just as persistent tonight as they have been for 24 hours desipte the fact that confirmation was impossible.

Antonio Guiteras, secretary of war, navy and the interior, reported to be the prime mover in the plan, has denied it, but many reliable sources agree that "something is in the air."

The rumors overshadowed all other news in the capital and some reports went so far as to name persons high in governmental circles as coplanners of Guiteras.

Applause Spoils First Night Of Shaw Play for Author

Delightful But Stupid, Says Dramatist of Public Reaction.

London, Dec. 7 (AP).—George Bernard Shaw was so annoyed by the frequent outbursts of applause at the opening night of his play "On the Rocks" that he felt it "spoilt the performance."

The play pictures the fall of a British "National" government, which is succeeded by a dictatorial regime and all action takes place in the famous cabinet room at No. 10 Downing street.

"We shall never get the best out of plays until people learn to listen to a play just as they would listen to a piece of music," said Shaw after he watched the performance at the Winter Garden Theater from a box.

"I have been trying for years to make them understand that. Supposing when an orchestra plays a Beethoven symphony, people burst in with applause simply because they heard a few bars of music which pleased them and the conductor has to wait until the noise has subsided before he can continue?

"It is the same with a play," the dramatist remarked. "Applause is very delightful but very stupid, and it is impossible to get a really artistic and finished play with all these interruptions."

Liberties Union In San Jose Case

Claims to Have Proof to Identify Lynchers.

San Francisco, Dec. 7 (AP).—Asserting he possessed proof of identities of two members of the crowd which lynched the confessed San Jone slayers of Brooke Hart, A. L. Wirin, Los Angeles attorney representing the American Civil Liberties Union, said today he would turn the evidence over to United State Attorney General Homer S. Cummings if California authorities fail to take action.

Los Angeles, Dec. 7 (AP).—The Lawyers Club, in a heated session today, voted 19 to 12 for a resolution demanding the impeachment of Gov. James Rolph, jr., and a few minutes later voted to reconsider the question and submit it by mail to all members.

District Continues Rum Prosecution

Hart Declares Repeal Has No Effect Here Yet.

Regardless of prohibition repeal, prosecution of District liquor law violators will continue unabated until district attorneys are instructed to do otherwise, Dave Hart, assistant United States attorney in charge of prosecution of liquor law violation, said yesterday.

Mr. Hart said several jury cases are scheduled for trial Tuesday. All of the defendants were arrested prior to repeal and have pleaded guilty. Of the 30 defendants, only two were not habitual violators, Mr. Hart said.

Mr. Hart said he did not expect any legal intervention in the present program until prohibition repeal becomes effective in the District.

18 Groups Selected To Aid Jewish Relief

Lausanne, Switzerland, Dec. 7 (AP). Eighteen organizations, nine of them non-Jewish, were selected by the advisory council of the Jewish Refugees' Conference today to cooperate with the governing board in handling relief.

The conference decided to furnish the refugees identity cards when it is necessary for them to move from one country to another.

Ickes to Make Oil Decision

Continuance of Hearings in Balance; Code Need Disputed.

Secretary Ickes, administrator of the NRA oil code, will determine today whether to proceed with hearings on the proposal to fix prices for the petroleum industry, after a study of an agreement made by proponents and opponents of government price-fixing yesterday.

It was reported to the Administrator that the two groups of oil men in Washington conferring on a possible agreement which would preclude the fixing of prices by the Government had drawn up a plan for stabilizing gasoline prices by using an equalization fund to keep excess gasoline off the market.

Backers of the proposal to fix prices in the oil industry are of the opinion that present prices of crude oil are satisfactory for the most part, and that a close supervision of gasoline stocks in excess of demand, accumulated prior to the adoption of the oil code, will have a corrective effective in balancing consumption with demand.

Hazen, Allen Guests of City's Old Inhabitants

Melvin C. Hazen, whose right to call himself a District resident was questioned prior to his appointment as District Commissioner, last night explained his claim of being one of the oldest Washingtonians at the sixty-eighth anniversary dinner of the Association of Oldest Inhabitants at the Raleigh.

Both Hazen and Commissioner George E. Allen assured the veteran Washingtonians that the "door is always open" to residents with suggestions regarding the municipal government operation.

Theodore W. Noyes, president of the Oldest Inhabitants, made a plea for political and financial equality in behalf of the District and the advancement of public works funds for construction of the first unit of the Municipal Center.

He urged that "politically impotent Washingtonians" be raised "from the status of the convict and lunatic to that of an American sovereign power."

Among the guests of honor, besides the Commissioners, were representatives of the several civic and trade bodies.

Council Hears Shore Pastor Score Ritchie

Salisbury Rector Halts Resolution; Defends Townspeople.

Criticism of Gov. Ritchie of Maryland flared up in the convention of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ here yesterday when the discussion turned to recent lynchings.

Bishop W. J. Walls, of the African Methodist Episcopal Church of Chicago, introduced a resolution praising Gov. Ritchie for his recent action in sending troops to arrest alleged lynchers and condemning Gov. Rolph of California for his commendation of San Joe lynchers.

The resolution brought a spirited defense of the Eastern Shore from the Rev. Leonard White, of Salisbury, superintendent of the Wilmington Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Salisbury was the scene of the recent riot.

He asked that the convention not take hasty judgment against a "fine, clean, upstanding people.

Blames Governor.

"If we had a governor of the right type in the executive chair, there would not have been a lynching," he said.

He said the lynching was a direct result of the Euel Lee case. Lee, a Negro, was accused of killing four persons. His execution was delayed for two years after the crime. He said the question of race or color did not enter into the lynching. Despite his defense of the Eastern Shore, he expressed his abhorence of lynching.

The resolution was referred to a committee.

Warfare on the liquor traffic must continue, in spite of repeal, speakers addressing the council said.

Dr. Daniel A. Poling, president of the United Society of Christian Endeavor, declared the liquor traffic should be recognized as an evil of tremendous proportions and urged a fight to reduce the traffic everywhere, secure effective control, eliminate liquor profits and liquor advertising and look to the rural vote to promote dry triumphs. He added:

"We do not recognize in repeal of the eighteenth amendment a defeat of our cause. Dry victories may be expected in local communities, in counties and in States throughout the country."

Wallace Speaks.

Bishop James Cannon, jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, declared the church must continue to declare the liquor traffic should not exist by license or by permission of the governments of the States or of the Nation.

Among other speakers on the closing day of the meeting were Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

"The problem of statesmanship is to mold a policy leading toward a higher state for humanity, and to stick by that policy and make it seem desirable to the people in spite of short-time political pressure to the contrary. True statesmanship and true religion, therefore, have much in common."

Roosevelt Stand Cited.

Green discussed the church in its relationship with labor and with social problems, declaring:

"What agency can more properly and soundly lead in the development of a national social conscience, social outlook and a sense of social responsibility than the church? It occupies a strategic position in all the affairs and activities of human life. For this reason it can not be regarded as a special pleader for a particular class."

In discussing the race problem, Bishop John E. Gregg, of the African M. E. Church, Kansas City, said every Negro in America raised his head yesterday morning and thanked God for President Roosevelt's declaration Wednesday night against lynching.

"Alice of Wonderland" Is Guest of Kiwanis

Miss Charlotte Henry, who played the part of Alice in the motion picture version of "Alice in Wonderland," was the guest of the Kiwanis Club at a luncheon yesterday at the Mayflower Hotel.

Talks on vocational guidance in the District were made by Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, and Miss Mary Leute, of the Social Service Exchange.

Misses Wife

Cripple Awaits Girl Who Vanished 5 Days Ago.

His wheel chair near the window, Clyde Graninger, 28, of 716 Madison street, crippled by infantile paralysis when he was 4, watched anxiously for his wife to return last night, police said.

But Mrs. Eleanor Graninger, 19, who was married to her husband two years ago, was missing still after her disappearance five days ago with 80 cents to attend a movie.

"We were happy, very happy," sighed Graninger yesterday. "I feel some misfortune has overtaken her. You see, she never was gone more than a few hours before."

Surrender? Never! They're the Old Guard

Post Staff Photos.

Kit Carson Post held its first meeting yesterday as the only remaining post in the Department of the Potomac and elected officers amid a display of rivalry which would have done credit to their great-grandchildren. Above—Commander Middleton, who was reelected; John L. Ryan, retiring senior vice commander; John H. Shepherd, departmental commander; E. D. Godfrey, reappointed adjutant and quartermaster, and John M. Kline, new senior vice commander. Below—"Senior" and "junior" of the gathering, E. H. Klemworth, 96, and Commander Shepherd, 84.

Survivors to Carry On as Long as One Remains.

Thirteen men yesterday gathered around an American flag and a pair of crossed swords and pledged that Kit Carson Post, Grand Army of the Republic, shall go on until the last man is beneath the sod.

Thirteen, there were, who with seven comrades unable to attend are the remnant of a group of Civil War veterans organized 65 years ago, which numbered 1,200 at one time. The responsibility of carrying on is greater now for Kit Carson is the only remaining post in the Department of the Potomac Burnside Post, latest of the rapidly dwindling list to turn in its charter, disbanded Tuesday.

Yesterday was the first Thursday in December, the day for their regular monthly meeting, and the cue for Mrs. K. P. McElroy. Honoring the memory of her late father-in-law, Col. John McElroy, who was many years commander of the post, she called for as many veterans as could crowd into her 7-passenger car and drove them to her home at 1412 Sixteenth street northwest.

Mrs. McElroy and Mrs. Myrtle W. Buckles, sister of the colonel's deceased wife, have performed this duty since the demolition of G. A. R. Hall at Fourteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue three years ago. Razing of the old building to make way for Federal development left the boys in blue without a meeting place and even this sole surviving unit might have passed long ago had not the McElroy family offered their home as the new headquarters.

The passing of Burnside Post left J. H. Shepherd, commander of the Department of the Potomac, without an outfit, so yesterday he applied and became a member of Kit Carson. He was, incidentally, the youngest present, stealing this honor from William F. Dorsey by a few months. Both are 84. E. H. Klemroth, who took an active part in a hot discussion which preceded the election of officers, is 96 years old and the post's senior member.

Named for Trapper.

Gen. John L. Clem, 83-year-old "baby" of the post, was unable to attend the meeting. Octogenarians and nonogenarians are about evenly divided. In yesterday's turnout were, besides those already mentioned, Newton Charles, 88; Oliver M. Ong, 87; Dr. Henry A. Johnson, 88; John M. Kline, 88; F. D. Godfrey, 92; John T. Ryan, 86; John W. Blaisdell, 91; Thomas E. Trazzare, 91, and Fred W. Mixer, 90.

Named for the famous trapper and frontiersman, who died only a few months after becoming one of its first members, Kit Carson Post No. 2, was organized 65 years ago in the basement of the Capitol. Starting in 1880, and continuing a half century, its meetings were held in the old structure across the street from the Willard Hotel and a few doors from Poli's Theater.

Only two of their number have died in the past year, and the proud band expects to keep its identity at least a couple of more decades. So long as one of them is left, Mrs. McElroy said yesterday, 1412 Sixteenth street northwest will be their headquarters. Every month they will continue to meet in the old-fashioned stone house, sitting down to the table for dinner and then retiring to the parlor for cigars and reminiscence.

Middleton Reelected.

Capt. John Middleton will continue another year as commander of the post, his comrades voted yesterday. Comrade Kline was chosen senior vice commander, succeeding Comrade Ryan. The longest and whitest beard in the organization belongs to Comrade Godfrey, who cnotinues as adjutant and quartermaster.

Called out of the city by the illness of her daughter, Mrs. Buckles had to forego her part in calling for the veterans at their homes yesterday, a custom which she has seldom missed since the deaths of Col. McElroy and his wife, Mrs. Isabel Worrell Ball McElroy. But she hopes to be in her usual role again on January 4.

For January 4 will be the first Thursday, and if you pass by and see Old Glory planted grandly on the lawn and hear from within such sounds as "When we got to Nashville—" or "Here's where Johnny Reb nicked me at the Wilderness," you will know Kit Carson No. 2 has turned back the clock.

Woman Hurt In Saving Child Dies Suddenly

A woman who risked her own life to save that of a child at a street intersection died last night of injuries she received when struck by an automobile.

Mrs. Helen Beall, 51, of 1372 Columbia road, was crossing the street at Fourteenth and Columbia road on November 21 when a woman auto driver suddenly turned into Fourteenth street, making a left turn. Although she had time to save herself, Mrs. Beall pushed a 9-year-old girl out of the car's path.

Girl Escapes With Bruises.

After being treated at Garfield Hospital, Mrs. Beall was sent home and placed under the care of her husband, Dr. Charles M. Beall, and two other physicians, Dr. Frank Leach, of 1359 Columbia road, and Dr. Henry H. Kerr, of 1744 N street northwest.

While appearing to be recovering, she died last night, presumably of a blood clot in the heart, according to a preliminary diagnosis by Acting Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald.

Driver to Be Summoned.

Mrs. Mary Ellen Tress, of 4605 Highland avenue, Bethesda, Md., the driver of the automobile, will be summoned to the inquest, according to police.

Police said she failed to stop after the accident because of hysteria, but the incident was reported later by Lewis N. Tress, her husband. She was not held at the time.

Mrs. Beall was a member of the Episcopal Church, the Eastern Star, and the Women's Auxiliary of the District Medical Society. Besides her husband, she is survived by a son, Charles M. Beall, jr., a student at American University. Funeral arrangements had not been made last night.

Baltimore Holds District Suspect

James Curtis Accused of Chevy Chase Holdup.

Washington detectives last night went to Baltimore to get James Curtis, alleged robber.

Curtis was arrested in Baltimore on information furnished by a local police circular. Detectives said he was identified by Charles Weinstock, of 2700 Military road, as the man who early on the morning of September 23 robbed him at gun point of $108.

Weinstock said he had backed his automobile into the garage when the robber appeared and robbed him.

Rights of Each Neighborhood On Rum Urged

Unanimously adopting a report on the control of liquor in the District, the Burroughs Citizens Association last night at its monthly meeting in the Burroughs School stressed that wishes of citizens should be respected in any section of the city as to whether or not liquor might be sold in their area.

Amid heated debate as members asked for outlawry of liquor altogether from their section, the report prepared by Thomas P. Baxter, Kenneth P. Armstrong and Wilber S. Finch, was finally adopted. It will be laid this morning before the Commissioners.

The association opposes licenses for exclusive retail sale. It also was moved that no licenses should be granted for the sale of liquor without consent of 80 per cent of property owners within 400 feet of any liquor establishment.

Mrs. Audrey E. Koons, president of the Burroughs Parent-Teacher Association, reported her association had gone on record against the sale of alcoholic beverages near schools.

A resolution also was adopted calling on the Commissioners to erect the cupola on the Taft Junior High School as a measure of unemployment, using civil works funds. Lack of the cupola, it was charged, detracts from the architectural merit of the building. Copies of the resolution are to be sent to the director of the C. W. A. and the chairmen of the congressional committees of the District.

Coast Visitor Robbed Of $187 by Armed Pair

Frank H. Dille, of Spokane, Wash., last night told police he was robbed of $187 by two armed colored men near First and D streets northeast.

One held him around the neck while his companion took a billfold from an inside pocket.

Good morning! Men's shirts have recently become so attractive that they are again an important Christmas giving consideration. We know the size he wears; we have it carefully filed in our office. We even know his preferences. We have a record of the color of the last suit of clothes he bought, so that we know what kind of shirts he needs now. Could any gift be safer?

District Rum Rule Battle Opens Today

Proposed Bill Hearing Will Be Broadcast Over WJSV.

License and Dispensary Plans of Control to Be Debated.

Battle over the regulation of liquor in the District is to be begun at 10 a. m. today at public hearings before the District Commissioners in the board room in the District Building.

Views expressed will run the gamut from prohibition to little or no restriction, according to indications, and the hearings are expected to occupy two or three days, with the Commissioners giving representatives of organizations and individuals opportunity to present their views.

The proceedings will be broadcast by the Columbia Broadcasting Co. over Station WJSV, with some interruptions for the broadcasting of previously arranged commercial programs.

Dispensary Plan Favored.

The Federation of Citizens Associations will be represented by Henry I. Quinn, chairman of a special liquor committee. The federation advocates a system of municipally owned and operated dispensaries which would sell retail to individuals for off premises consumption and to retailers for on premises consumption.

Discussion will center around the measure which was drafted by William W. Bride, corporation counsel, and Vernon E. West, principal assistant, after consultations with members of the House and Senate and various groups, including the Antisaloon League, Federation of Churches, women's clubs and antiprohibition organizations, including the Crusaders.

The bill, which Bride insists does not represent his views, is based on licensing of manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers. It permits sale of beer, wines and liquors by the drink in restaurants, hotels and clubs.

Provides Control Board.

It provides for an alcoholic beverage control board of three, one of whom is to be a woman. The board would be appointed by the Commissioners and would issue licenses and prescribe regulations under broad powers. It could not issue a license for 60 days after it was appointed and qualified.

That delay is expected to meet with criticism as well as other restrictive provisions. Speaker Henry T. Rainey has opposed unnecessary delay in making sale and drinking of liquor legal in Washington and has promised Congress would pass quickly a local liquor law.

Although the Commissioners have withheld comment on the bill drafted by Bride, it is known that some of them feel it contains too many restrictions. It is to be changed after the hearings and sent to the chairmen of the House and Senate District committees as embodying the Commissioners' ideas of what should be enacted for the District.

Several persons have registered with Daniel E. Garges, secretary of the Board of Commissioners, their desire to be heard and others are expected to appear without the formalities of registering. Witnesses will be heard in the order in which they register, Garges said.

List of Registrants.

Those who have asked to be heard include:

Dr. F. W. Buck, executive secretary Federal Dispensary Tax Reduction League, Inc.; James P. Cochran, business manager Night Watchmen's Association; Mortimer L. Richmond; George W. Offutt, Washington Board of Trade; Edwin S. Hege, Chevy Chase Citizens Association; Dr. Hayden Johnson, Board of Education; I. Jacobson, District Grocery Stores; Charles Bidgeon, Society of Friends; George E. Sullivan, Citizens Association of Takoma Park, D. C.; Charles E. Sands, Hotel and Restaurant Employes Alliance; George S. Cullen, secretary Georgia Avenue Business Men's Association; Rufus S. Lusk, The Crusaders; L. J. Esunas.

City's 'Disappearing Prisoner' Appears Again and Is Shot

Mystery of Youth Who Escaped Handcuffs and Prison Van Solved.

Police breathed easier yesterday with solution of the "disappearing prisoner" mystery.

Two headquarters detectives were given credit for bringing to light the whereabouts of Joseph Harley, colored, 22, of Mount Victoria, Md. The luckless Harley was shot through the arm before he was captured.

It was three weeks ago yesterday that Harley was sentenced to jail on charges of stealing automobiles. He was placed in a police van and guarded by U. S. marshals for transportation to the District Jail.

The van arrived. But Harley had disappeared.

Since then an exhaustive search has been conducted. Last week an automobile was stolen on Connecticut avenue northwest. The trail was taken up by Detectives Hugh Robey and Jacob Wolfe.

Yesterday near Tenth and K streets northeast, they sighted the stolen car. Soon a man appeared and started to drive off. He saw the policemen and fled on foot. He was shot after failing to stop.

His first escape was an easy matter, police learned. The handcuffs were large. He slipped them off and disappeared in a crowd of witnesses.

Young Mother Takes Poison.

Mrs. Barbara Carpenter, 23, of 491 H street southwest, last night was in a serious condition at Emergency Hospital, after swallowing poison at her home. Relatives said she has been despondent since the death of her child a year ago.

Women Got Dean's Cash, Court Told

Capital Lawyer's Counsel Says Client Won $15,000 at Dice.

Baltimore, Dec. 7 (AP).—T. Morris Wampler, Washington attorney, never misappropriated any of the money given him by Edward Dean, elderly Washington real estate broker, declared Isaac Lobe Straus, defense attorney, in a preliminary statement today. He used it all, minus proper fees, to settle for the real estate man's activities with four women who had threatened suits, the attorney asserted.

Denial of the Government's charges of misappropriation and false income tax returns, and the depicting of Wampler as a "crap shooter" who won $15,000 with the dice in 1931, featured today's session of the trial of Wampler for evading income tax payments.

Income Questioned.

The Government claimed Wampler in 1930 and 1931 put his income below the proper figure. The chief difference between report and fact, the Government tried to show, was in the amount Wampler was alleged to have received from Dean to settle claims of women and the amounts he actually gave them.

The defense opened today with character testimony by Capt. Edward J. Kelly, of the Washington police, and William P. Dixon, Marshall Hall (Md.) postmaster. Both said his reputation was excellent.

Joseph C. Turco, associated with Wampler in law practice, was the first major witness of the defense. He said that in each instance of the charges brought by the four women, Wampler had wanted to fight the claims, but Dean insisted a settlement ought to be made out of court. This was in direct contradiction to testimony of the real estate man.

$4,550 Check Cited.

One of the items which the Government tried to show went toward Wampler's alleged unreported income was a check for $4,550, which Dean said he gave Wampler for fees and which bears Wampler's signature and a stamp showing it was paid.

Turco said he happened to overhear conversation about this check; that Dean gave it and later complained at the amount; that Wampler then returned it. Straus, in his statement to the jury, said that the defense would endeavor to show Wampler indorsed the check before returning it and never noticed the indorsement, and that Dean used the check himself.

Cronin and Griffith See Small Prospect of Deals by Nats at Chicago

Bosses to Let Other Clubs Act First

Three-Hour Conference Sheds Little Light on Chicago Plans.

Outfielder and Hurler Would Be Welcomed in Goslin Deal.

CLARK GRIFFITH and Joe Cronin engaged in the first of their widely advertised conversations yesterday at Griffith Stadium, and emerged from a three-hour huddle with the announcement that they had nothing to announce concerning the prospects of overhauling the Washington Ball Club

Cronin was willing to discuss the California weather, the athletic situation at St. Mary's College near Frisco, the winter baseball league out there, Lefty O'Doul's trip to Japan and Aimee Semple McPherson. Boss Griffith would talk about the New Charles Town Race Track, his severe head cold, Tod Sloan's greatest ride and Jack Chesbro's famous wild pitch. They shied from discussing the Nats as if they were leperous.

Not Much Hope.

But, by dint of persistent questioning, it was brought out that Griffith and Cronin were thinking seriously about going out to the annual big league meeting at Chicago next week with the hope of trading a utility catcher for a couple of starting pitchers and a brand-new outfielder.

"We're on the spot," said Griffith. "There aren't many clubs, if any, who'll want to do any trading with us. None of them want to strengthen a winner We'll be in Chicago to help ourselves ot anything we can get, but I don't have a lot of hopes. Do we, Joe?"

Joe said he didn't think so, either. Joe's visit to the home folks in Frisco sent him back to Washington as boyish as the day he landed here in 1928. The young manager, who left for the Coast in October bearing all of Washington's world series grief with him, has put the late and lamented series behind him and kinda wishes the 1934 season would start.

"Yep," said Joe, "I think they'll be steering clear of us. But don't mistake me. We've got a championship ball club, don't forget that. Any deals we make won't be for the purpose of getting rid of any players. If we see a chance to help ourselves, of course we won't turn it down."

To Await Others' Moves.

On the suspicion that it didn't require Boss Griffith and Lieut. Cronin three hours to arrive at the above conclusions, further interrogation revealed that the Nats' chiefs were prepared to await the moves of rival clubs before entering into any serious trading on their own account.

"It all depends on how the other clubs line up," said Griffith. "Then we can tell better just what we're able to do. As it stands now, we might stand pat. But if a couple of teams step out and get new talent and it looks as if they will be dangerous, we can't afford to stand by idle."

Both Griffith and Cronin studiously avoided the mention of names of the Washington players which would be carried into the trading mart, if any. But, on the theory that the Nats will not go into the trading session empty-handed and that cold cash will not figure to any great extent in its dealings, the possibilities that Washington players will be bandied about are believed many.

Goose Goslin represents the Nats' most attractive trading bait although Cronin is averse to cutting the Goose adrift unless Washington gains an outfielder in the deal.

Any trades that may materialize will be found on Cronin's own theories as to the makeup of the 1934 Washington Club. It was Cronin who mapped the deals of last winter which brought Whitehill, Goslin, Stewart, Schulte and Russell to the Nats and won him the confidence of Griffith as a shrewd trader.

Irish Will Sign Coach Within Next Week

Anderson Reported Asking for Early Decision on Retention.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Dec. 7 (U.P.). Notre Dame's football coach for next season will be named within the next week, the United Press learned today from an official source.

Father Charles L. O'Donnell, president of the University, who has been under treatment for several weeks at Mayo Brothers' Hospital in Rochester, Minn., is scheduled to return to South Bend Saturday, and at that time, or within a few days, is expected to sign Notre Dame's coach for 1934. Selection of a coach is entirely up to him.

Heartly (Hunk) Anderson, present coach, returned today from New York, and is understood to have told school officials that he wanted an early decision in order to negotiate for another position if he is not retained.

Position Improved.

Anderson's position was greatly improved by Notre Dame's spectacular 13-12 victory over Army in the final game of the season, and many believe that he will be offered the job again.

Friends close to Anderson, however, believe he is dissatisfied with his present arrangement, and will ask for certain concessions before he agrees to a new contract, even if it is offered him.

Spikes Contract Report.

Reports that Anderson already has signed at another school and that he advised Notre Dame authorities before the Army game that he wished to resign at the end of his present contract, were denied today by him.

"I'm waiting to see what they do here," said Anderson.

Although Noble Kizer, Purdue coach, has been repeatedly mentioned as the next Notre Dame coach, it is considered in many quarters that Gus Dorais, University of Detroit coach and teammate of the late Knute Rockne, is the leading candidate if any change is made.

Vairo 1934 Captain.

South Bend, Ind., Dec. 7 (AP).—Notre Dame returned tonight to the system of electing football captains a year in advance and selected Dominic Vairo, of Calumet, Mich., an end on the 1933 team, to be the 1934 football captain.

The team named two honorary cocaptains for the 1933 team—Tom Gorman, of Chicago, center, and Hugh Devore, of Newark, N. J., end. It was the first time since 1926 that a tie resulted in the election.

Ray Brancheau, of Monroe, Mich., was named the most valuable member of the team and was awarded the Gilbert Valuable Player Trophy.

District Boy Appointed.

Princeton, N. J., Dec. 7 (Spl.). Paul M. Hancock, of Washington, D. C., has been appointed manager of the 150-pound Princeton football team, according to an announcement by the University Athletic Association.

Bucknell Game Tonight for G. U. Five

Hoyas Open League Play; 8 Players Are on Trip; Pitt Tomorrow.

GEORGETOWN'S squad of nine basket ball players, under the protecting wing of Coach Fred Mesmer, this morning departs for Lewisburg, Pa., and other points West, on a trip that will have an important bearing on its chances in the Eastern Intercollegiate Conference race. Tonight the Hoyas play Bucknell, the newest addition to the conference, and tomorrow night they stack up against a veteran Pittsburgh five in the Smoky City.

Mesmer is taking the following players on the trip: Ed Hargaden, Jack Crowley, Bill Connors, Jerry O'Connor, Joe Corliss, Tommy Carolan, Jake Young, "Chubby" Parcells and "Sis" Esenstadt. Only eight men were carried on trips last season.

Carolan Important Player.

Though still far from the pink of physical perfection, Carolan is a key man in Mesmer's plans for the games. Carolan's aggressive spirit and his ability to follow the ball make him a valuable man in Georgetown's attack. He will be injected into both games at crucial moments, when a point or two will turn the tide of battle.

The same group that started against Western Maryland Wednesday night in the season's inaugural will oppose Bucknell. Against the Terrors they did not hit their true stride until the second half, but once under way, were unstoppable.

Bucknell's tossers have been enveloped in secrecy since the beginning of practice and Georgetown does not know what to expect. Pitt, it knows, will have a veteran team, but Bucknell is of an unknown—and dangerous—quantity.

Pitt won the conference championship last season with seven wins and one defeat, and Georgetown is credited with throwing the Panthers for the loss. Don Smith, a high-scoring forward, was the only player lost by graduation and Pitt supporters openly predict a second title for their favorites.

Don McCamant has been shifted from guard to forward, and Charley Hughes and Russ Ochsenhirt will hold down the defense berths. "Skippy" Hughes will pair off with McCamant and Claire Gribbs will be at center, rounding out one of the best quints in the loop.

Georgetown figures to have better-than-an-even chance tonight and is rated on even terms against Pitt. While the team did not click at times against Western Maryland, its performance was satisfactory to Coach Mesmer.

Caras Is Winner In Cue Tourney

Chicago, Dec. 7 (AP).—Three players went into first place, deadlocking the world's pocket billiard championship tournament tonight, when young James Caras, of Wilmington, Del., last year's runner-up to the defending champion, Ralph Greenleaf, defeated the veteran Bennie Allen, of Kansas City, Mo., 125 to 71, in 14 innings.

Caras had a high run of 26, while Allen gathered in 4 in one inning.

Princeton Athletes Are Honor Students, Varsity Gridmen Low

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 7 (AP).—Scholarship mixes freely with athletics at Princeton, publication today of the fall honor list disclosed.

Of the 151 students engaging in some sort of fall sport 34, or 22 per cent, won academic honors. The cross-country squad, which placed 4 of its 11 members among the scholars, led the list.

The varsity football squad made the poorest showing, with only 6 of 56 making the honor roll, but the 150-pound football team was second only to cross-country with 17 of its 48 members highly ranked academically.

Among the more prominent athletes listed are Bill Bonthron, the Tiger's great middle distance runner and cross-country captain; Ben Delaney, varsity football end; John Bliss, varsity guard, and John Bales. quarter back.

Pinto Opposes Sonnenberg Tonight

May Have Hard Time With Foe's Flying Tackle at Auditorium.

PROMOTER JOE TURNER'S agony boys will be at it again on the Auditorium mat tonight, with Gus Sonnenberg, the reformed Dartmouth football player, who flying-tackled his way to a claim to the world title, appearing in the feature spot against rough and rugged Stanley Pinto. Pinto downed Sonnenberg recently in Philadelphia, but the former champ says the defeat doesn't count, because his best torture-dealing weapon, the flying tackle, was barred. The weapon will be permitted tonight, though, so it may be said that the local grid season is not ended, after all.

Despite the fact that he has been shorn of his crown, Sonnenberg is still a great drawing card. Gus is generally regarded as the redeemer of the rassle game, for when he decided to honor it with his presence in 1927 it was ill nigh unto death.

Quickly Drew Attention.

With him came his football flying tackle, and almost immediately the game started to recouperate and now it is one of the most flourishing of indoor sports. When Sonnenberg began knocking out foes with his head, including the then champion, Strangler Lewis, the fans began sitting up and taking notice. Other footballers decided to grab for the easy money and soon science was forgotten, variation after variation was introduced by this matman or that, and now the boys put on quite a show. Whereas, performers used to rassle on the mat, now the only time they are down is when they are resting and the mat is merely used as a carpet.

While many now use the flying tackle, Sonnenberg still uses it best. He can strike from short range and can butt effectively from all stances and positions—and when he butts, foes are really butted. Pinto escaped punishment of this type while downing Gus when they last met because the Pennsylvania Athletic Commission ruled the flying tackle back to the gridiron. But Sonnenberg will drag it back on the mat again tonight and, unless Pinto is cleverer than he looked while drawing with Vic Christy last week, he is in for a lot of punishment.

Dusek in Semifinal.

Ernie Dusek was so effective last week against George Manich that he again has drawn the semifinal place on the card. He scrambles with Scotty McDougall, said to be a smooth and clever worker who is perfectly at home when the going is as rough as Rudy usually makes it.

In the other fracases, Eli Fischer takes on Kurt Gabriel, Vic Christy meets one of the villain type rasslers in Charley Strack, while Wladek Zbyszko, who was champion in the days when wrestling was in vogue, rassles a young giant who answers to the name of Jim Clinstock.

Wynne May Take Ky. Coaching Job

Agreement on Terms of Contract Now Awaited.

Lexington, Ky., Dec. 7 (AP).—Chet Wynne, football coach at Auburn, will succeed Harry Gamage as coach of the University of Kentucky football squad next season if an agreement can be reached on contract terms, Dr. W. D. Funkhouser, chairman of the U. of K. athletic council, announced today.

Dr. Funkhouser's announcement came after a special meeting of the athletic council this afternoon. Wynne was interviewed by the council yesterday and returned to Alabama last night, saying he would have to "talk things over" at Auburn before making a decision.

Wynne and John McEwan, coach of the Brooklyn professional team, were interviewed by the council yesterday. Others considered for the post resigned by Gamage after a comparatively unsuccessful season included W. T. Van de Graf, of Colorado College.

Schmeling U. S. Bound For Loughran Contest

New York, Dec. 7 (U.P.).—Max Schmeling, former heavyweight champion, will sail from Germany on the liner Europa on December 29 to launch his comeback campaign against Tommy Loughran at New York or Atlantic City on January 31. Schmeling's manager, Joe Jacobs, received a cable today stating that the Teuton expected to arrive in New York about January 7. Jack Dempsey, promoter of the bout, is expected in New York on January 2 to arrange final details.

Fair Golfers Elect Miss Harris Again

Miss Elizabeth C. Harris was unanimously reelected president of the Women's District of Columbia Golf Association yesterday at its annual meeting at the Kenwood Golf and Country Club. This is Miss Harris' second term.

Miss Susan Hacker, of Chevy Chase, was elected first vice president; Mrs. Ralph Goldsmith, of Woodmont, second vice president; Mrs. Richard N. Sutton, of Washington Golf and Country Club, was reelected as secretary, and Mrs. C. K. King, of Army and Navy, was named treasurer.

Leagues' Ball Compromise Is Urged

Use of American League Cover and National Stitching, Is Plea.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7 (AP).—A simple solution of one of the major controversies confronting the baseball magnates at their annual gatherings in Chicago next week—the difference between the American and National League baseballs—was offered today by Ed Barrow, the man behind the big guns of the New York Yankees.

"A compromise is the logical thing," he said. "Major league ball should be played with similar implements in both big leagues. Put the American League cover on the ball. Add the thicker stitching now used in the seams of the National League ball. That should satisfy everyone."

Other Problems Up.

Apparently this is a compromise that will be discussed at great length when the magnates get together Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, argue over many things, including "synthetic" double-headers, the re-election of Commissioner K. M. Landis, the suggestion for a regular series of interleague teams, and the constant plight of minor league ball.

Last year there were devout protestations through and beyond winter meeting time that identical balls would be used in both leagues. But when the season rolled around, the American League was a hitters' circuit, the ball fast and agile. The National League was a pitchers' paradise, with Carl Hubbell achieving an earned run average of 1.66 per game that eclipsed everything since Grover Alexander's mark of 1.55, made with the Phillies in 1916.

Difference on Outside.

The makeup of the two spheres, from the cover into and including the core, was identical, Barrow said, although it had been thought the American League ball was wound with a finer yarn. The difference was all on the outside.

The American League cover was made from flank horsehide, and was lighter and more resilient than the leather used in the National League ball. The National League ball's cover was two grades thicker, with

Wilcy Moore Given Release by Yanks

New York, Dec. 7 (U.P.).—The New York Yankees today announced the outright release of Wilcy Moore, veteran sinker ball pitcher, to the Newark Bears of the International League, a Yankee farm club.

The 36-year-old Moore came to the Yanks in 1927 and helped them win the American League pennant. He won 19 games and lost seven. The next two seasons he was a relief pitcher, and in 1930 was sent to St. Paul. The Red Sox picked him up in 1931, and he returned to the Yanks in 1932. He slumped badly this season.

Moore's release is expected by New York's Hot Stove League to be followed by the purchase of Young Oral Hilderbrand, of the Cleveland Indians, a brilliant right-hander. He may be obtained during the baseball meetings at Chicago.

The Yanks also announced that Infielder Roy Schalk had been sent to Newark on option.

$10,000 Biltmore Open Starting Today Lures Entry List of 170.

CORAL CABLES, Fla., Dec. 7 (AP).—With practice rounds behind them, the greatest field that ever competed in a golf tournament below the Mason-Dixon line was primed tonight for the $10,000 Biltmore open, which begins tomorrow over a 72-hole route that may see a new champion crowned before sundown Sunday.

Denny Shute, who also holds the British open title, faces one of the most formidable arrays of top-notch players in his colorful career as he goes up against an entry list of more than 170, seeking the Biltmore championship he won here last year and a shot at the $2,500 first money.

Three major campaigners of the 1933 season stood out tonight as the crack shotmakers most likely to give the defending titleholder trouble. These are Johnny Goodman, National open champion; Gene Sarazen, P. G. A. champion, and Joe Kirkwood, Canadian open titleholder.

Shute, however, has proved he is in top-notch condition by virtue of his 2-up victory over Goodman recently in a round in which he tied the course record of 68, 3 under par.

Course Improved.

The improved condition of the 6,640-yard par 71 course, with 18 new greens, has brought a winning score prediction from the experts.

Shute, who won last year with 291, believes 287 probably will be the winning score, but Sarazen, who copped the tournament two years ago with 287, set his figure a stroke lower at 286. Others agreed it would take close to four par rounds, or 284, to carry off first money.

The leading favorites include Paul Runyan, who has not been beaten in the last three open tournament preliminaries to this classic: Ed Dudley, who was barely nosed out by Shute last year, and a new dark horse, Al Houghton, of Washington, D. C., who shared in preliminary foursome victories over the course here Tuesday and Wednesday.

Several of the leaders loomed all the more formidable to their rivals because they have not yet rounded into top form. Sarazen has been bemoaning his inability to score. Craig Wood, who tied for the British Open, says his putting touch is still off, and Tommy Armour, who has won every major title at least once in his career, has not been able to shade par.

Guldahl Shot a 65.

The best pretournament effort was a 65 posted by Ralph Guldahl, of St. Louis, the professional who missed a 4-foot putt that would have tied Goodman for the National Open crown last summer. Despite this sensational score, six under par, the competitive record is still 68, held jointly by Walter Hagen, Harry Cooper and Sarazen.

Goodman plays the amateur hand against the pros and is an odds-on favorite to capture a trophy for low amateur score.

The division of prizes will be as follows:

First, $2,500; second, $1,250; third, $1,000; fourth, $750; fifth, $650; sixth, $550; seventh, $450; eighth, $350; ninth, $250; tenth, $150.

From eleventh to fifteenth places, $125 each; from 16 to 20, $100 each; from 21 to 25, $75 each; from 26 to 30, $50 each, and from 31 to 40, $25 each.

In addition, a premium of $25 for each low round will be awarded.

The first threesome in the tournament will get away at 8 a. m. tomorrow.

An eighteen round will be played tomorrow and another Saturday, with the final 36-hole route to be run off Sunday.

This Morning

With Shirley L. Povich.

CLARK C. GRIFFITH, of the Griffith Stadium Griffiths, who has given 48 years to baseball and should know whereof he speaks when he speaks of baseball, will tell you that things will be different in the 1934 pennant race.

He has more than a sneaking suspicion that the Boston Red Sox will insinuate themselves into the proceedings in a full-blown attempt to break the first-division monopoly of the Washington, New York, Philadelphia and Cleveland Clubs and make their presence felt for the first season since 1918, when Boston and the top flight parted company.

He's not ready yet to concede the Red Sox the 1934 pennant, but he does believe that the Boston Club will have a voice in the matter to the great discomfiture of the perennial first-division clubs which have been in the habit of fattening their winning percentages in the annual 22 games with the push-over Boston team.

Early Throat-Cutting.

"That man Yawkey has already started to take the rubber off his bankroll," said Griffith, "and it's going to mean a lot of difference to the American League race. It means that three teams in the East aren't going to continue to pick on one at the start of the season when Eastern teams play among themselves and then go West with big leads.

"With the Red Sox putting up a fight, the Eastern clubs will be engaging in nothing but throat-cutting in those early weeks of the season, and a strong team in the West that is cleaning up the Western competition may get off to a big lead that may never be overhauled. There's lots of possibilities.

"No matter how Washington, New York or Philadelphia fared against each other in the early days of the season, they could always make up lost ground against the Red Sox and were never out of the race when the Western trip started. In Boston's case it was always the opposite, the Sox were done for as soon as the three strong Eastern clubs finished that early series."

Crying for Recognition.

Yawkey is going West with the avowed intention of strengthening a Boston Club that at the finish of last season was no mean opponent as a result of reconstruction measures adopted by Yawkey and his chief lieutenant, Eddie Collins. And with Grove, Walberg and Bishop due to join the Red Sox, Boston is crying for recognition in the American League.

Backed by the Back Bay backing of Yawkey, the Sox are now among the three best-heeled clubs in the major leagues, topped only by Wrigley's Chicago Cubs and Ruppert's Yankees. And Shawkey has shown the inclination to spend, what with his outlay of $300,000 to improve Fenway Park with permanent double-decked stands.

Creditable Slab Staff.

Even last season when the Sox were in the depths of the league, the Boston Club was recognized as a great pitching outfit with George Pipgras, Lefty Weiland, Lloyd Brown, Bob Kline, Henry Johnson and Paul Andrews comprising a mound staff that would do credit to a first-division team.

And with pitching strength due to be added, the Sox face the start of the 1934 season in an enviable position. It is in the spring weeks of the campaign that a team relies almost wholly on its pitching strength; when the pitchers are far ahead of the hitters, and the Sox will be as strongly fortified as any club in the league in mound talent.

Pitching feats were so frequent at the start of last season that statisticians were hurrying to the record books to discover the why and wherefore of the innumerable one, two and three hit games. With their pitchers, the Red Sox figure to be nobody's pushover.

Boston College Elects.

Newton, Mass., Dec. 7 (U.P.).—The Boston College football team today elected David Couhig, of Beverly, a junior, captain for the 1934 season. Couhig is a guard and was one of the most capable Eagle linemen. His brother, Phil, was captain of the Boston College team a year ago.

Team to Get Initial Test Monday

Kane, Noonan, Shirley Are Former Stars at Eastern.

Players Boast Speed, Pass and Shoot Well; Schedule Tough.

COACH TED O'LEARY leveled a scrutinizing eye at the George Washington basket ball team yesterday, singled out five players, including three Washingtonians, and summarily elevated them from the rank of candidates to positions on the first team. The five, who will receive their first test under fire Monday night against Shenandoah College, are Barney Kane and Sammy Stein, forwards: Bill Noonan center, and Dallas Shirley and Jimmy Howell, guards. Kane, Noonan and Shirley are products of Eastern High School.

The arrangement is not definite but anybody hoping to muscle into a regular berth will have to play superlative basket ball. Kane is just one jump ahead of Jimmy Smith, a little fellow from Missouri, and will have to keep on his toes to remain on the steadily employed list.

Lacks 1932 Height.

George Washington deviates somewhat from the slam-bang brand of ball that it played last year, though it will retain the fast-breaking attack for certain situations. In decided contrast to the 1932 combination of Parrick, Hertzler, Zahan, and the others, the current Colonial representatives are all under six feet with exception of Bill Noonan. This lack of height induced O'Leary to switch over to the short passes with legal pick-offs and block plays from the foul line.

The players are veritable human whippets, darting around the court like waterbugs skipping across a pond. All can pass and shoot well—a favorable omen. Each is a star in his own right, but blended into a cooperative outfit—and team work is the keynote—they'll make a powerful combination. Noonan and Shirley have benefited by their brief experience in college basket ball, while Howell proved his mettle in the last campaign.

Is Natural Player.

Stein, a short, squatty person, is a natural player. He is well schooled in the pro style of the game, particularly passing, and if the form he displays in practice is any criterion will develop into one of the smoothest cage men District fans have ever seen.

The Colonials face another tough schedule with C. C. N. Y. and St. John's, of Brooklyn, their outstanding opponents. Temple, another tough one; Washington and Lee, Duquesne and Virginia Poly occupy other high spots of the list.

Ball Compromise Urged on Majors

"Hitting those two balls brought quite different results," Barrow said. "The American League ball traveled faster on the ground, lifted farther. When the National League ball was hit dead center it traveled just as far as the American League ball. But if it wasn't hit solidly, grounders were easier to handle and fly balls softer."

Opposition From Terry.

Such a compromise probably would meet opposition from Bill Terry, manager of the Yankees' neighbors, the world champion Giants. The Giants won the National League pennant and the world series chiefly on brilliant pitching, backed with little real clouting. Undoubtedly they'd like another order of the same for 1934.

Clark Griffith, owner of the Washington Nationals, will head the American League opposition against "synthetic" double-headers, arranged by playing Monday games along with single games scheduled for Sundays, a device invented by Branch Rickey, of the St Louis Cardinals. The feeling is very strong in the American circuit against this practice, the argument being that it cheapens the game and makes it a "one day a week" attraction.

Little opposition is expected to Landis' retention as baseball's high commissioner.

Knight and Broaddus In Pool Exhibition

Bob Knight and Johnny Broaddus, A. A. U. champions, will give exhibitions of fancy swimming and diving between halves of the first water polo contest of the season, scheduled for 8 p. m. tomorrow at the Shoreham Hotel.

The opposing teams in the water polo game will be the Washington Canoe Club and the Shoreham Polo Team.

Maryland Park Soccer Team in State Game

Maryland Park High School's soccer eleven, champion of Prince Georges County, will face Towson High, Baltimore County title holder, this afternoon on the Glen Burnie, (Md.) High field at 2:15 o'clock in a semifinal game of the Western Shore play-off for the State championship.

Opposite Types To Meet at Portner's

Von Reedon, Boxer, Faces Milling, Slugger, in Tuesday Feature.

A DELECTABLE bit will be presented boxing fans in the Charley von Reedon-Varias Milling ten-round main event at Portner's Tuesday, which brings together two diametrically opposite types.

Von Reedon is a slendor, willowy, stand up straight and box type of featherweight, who many suspect, can not absorb a great amount of body punishment. He is a smart puncher with either hand and displays nice footwork and sound ring generalship at all times. His opponent is a rugged club fighter of the bore in and punch type, whose forte is body punching and whose strong point is a lethal right uppercut.

Whether Von Reedon will be able to keep the Filipino championship contender at long range and wear him down with long powerful blows, or whether he will run afoul of one of Milling's soporific rights, is the question that will be decided when the contestants square off.

Nour in Local Debut.

An eight-round semifinal will find Frankie Nour, Roumanian flyweight champion, making his debut against Billy Landers, of Norfolk. Backed by a record which includes draws with Midget Wolgast and Speedy Dado, Nour will be receiving a local test at the hands of the blond buzzsaw from Norfolk, who is now generally considered just between the contender and trial horse stage.

Three four-rounders fill out the card. The most promising offers Mike Grove, winner on a quick knockout over Soldier Van Hoose two weeks ago, against Earl Wise, of Baltimore. Both these contestants are sluggers of the first water, and their set-to is expected to offer much for the lovers of the punch-and-flop. Tom Slaughter meets Paddy Ryan in another four and Jack Quigley will engage Soldier McKenna in the curtain raiser.

G. U. Sophomores, Frosh Play Today

Cubs Favored in Annual Football Battle.

Gaullaudet will inaugurate its court season tonight at Kendall Green where it plays host to the Alumni quintet in a game scheduled for 8 o'clock.

Capt. Heimo Antila, Stephen Koziar and Ken Burdette, guards, are virtually certain to start for the Blue, though Antila may be used at center, the weakest position on the club. Jimmy Rayhill, George Brown and "Red" Crockett will alternate at forward.

Coach Wally Krug is experiencing unusual difficulties in obtaining a good center. The squad is uniformly small and Krug needs a six-footer. If his search poves fruitless it will be necessary to rebuild the attack so Gallaudet will play for the opponents' tap-off instead of attempting its own plays on a center jump.

Tonight's fray marks the beginning of a strenuous season for the Blues. Catholic Univesirty, Union St. John's and Baltimore are some of the opponents scheduled.

Skulls Want Game.

Santa Claus Going for Ride

By Paul Gallico.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7 (Spl.).—There is a great cosmic scheme afoot, the details of which I only dare hint at, but the implications and possible consequences of which will be world-shattering. I am pledged by my backers to reveal only that part of it which is deemed safe, because if the whole truth were to become known my life would not be worth a pinch of snuff. The children of the world would unite. They would swarm over me in relentless waves. And when they had passed, there would only be a little colored spot to mark where I had once been. Here, then, is as much as I am at liberty to reveal:

Saturday afternoon at 2:59 p. m. I lose my identity as Paul Gallico, writer. That personage will be swallowed up and vanish from the scene. At 3 p. m., licensed pilot No. 27820 will take his seat at the controls in the rear cockpit of a Wright-powered Travelair biplane, N. C. 619K. A tall, saturnine fellow, his face will be concealed by his aviator's helmet and goggles. He will be clad in flying suit, boots and fur-lined gloves.

In the cockpit of the same ship will be Santa Claus!

Will Have Sack of Toys.

I said Santa Claus—red and white suit, white whiskers, red nose, shiny black boots and all. A parachute will be strapped to his back. He will have a sack of toys slung over one shoulder. Beneath his whiskers there will be a slightly nervous expression. Pilot No. 27820 will receive the "all clear" from the mechanics at the Aero Trades hangar, taxi the ship to the main runway at Roosevelt Field, head the black and orange ship into the wind, cast a wary eye about for landing or taxiing ships and then pour the soup to her; the graceful ship will scuttle down the runway, lift herself off the ground and then wheel into the sky. The first part of an amazing and sinister adventure will have begun. Actually what is to follow I can only hint at. If there is a small boy in the house, I wouldn't let him see this copy of the paper.

Now, if events follow out their schedule, the mysterious pilot will climb the ship to 3,000 feet and then bring her into the wind directly over Roosevelt Field, cut the gun for an instant, tilt one wing slightly, and hold his breadth while Santa Claus climbs over the side, waves farewell and steps off. His parachute will billow and old Kris Kringle will float gracefully down to the earth below and the waiting children. There is some talk that actually it will not be Santa at all, but Joe Crane, the parachute jumper, doing a Santa Claus Christmas jump for a local department store.

Society Does Its Deed.

And yet . . . and yet one night last week as I was returning home from work, two heavily cloaked strangers stepped out of a limousine and beckoned to me. "Come," they said. "You will not be harmed. Great wealth awaits you." They blindfolded me, and we drove, seemingly for hours. Then I was led into a house on the outskirts of the city. We descended many steps. I felt stone flagging beneath my feet and the walls of the passageway were damp. When the blindfold was removed, I was in a subterranean chamber. Smoky lamps illuminated the weird scene. A hundred cloaked men in masks watched me, their eyes glittering through the slits in the masks. their leader wasted no time.

He said: "All of us here are sworn members of a secret society, the P. P. A. Do not try to find out who we are because to do so means death. We have information that on Saturday, December 9, you are to pilot the ship from which one Joe Crane, a parachute jumper clad as Santa Claus, is to make a Christmas jump. Now, sir, (and here his eyes glittered wildly and he pointed a long bony finger at me)—we are prepared to see that the passenger you carry on that day is—Santa Claus!"

"Santa Claus?" I said breathlessly.

Fly Far Out to Sea.

"Santa Claus, himself. We swear it." Suddenly he straightened up and his voice rang through the stony chamber. "Sir! In the name of the Parents Protective Association, rid us of this annual tyranny. We will pay you $1,000,000 if, instead of dropping him over Roosevelt Field, you will, before he is aware of your intention, fly straight out to sea and keep on going."

"Keep on going?"

"Until your gas is exhausted."

"And what will become of me?"

"We do not care," said the leader coldly. "The money will go to your family. One million dollars is our offer. But Santa Claus must not come back. And the children must NEVER KNOW."

Ah, what am I to do? I am a poor man. A million dollars is a great temptation. But can I do this to the children? Can I play traitor? A million dollars.

I can appreciate how the parents feel about this. They'll get their money back in two years. And how will I know whether it is Santa or Joe Crane I am flying? In the meantime, 2:59 p. m. Saturday afternoon is almost upon me. But don't let the children see this.

Dead-Ball Rule Aids Offense, Says Yost

Michigan Coach Points to Large Scores and Less Number of Injuries.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Dec. 7 (AP).—Fielding H. Yost, grand old man of Michigan football and member of the National Rules Committee, turns a deaf ear toward suggestions that the defense now has most of the advantage on the gridiron.

Yost argues that when Army and Notre Dame pile up a total of 25 points in their annual game, it indicates there can be plenty of scoring under present rules, "if you have teams which are trained to get touchdowns."

"Princeton 27 and Yale 2, Southern California 31 and Georgia 0, Florida scoring 19 points on Maryland, Villanova 18 and Rutgers 13 should satisfy people who like scoring," he said.

Rule Helps, He Says.

"Recently," Yost continued, "I heard a coach complain that the defense has all the advatange, and in the next breath he appealed to any and all present to tell him how his team could stop that rival half back in his game."

The rule which makes a fumbled ball dead has done a great deal for the offense, in Yost's opinion.

"If you let defense players run with a recovered fumble, lateral passes and other sensational plays would disappear again immediately," he said. "And it seems to me there already is sufficient penalty for the mechanical error of fumbling. Loss of the ball means loss of position on the field, which is a very important factor.

"Supposing you have the ball on an opponent's 40-yard line. There you have position for any sort of play and you are threatening to score. Losing the ball on a fumble means the other team can kick deep into your territory. It is likely to give your opponents the favorable position you just had."

Ending the play when a ball carrier's knee touches the ground has resulted in less piling on and has reduced the number of injuries, he believes, and such a factor toward safety is not likely to be abolished.

Emerson 56-14 Victor Over St. John's Five

The strong Emerson basket ball five hung up another victory yesterday afternoon, defeating St. John's, 56-14, on the Cadet's court.

Waverly Wheeler was the star of the victor's attack, looping seven field goals for a total of 14 points. Ollie Tipton was close behind his teammate with six goals and a single free throw. The score at the half was 40-10.

Early Passage Of Ring Bill Assured

A CHEERFUL little earful was heard by members of the District A. A. U. Boxing Commission last night at a special meeting at the home of Chairman James Sullivan. Assurance that the Hartley and Walsh bills to legalize amateur boxing here would be passed in January at the next session of Congress came from several members, who were voicing the opinions of Senator William H. King, of Utah, chairman of the Senate District Committee, and Representative Thomas Palmissano, of Maryland, member of the House District Committee.

Both bills were reintroduced at the special session of Congress in March. The Hartley bill is in the hands of a House committee and the Walsh bill is with the Senate committee.

Favor Quick Pasage

Senator King recently indicated that he was heartily in favor of a quick passage of the bill, as did Representative Palmissano, according to Chairman Sullivan.

A study of both bills was made, after which members discussed plans for the staging of a gigantic amateur boxing tournament the latter part of January.

Jim McNamara, of the Jewish Community Center, reported progress on the referees' association, which he is heading. Others present besides Chairman Sullivan and McNamara were Winfree Johnson, secretary, A. A. U.; Earl Weeks, Washington Canoe Club; Dr. O. U. Singer, Congressional Club; W. E. Russell, president District A. A. U.; Charlie Reynolds, athletic director, Washington Boys' Club, and Joe Aronoff.

Roosevelt Bows, 26-23, To Mount Rainier Five

A whirlwind finish, with Jim Glynn and Don Mathias supplying the necessary punch, gave Mount Rainier High School a 26-to-23 victory over Roosevelt High School in its opening game of the season yesterday. It was the second consecutive defeat for the Rough Riders.

It was a close game, Mount Rainier obtaining a 9-to-7 lead in the first half, which exchanged hands frequently in the second. Ed Scott, with 14 points, led Mount Rainier's assault on Roosevelt's basket. Huck Cavanaugh was the outstanding player for the sluggish District organization.

Bowl Game Is Called Commercial Holiday

Moorhead, Minn., Dec. 7 (AP).—President Lotus D. Coffman, of the University of Minnesota, termed the Rose Bowl football game played annually at Pasadena, Calif., "a Roman holiday staged for the commercial interests of Los Angeles," in a talk last night.

He said he was opposed to any modification of Western Conference rules making it possible for Big Ten teams to play in the classic and criticized leaders of the Nation for failure to provide education for unemployed youth.

Hitting the Headpin . . .

AN unusually large crowd congregated at the King Pin alleys last night to watch Hokie Smith's wonder team, the King Pin, successfully stave off the challenge of the Occidental crew for the leadership of the District League, and increase its lead to two games. The Occidental team could win only one game and dropped to third place. Hokie Smith rolled well for his team, especially when the going was tough. He made six straight marks for a 153 game, which aided the Kingpinners in coming from behind to clinch the match. Al Woods (King Pin) chipped in with a 360 set and Astor Clarke (Occidental) led his team with a 361 set.

Beacon Sign went into second place, taking the odd game from Georgetown Recreation on the latter's home grounds. Eddie Schlegel, Georgetown captain, featured the match with games of 117, 152 and 162 for a 431 set, highest for the night. Eddie made six straight marks in his second game and four straight to start the third game for ten in a row.

Northeast Temple captured the high team game for the night, totaling 666 maples, to win two from Columbia. George Honey, of the victors, piled up a 423 set. Lucky Strike won the odd game from Hyattsville in spite of Perce Wolfe's 408 set and Harry Hilliard's 155 game. Convention Hall took the edge in a 2-to-1 victory over Arcadia, Walson leading the victors with a 360 set, and Paulie Harrison maintained his high average with a 393 set for Arcadia.

The Adjutant General's Office pulled the big surprise in the Ladies Federal League at Arcadia, toppling the league-leading Reconstruction Finance team out of first place by winning all three games, putting the idling Agriculture Juniors on top. Eva Phillips, captain of the Veterans' Administration, chucked in the highest game of her bowling career, a 139, to share individual honors with O'Dea (War), who had a 359 set, third highest of the season. Treasury led the team scoring with a 533 game and 1,533 set.

The 15 entries in the Meyer Davis Sweepstakes will go into action again in continuation of the second block at the King Pin drives tonight. Lorraine Gulli, the defending champion, who is leading by 15 pins, will endeavor to retain her lead.

Zeke Burdette, Sholl's Cafe, scattered the maples for a record-breaking 169 game in the Independent League at the Lucky Strike Alleys. Bill Beatty, Judd & Detweiler, turned in a 393 set. Judd & Detweiler shared team honors with a 615 game each. The latter team had the highest total pinfall, with a 1,706 set.

Trew Motor took two games from the leading L. P. Steuart, No. 1 team, cutting the leaders' margin to one game. Blum and Spear starred for Trew Motor with a 139 game and 348 set, respectively. L. P. Steuart, No. 1, rolled a 549 game and Trew Motor turned in a 1,626 set.

Kann's, aided by Ristor's 145 game and 371 set, stole the show in the Department Store League at Lucky Strike, pounding out a 606 game and 1,691 set.

The Maryland Sweepstakes, sponsored by the National Duckpin Bowling Congress, open at the Mount Rainier alleys tomorrow night, and a large entry is expected. The time is short, and bowlers who expect to enter are requested to file their entry blank as soon as possible. The fee this year will be $8, which includes the cost of games.

Ontrich (Hydrographic Office) and Richards (Barbettes) shared individual honors in the War Department League at the Arcadia drives, rolling a 141 game and 350 set, respectively. Barbettes annexed team laurels with a game of 579 and 1,623 set.

Chi Sigma No. 1 led the rolling in the Intersorority League at the Columbia drives, landing team laurels with a 507 game and 1,414 set. Mrs. Pauline Winn (Kappa Phi Delta) led the list of individual feats with a 117 game and 306 set.

Schacht Sails.

Al Schacht, Nats' coach and one-half of the famed Altrock-Schacht comedy team, will sail from New York on the Grace liner Santa Paula today, it was learned last night. Schacht's tour will take him to Havana, Colombia, Panama, El Salvador, Guatemala, Mexico and California.

Admit Athletic Ability Is Skill To Be Sold, Says College Head

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 7 (AP).—Dr. Robert E. Blackwell, president of Randolph-Macon College at Ashland, Va., told the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools today that "the best that we can do, is simply admit that athletic ability is a skill to be sold and let it go at that."

"There is nothing wrong," Dr. Blackwell continued, "in a boy selling his athletic ability. The only wrong is in anyone contending that the situation is other than it is. The association has not succeeded and will not succeed in cleaning up athletics."

The association readmitted Mississippi State Teachers College at Starkville and Mississippi State Teachers College at Hattiesburg, which were suspended in 1930 along with two other Mississippi institutions following dismissal of 157 faculty members and officials during former Gov. Theo. Bilbo's administration.

Dundee Stakes Ring Crown Tonight

Confident He Can Reduce to 160-Pound Limit in Callahan Bout.

BOSTON, Dec. 7 (U.P.).—Although he weighed in 3 pounds over the limit at noon today, Vince Dundee, of Baltimore and Newark, was confident tonight and so assured the Massachusetts boxing commission that he could make 160 pounds before his title bout tomorrow night with Andy Callahan, of Lawrence.

Dundee, who won the world middleweight championship from Lou Brouillard, of Worcester, here several months ago, told Boxing Commissioner Dan Kelley he would certainly drop 3 pounds before the official weigh-in, late tomorrow, for his first defense of the crown.

Goes Through Exercises.

He explained he had just arrived from his New Jersey training camp and had had no workout today. He spent the afternoon going through grueling exercises at Jerry Buckley's gymnasium. His manager, Max Waxman, said Dundee would be more than a pound under the 160-pound limit tomorrow.

Reports that the champion was having difficulty in making the weight limit resulted in his being brought before the commission. The weigh-in today, attended by Kelley, Waxman, Matchmaker Billy Ames, of Boston Garden, and Johnny Buckley, Callahan's manager, more or less justified the commission's precaution. Although the bout would be staged in any event, it was pointed out that failure of Dundee to scale down to 160 pounds by 5 p. m. tomorrow would result in forfeiture of the title to Callahan.

Gallaudet Opens Season Tonight

Will Play Alumni Quintet at Kendall Green.

Georgetown Freshmen will attempt to rid themselves of their hated "rat" caps this morning at Western High School, where the yearling football team engages the Sophomores in their annual game. The kick-off will be at 10 o'clock.

The Freshmen, coached by Dick Danner, are overwhelmingly favored to trounce the upperclassmen, who were tutored by Jack McCarthy, but there is ample room for an upset. The Sophs intend to use a triple-wingback formation, an innovation in football. Victory for the Frosh means the riddance of their "rat" caps, which must be worn within a radius of several blocks of the campus. A sophomore victory means the newcomers must retain their headgear until after the Christmas holidays.

Two games will be played in the league tonight. Christ Church, which has not yet been defeated in Class B, will meet the Eastons at 7 o'clock, and Mercury will face the Stewarts Pharmacy five at 9 o'clock.

Haines Rides Miney Myerson to Win Charles Town Feature at $7.40 Mutuel

Hullcoat Ace Is in Front All Way

Cruz Victorious With Troyer in 1st Race; 4,000 Look On.

By Walter Haight.
(Post Staff Correspondent.)

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va., Dec. 7—Albert Hullcoat, once the trainer of A. C. Bostwick's Mate but now the owner and operator of a small stable, carried off the feature honors of today's Shenandoah Jockey Club's program here. Of course, Mr. Hullcoat did not do the running, but Miney Myerson did. Miney, you know, is a gelded son of Amberjack and Marinette, with ambition enough to earn his own oats.

General Lejeune, now racing in the colors of L. H. Miner, was second and Mrs. C. J. Eisenhardt's Lough Port was third. As far as the remainder of the field was concerned, they might as well have stayed in their respective stalls.

Take Early Lead.

The diminutive Haines had the mount on Miney Myerson. Both horse and rider are at their best when in front. It was only natural that they should bend every effort to take command at the start. They did just that. In fact, the field banked the first turn with Miney drawing out on General Lejeune which got none the best of the break. Going up the backstretch, the General, with Eddie Smith aboard, made several threatening moves, but Miney and Haines always had something left. In the stretch, Miney not only maintained his advantage but widened the gap nearing the wire. Lough Port was always third.

The winner was just a trifle longer than General Lejeune in the betting and rewarded the faithful with a $7.40 mutuel. The race was named The Martinsburg and Starter Cassidy sent the seven horses away from a walk-up.

4,000 Fans Present.

The crowd was a little better than the mid-week average. A gathering in the neighborhood of 4,000 viewed the sport with various degrees of enjoyment, depending, of course, on the movement of the money market. The weather was clear with a tang of winter in the air.

The Washington combination of Preston Burch, trainer, and Henry Cruz, jockey, wasted no time winning its daily race. Burch saddled Troyer, a maiden son of Trojan. Cruz climbed aboard. Everybody and his cousin put their bets down on the juvenile. Starter Cassidy sent the field away and Troyer led from start to finish. Masked Jester was second and Repeal third. Troyer paid $2.40 to win, $2.40 to place and $2.20 to show.

Dornoch Never Headed.

Dornoch, the property of W. G. Merion, joined the winners of two races at this course by outclassing his field in the second—another six-and-a-half furlong contest. Dornoch also hopped into the lead and was never headed. Jockey Sage coasted over the finish line four lengths in front of Semester, which had plenty of daylight on Topsie H. Again the favorite players cashed in. This time the pay-off was $3.

For the third time, the first horse to show on top won the purse. Suspicious was "it." Knapp hustled the son of Sir Greysteel into the lead and then rode with all his might the rest of the six and a half furlongs. Nora's Grace gave battle most of the way, but folded before the closing dash of Bubbling Out, which took second money. The mutuel improved, being $8.60. Six lengths separated the first two horses.

Big Show Pays $4.40.

The Burch-Cruz influence was apparent again in the fourth race. Mrs. Somerville's Big Show changed his tactics a little, but the result was the same. Instead of hurrying the son of Dress Parade, Cruz allowed him to stay behind the swift pace of Forceful. At the stretch turn, Big Show moved up easily, disposing of the front-running rival. Hoursend was third. Big Show was the third winning favorite and supplied a $4.40 ticket.

Dark Vision, with the veteran Thurber piloting, picked up The Doctor going up the back stretch and came on to win the sixth race at a $13.60 mutuel. Royal Lassie was third.

Swaggerstick won the final from Wild Money and Dunair. The mutuel board sagged with these numbers: $16, $10.40 and $10.20 on the winner; $58, $69.40 on the second horse, and $29 on the third horse.

Soccer League Games Scheduled for Sunday

Games in the senior soccer leagues next Sunday are: Recreation League—New York Avenue vs. Dux A. C., Monument field, 11 a. m.; Rosedale vs. Virginia Avenue and Miller Furniture vs. Takoma, both at 1 p. m., on the Monument fields.

In the Capital City League, British United meets Gaithersburg, on field No. 2, and Hispano-Americans oppose Brandywine on field No. 1, both at 2:30 p. m. Out-of-town games are: Mitchell's Store at Rockville and German-Americans at Marlboro.

The four great bronze horses that today guard the entrance of St. Mark's Cathedral in Venice have had a strange history. They have survived wars when all else about them, even to the government, was destroyed. They are of Greek origin, and later were taken by Nero, the Roman emperor, whose triumphal arch in Rome they adorned. War, Famine, Pestilence, and Death stalked Greece, then Rome.

The horses were later carried to Constantinople by Constantine where they remained until the Venitians took them to Venice. Came Napoleon then to Venice with the four plagues, and the horses were sent to Paris. Waterloo and the fall of the Napoleonic rule was followed by the return of the horses to Venice.

Strange as it seems, even the World War had its effect on these famous old war horses—they were put in safety in a stable lest harm come to them during the latest and greatest war of any they had been through.

One of the lesser arts of animal training is that of teaching roosters to crow. Although they acquire the ability naturally, it can only be developed to a high, and loud, degree by special training. This has become a favorite sport in Belgium, where poultry fanciers keep their champion crowers in training by tickling their throats. The rooster that crows the loudest wins. No one, strange as it seems, has succeeded in convincing the Belgium sportsmen that teaching a rooster not to crow would be a greater accomplishment.

Jefferson 4th To Brustigert In Gallop

Lady Tabasco Is Second; Three Lengths Behind; Victor Pays $5

JEFFERSON PARK, New Orleans, Dec. 7. (AP).—Brustigert, a 2-year-old owned by the Devereux brothers which was beaten off in the Thanksgiving Handicap opening day, was dropped into a soft spot here this afternoon and won the fourth event, for horses of his own age, in a gallop.

Running the six furlongs in 1:13 4-5 and closing favorite at $5 for $2, the gelded son of Donnacona led J. J. Robinson's Lady Tabasco to the wire with three lengths to spare. J. J. Ashe's Royal Leon was a half length out of the place.

The attendance was light despite the return of warm, sunny weather. Well played horses got all the money in the earlier events, but the wagering was in keeping with the size of the crowd.

Lady Tabasco Falters.

Lady Tabasco had all her speed and led the field a merry chase into the stretch. Yaupon tired trying to keep up, but Royal Leon held on well. Brustigert, rated within striking distance to the final quarter, charged on the outside through the final straightaway and won as Jockey Morrison pleased when Lady Tabasco faltered.

Smear had a race run to order for him and under Jimmy Hunter's whipping finish, won the fifth contest by a length from Flying Home. The heavily weighted and played Seb staggered home third under 118 pounds, two additional lengths behind. Smear, a slow beginner, gradually moved up while the speed merchants were running themselves into defeat, and coming between horses in the stretch, the Goldblatt color bearer registered going away, but doing his best. His backers received $8.20.

At the Post . . .

Dear Al: Charles Town Race Track, Dec. 7.

Looks as if the Burch Brothers are the best bet at this track. The popular Washington trainers have saddled eight horses at the meeting. Six have turned in victories, one was second and the other ran out of the pay. Each day the Burches have had at least one winner. Henry Cruz, the Capital boy, is doing their riding. He was going to leave for Florida today, but business has been so good that he has postponed his departure. Business also has picked up from a Bennings angle. The boy had three today, including Miney Myerson in the feature. There was an epidemic of poor starts today. I'm blaming the lack of a sufficient number of assistant starters, rather than the work of Starter Cassidy. Jockey Thurber looks hot on cold days, and cold on hot days, if you know what I mean. BILL.

First race—Belle Fille, my No. 1 clocker tells me, has shown a liking for the course. Will have the hustling Burrell in the saddle. A probable 10-to-1 shot in an open race. Worth taking a chance. Phara probably is the class but needs five scratches to get in action. Mayvite for the rest.

Second race—Big Dipper seems the best of those facing the barrier in this sprint. Likes the short turns and may never be headed. In Clover's saddle slipped last out. A certain contender tomorrow. Giggly Ann has some speed and could earn a money position.

Third race—Luck In should make it three in a row here. Certainly has done everything asked and meets nothing that he hasn't beaten here. Toano is second best, and could upset the top fellow. Cantersine showed much foot here in a previous effort and will be in the thick of the battle at some stage.

Fourth race—Vacillate gets a few pounds from March Step and Silverdale, both previous winners at this course. I'm inclined to take them in the order named. Vacillate was crowded back at the start of his lone effort. Will like the fast, hard course.

Fifth race—As I predicted Tuffy G. showed improved racing last out, finishing a bang-up second. Now that his form is public property we may see him start winning regularly. Seems fairly well-suited in this. Light Breeze's recent victory should not be tossed out too quickly. Swaggerstick would be close if sent back.

Sixth race—Cruz may take Fair Crest out in front at the break and scamper to the wire. Showed a nice effort the other day, although beaten. Kaffa may be the sleeper. Redcliffe is waiting for a spot and will be out front burning oil when the word is given.

Seventh race—Chief's Troubador hardly will see action. However, he is too sharp to overlook. Axenby's last doesn't count in my book. Have to keep right after this fellow. I know several smart betters who have vowed they'll run him down. Madge's Fellow likes the layout and is dangerous.

HALAS IS PRO SCOUT.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TROYER, $2.40, $2.40, $2.20; MASKED JESTER, $9.80, $5.40; REPEAL, $2.80.

TROYER, racing as if best, sprinted into an easy lead, was steadied in front until reaching the home stretch, and shook off MASKED JESTER when mildly shaken up. MASKED JESTER challenged stoutly when straightened into the back stretch, made a determined effort in the last quarter mile, but was not good enough. REPEAL was stoutly handled all the way and was easily best of the others. NAY NAY was unable to threaten after the first half mile. SUN MATE closed a good gap. COUSIN GEORGE was inclined to bear out most of the way. The others were never factors.

SECOND RACE—Six and a half furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:06. Off at 2:12. Winner, W. G. Merion's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—DORNOCH, $3.00, $2.40, $2.20; SEMESTER, $3.00, $3.00; TOPSIE H., $3.60.

DORNOCH, moved into command when straightened into the back stretch, drew into a safe lead and held sway until the finish. SEMESTER, rushed around his opposition to enter into a forward position, weakened gradually after making a strong effort leaving the back stretch. TOPSIE H. as usual slow to settle in her best stride, closed a good gap in the final half mile. THE HUN had speed for the first five furlongs. CHLOEDAIR broke sluggishly. She made up considerable ground and passed tiring horses. STYLISH MACK showed dull speed.

THIRD RACE—Six and a half furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start poor. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:31. Off at 2:32. Winner, J. Simon's ch. f. (4), by Sir Greysteel—Patagonia III. Trained by G. L. Hamilton. Value to winner, $300; second, $60; third, $30; fourth, $10. Time, 0:24 2-5, 0:49 2-5, 1:15 2-5, 1:22.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SUSPICIOUS, $8.60, $5.20, $3.60; BUBBLING OUT, $5.60, $4.20; NORA'S GRACE, $2.80.

SUSPICIOUS, showing smart speed, raced NORA'S GRACE into submission in the first five furlongs, saved ground the entire trip and drew out into a commanding lead when straightened into the home stretch. BUBBLING OUT worked his way up on the outside after the opening half mile, but could not menace the winner. NORA'S GRACE, away in the first flight, weakened badly after going strongly for five furlongs. BLACK DREAMS could not threaten while racing forwardly. SAMBO G. away very slowly, closed stoutly. RADIAL had early foot. UMA and BLESS HER HEART were away flatfooted.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BIG SHOW, $4.40, $3.00, $3.20; FORCEFUL, $6.20, $5.20; HOURSEND, $8.20.

BIG SHOW, kept within striking distance of the pacemaker, challenged stoutly entering the home stretch, wore FORCEFUL down and sprinted into an easy triumph. FORCEFUL displayed good speed while setting the pace, saved ground throughout, but stopped suddenly in the closing furlong. HOURSEND, in the first flight from the beginning, outfinished RAGTOWN BELLE in the final drive. The latter went forwardly placed, but weakened badly under stiff pressure. INFILEE could not better her position. STRETCH CALL was fractious and delayed the start with FORCEFUL and BIG SHOW. He was never able to enter contention after breaking from the outside.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MINEY MYERSON, $7.40, $3.20, $2.60; GENERAL LEJEUNE, $2.20, $2.20; LOUGH PORT, $2.40.

MINEY MYERSON, away quickly and outrunning his field to the first turn, was vigorously shaken up in the last half mile and came out under strong pressure after withstanding early bids. GENERAL LEJEUNE, rushed hard and saving ground at the first turn, challenged strongly under punishment midway of the back stretch, but weakened nearing the finish. LOUGH PORT could not make up any ground on the first two when hard urged. GLORITONE was forced wide at the first turn and could never trouble the leaders. DON GUZMAN was outrun. FLYING VOTE ran out entering the back stretch. ONCE lacked speed.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:51. Off at 3:55½. Winner, F. C. Two-dollar mutuels paid—DARK VISION, $13.60, $9.00, $3.20; THE DOCTOR, $4.40, $3.00; ROYAL LASSIE, $5.00.

DARK VISION, hustled into a forward position, came strongly after six furlongs and, wearing down THE DOCTOR, was kept under severe urging until the end. THE DOCTOR saved a lot of ground when in command, was strongly urged when challenged and held on well. ROYAL LASSIE finished with good courage. JODHPUR finished full of run, as did MAINSHEET. INFERNO LAD bore out badly at the turns.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start poor. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:17. Off at 4:23½. Winner, Mrs. C. M. Henderson's ch. g. SWAGGERSTICK, going in his best form and away in the first flight, was steadied along in the early stages and then came out nicely when shaken up. MONEY WILD went forwardly and outfinished DUNAIR in the closing drive. DUNAIR raced strongly for the first seven furlongs, but weakened thereafter. GOLDEN PRINCESS, away poorly, circled her field and closed gamely. Sage was of little help to his mount. FOREST FAUN was outrun. FREE ADVICE had no excuses. NO MISTAKE was practically left.

Lenox Is Victor In Four Extra Periods

LENOX and Blow Elementary Schools battled for 70 minutes yesterday in the third game of the Municipal Playground Department tournament for the city title, Lenox finally winning, 1-0. Four extra periods were necessary to determine which team should go into the next round.

The elevens were evenly matched, with the main struggle between the Blow forwards and the Lenox defense, Shadid being the principal factor in preventing a Blow victory.

Buddington Scores.

About midway through the last period, Jenkins passed the ball to Buddington who, standing uncovered 20 yards out, had little difficulty in going through the Lenox full backs and easily beatin Brooks.

Riddling the Charlotte Hall basket ball with a running fire of field goals, the crack Georgetown Prep basket ball team opened its season yesterday at Garrett Park in impressive fashion with a 51-7 victory.

Stocks Regain Firmness on Dividend News

New York, Dec. 7 (AP).—Favorable dividend news, the good reception given the Government's December financing and an apparent willingness to anticipate business improvement made for quiet firmness in stocks today.

The average advance was fractional and volume, 1,693,137 shares, was only moderate but the market received persistent support and the absence of speculative pyrotechnics was not bemoaned in many quarters.

Dollars moved narrowly on the foreign exchange market, with fluctuations favoring our currency.

No Change in Gold.

There was still no change in the Treasury's gold price, which has been at $34.01 an ounce since last Friday, and this absence of official pressure found our currency again manifesting its recent readiness to advance, as is normally the case at this season when Europe is paying for raw material purchases made here.

Stock dealings were selective, traders concentrating on such groups as rails, packing shares, textiles and the construction issues. Several preferred equities rallied well. Armour of Illinois' 7 per cent jumped more than 8 points and held most of its gain coincident with reports that another plan for reorganizing the company was nearly ready.

Johns-Manville, American Radiator, Otis Elevator, Foundation Co., Warren Bros., American Woolen, Pacific Mills, Wilson & Co., Cleanese and Armour, of Deleware, preferred rose fractions to about 3 points.

Dividend Helps Rails.

Rails had help from another dividend resumption, this time by Alabama Great Southern which restored payments on its common and preferred issues. Southern Railway, controlling the line, moved up a point. Norfolk & Western gained 3, Santa Fe 2 and Union Pacific 2¾. Southern Pacific, New York Central, Pennsylvania and Baltimore & Ohio were firm.

Utilities hesitated. Such usually conspicious industrials as U. S. Steel, American Can, General Electric, Du Pont, Case, Standard Oil of New Jersey, and General Motors were rather neglected in favor of the groups already named.

The interest rate on the new Government issue was higher than expected by some dealers and a liberal oversubscription was taken for granted. A refinancing operation through routine channels, rather than an issue of greenbacks or other inflationary means, had been anticipated, so there was hardly an element of surprise in the $950,000,000 offering of new certificates.

More Dividend News.

A number of companies contributed to the day's grist of dividend news; there were several extras, increases and resumptions, though not all of the issues affected are listed on the stock exchange. Several directorates have postponed their next dividend action until after January 1, when the 5 per cent Federal tax will have lapsed.

Money rates stiffened, partly in further response to seasonal tendencies and partly because of Federal Treasury withdrawals here. The stock exchange call rate went to 1 per cent, its first change since August.

It was said that excess reserves for reserve member banks had decreased about $80,000,000 in the last week.

The central banking system held its Government security portfolio virtually stationary, but added substantially to bill holdings as a means of helping money markets over the current period of firmness. Currency circulation was up $15,000,000.

Facts and the Gold Program

Record Shows Clearly That Policy Is Not Causing Values to Advance

By Ralph West Robey.

In view of the persistency with which the statement continues to be made that the gold-buying program of the Government has resulted in an increase of prices, it is, I think, time to look at a few figures. Such statements ordinarily carry a reservation to the effect that it is true the increase has not been as large, measured by percentages, as the advance in the price of gold, but that the fact that commodities have been increasing in value shows the plan is sound. As these commentators picture the process, thus, it is just a matter of having patience and we shall find in due time that the President is following a sourse which will attain his stated objective of higher prices.

It is difficult to understand how any one has the effrontry to make such statements as these in view of the readily available facts. The quotations for commodities and general measures of the price level are widely available in the daily press. Those who ignore these statistics in their dogmatic assurances about the success of the policy, accordingly, must be relying upon the rank and file failing to take the trouble to check the statements against the actual facts. If such a check is made, it is immediately apparent that the gold-buying program has not resulted in a general price increase, or even in anything like a general increase among the major commodities.

In other words, all that one is possibly justified in claiming for, the policy to date is that we have had some steadiness of prices. Even this has not been marked. Aside from this has been an increase in the price of a few commodities, such as those whose value is determined abroad. The only relation the gold buying policy has to these advances, however, is through the depreciation of the dollar in the foreign exchange market. Any other policy that caused much depreciation would have been equally effective in raising international values as quoted in terms of dollars.

Appraisal Must Include Domestic Prices as Well.

If one is to appraise the policy in any reasonable way, however, it is not sufficient to take just these international commodities. The best measure, presumably, is one which reflects the entire price level of the country. For this purpose it is customary to use the index of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, which includes several hundred commodities. On October 21, the last date upon which the index was calculated previous to the adoption of the gold program, this index stood at 70.4. On the last date for which the index is available, November 25, it was 71.0—an utterly insignificant change. In the case of the farm products division of this index the increase has been from 54.2 to 56.8. The week before the gold-buying program was started, however, the farm index was above the last figure, so this change scarcely can be considered as indicating success for gold buying.

Another index widely used is that of the Annalist. On October 24 its general commodity index was 103.8. The last figure is 102.3. This also is an insignificant change, but it does not reflect a rising price level.

Another widely quoted index is that of the New York Journal of Commerce. It consists of 30 commodities selected for their sensitiveness. On October 25 it was 61.2. On December 5 it was 57.2.

Still another index, based on spot prices in New York, is that of Moody's Investors Service. It covers 15 commodities. On October 25 it was 125.4. On December 5 it was 124.8.

The final index that may be mentioned is that of the New York Evening Post, which also consists of only sensitive commodities. On October 21 it was 36.8. The last figure available is for December 2. On that day the index stood at 34.2.

Find the Same Record For Single Commodities.

Supose, however, that instead of looking merely at such averages one examines a few specific commodities. The prices on October 25 and December 6, respectively, of December wheat were 87⅞ and 84⅛; of December corn, 47⅝ and 46; of December oats, 37½ and 34; of December rye, 62⅞ and 56⅝; of December lard, 5.45 and 4.35; of December cotton, 9.66 and 9.92; of spot beef, 11.87 and 11.50; of pork, 17.50 and 17.00, &c.

Again, to repeat, other commodities could be selected that would show an increase of price in this period. No policy which results in such a record as the above, however, can be considered as a success in the raising of prices.

Our present policy, in other words, not only has placed the handicap of uncertainty upon business, but it has imposed such a burden without conferring any offsetting benefit in the way of higher prices. Of course, the policy has only been in force for six weeks, but granting we are trying to raise prices as a means for solving this depression, it seems to me that it is time to have a frank admission of the failure of the Warren gold theory.

Bond Market Driven Higher; Federals Lose

Rail Loans Are Strong; Trading Increased to $13,730,000.

New York, Dec. 7 (AP).—Conflicting influences pervaded the bond market today as rail loans again exhibited strength and United States Government securities drifted to lower levels.

The trading volume expanded moderately, sales totaling $13,730,000 par value. The average for 60 domestic corporation issues advanced four-tenths of a point.

While the gold price remained unchanged and the dollar firmed in terms of leading foreign exchanges, the market's attention was principally centered on the Treasury's new financing involving an issue of one-year certificates for some $950,000,000 at an interest rate of 2¼ per cent.

Treasury Bonds Lose.

Listed Treasury bonds lost 2/32s to 27/32s of a point, their heaviness being attributed partly to adjustments caused by the unexpectedly high yield on the new certificate offering. The Liberty fourth 4¼s, uncalled, gained 1/32 of a point, but the First Liberty 4¼s were off 1/32 and the 3½s sagged 4/32s. The turnover in the Federals, however, amounted to only about $2,000,000.

Of the $727,000,000 of maturing Government obligations which are to be refunded by the new issue on December 15, virtually all are held by banks and institutions and it was expected that the exchange would be made without difficulty.

The Treasury will save about $7,000,000 in interest on the refinancing. Bankers appeared to be pleased with the new rate, which is the highest for a short-term issue since last March.

Trade Sentiment Aids.

Improved business sentiment aided the carriers. Gains of 1 to 3 or more points were recorded by some loans of Alleghany Corporation, Santa Fe, Baltimore & Ohio, Canadian Pacific, Central Pacific, Burlington, St. Paul, Chicago & Northwestern, Rock Island, Colorado & Southern, Denver & Rio Grande, Erie, Illinois Central, K. C. Southern, Louisville & Nashville, Missouri Pacific, N. Y. Central, Nickel Plate, Northern Pacific, Pennsylvania, Reading, Southern Pacific, Southern and Western Union.

Among the better utilities and industrials were bonds of American Waterworks, Childs Co., Consolidated Gas, Louisville Gas, Otis Steel, Philadelphia Reading Coal & Iron, United Drug, Warren Bros., and Westren Union.

In the foreign division gains of 1 to 4 or more points were shown by obligations of Argentina, Australia, Berlin, New South Wales, Finland and Silesian Electric. French Government loans were off 1 to 3 and bonds of Dutch East Indies sagged a point.

G. M. Reports Gain In Overseas Sales

New York, Dec. 7.—Overseas car and truck sales of General Motors Corporation during November indicate a continuance of the vigorous upward trend which has been in evidence since the early part of the year. With minor exceptions, reports from the Overseas markets, embracing 104 countries outside of the United States and Canada, reflect substantial gains in the sales of General Motors American-made products, as well as the corporation's Opel product manufactured in Germany, and the Vauxhall product manufactured in England.

General Motors sales in the Overseas markets for November from all sources totaled 10,280 units, an increase of 90 per cent over the total for November, 1932, an increase of 70 per cent over the total for November, 1931, and an increase of 24 per cent over the total for November, 1930.

Sales for the first 11 months of 1933, despite the low volume in the early months of the year, were 54 per cent higher than the volume in the corresponding 11 months' period of 1932, and more than 50 per cent higher than the sales reported for the entire year 1932.

Living Costs Cut First Time Since April

Expenses in November Up 2.9 Per Cent Over Period of 1932.

New York, Dec. 7.—For the first time since April of this year a decline in the cost of living of wage-earners was noted in November, amounting to 0.3 per cent, according to the results of the monthly survey of the National Industrial Conference Board. Living costs in November, 1933, however, were 2.9 per cent higher than in November, 1932, but 22.9 per cent lower than in November, 1929.

The purchasing value of the wage-earner's dollar, in terms of the base 1923 equals 100 cents, was 128.5 cents in November, as compared with 128.2 cents in October and 139.9 cents in April.

Food prices declined 0.5 per cent between October 10 and November 7, to a level 7.4 per cent above that of November, 1932, and 33.2 per cent below that of November, 1929.

Rents continued on their downward trend. They were 0.6 per cent lower than in October, 8.6 per cent lower than in November, 1932, and 31.7 per cent lower than in November, 1929.

Little change was noted in clothing prices. An increase in the cost of men's clothing was practically offset by a decline in the cost of women's clothing, the net result was a slight rise of 0.1 per cent. Since last year clothing prices have risen 21.6 per cent, but since November, 1929, they have declined 21.3 per cent.

Coal prices were 0.8 per cent higher than in October and 2.4 per cent higher than in November, 1932, but 8.9 per cent lower than in November, 1929.

The cost of sundries was 0.1 per cent higher than in October, exactly the same as in November, 1932, and 7.9 per cent lower than in November, 1929.

100 Miles of Nets Set In Green Bay Yearly

Menominee, Mich., Dec. 7 (U.P.).—More than 100 miles of nets are set annually in Green Bay for the spawning run of the silvery herring late in November. About 150 Wisconsin and Michigan boats were active in the herring harvest this season.

Salt fish packers operate when the spawning run gluts the market and reduces the price to around $20 to $25 a ton. Fishermen operating on Green Bay annually catch from 1,125 to 1,500 tons of herring in the fall for salting. The year's total take for the fresh fish trade is estimated at twice that amount.

Montana Finds Peanut Crops Are Successful

Miles City, Mont., Dec. 7 (U.P.).—Peanuts, a crop usually associated with warmer climates, can be raised successfully in Montana, according to A. D. Loesch, of Miles City. Fond of the nuts, Loesch planted some last May, largely as an experiment.

Six months later, in November, Loesch counted two dozen well-matured hills. Digging up one stalk, the farmer found it covered with 96 fully-developed pods. Loesch said the peanuts were tasty and could not be distinguished from those on the commercial market.

Wool Market.

Boston, Dec. 7 (A.P.) (U. S. Department of Agriculture).—Trade in wool in the Boston market continues very moderate but inquiries are more numerous than early in the week. Interest is being shown in the finer quality Territory wools. Asking prices on strictly combing 58s, 60s, ½ blood Territory wools are inclined to the high side of the recent selling range 81@83, scoured basis. Some lots are held for prices slightly above this range. The undertone of the market is firm despite the current slow demand.

Curb's Efforts To Rise Halted By Final Sales

Utilities and Alcohols Hit by Offerings; Trading, 230,000 Shares.

New York, Dec. 7 (AP).—The curb market faced upward today, but progress was not fully maintained to the close. Utilities and alcohols, after moving moderately higher, encountered light offerings in the final hour. Industrial specialties accounted for the best gains, metals and oils finishing only slightly better than steady.

Jones & Laughlin Steel rose 2⅜ points in a quiet turnover, while Pan-American Airways and Driver Harris extended yesterday's improvement with advances of 1 and 2 points, respectively. Other issues finishing about a point or more to the good included Aluminum Co. of America, Glen Alden Coal, Lake Shores Mines, Humble Oil and A. O. Smith.

Hiram Walker, Distillers Corporation-Seagrams and American Gas & Electric canceled advances of around a point to close ⅛ to ½ of a point lower. Electric Bond & Share ended unchanged.

Transfers which approximated 230,000 shares were about the same as yesterday.

Trade Trends.

(Associated Press.)

Floor covering—Business in the primary market has fallen to the lowest levels in some time, according to selling agents. The slump is said to be a reflection of a sluggish movement of merchandise in retail channels.

Paint materials—Trade interests report some improvement in the market during the past week. Lead pigments are in a firmer position following the $2 a ton recovery in the metal. There is fair activity in zinc oxides.

Wash goods—A more active inquiry is said to have developed during the past week, although current business is small

Drugs—Buying of codliver oil is o na larger scale, and the better known brands are being maintained at $29 to $33 a barrel. The major quinine salts are in good demand at 51 cents an ounce.

Cotton Prices Hold Steady To 3 Points Up

January Closes at 9.96 in Light Southern Sales; Crop Data Awaited.

New York, Dec. 7 (AP).—Cotton was quiet today and prices held in a fairly steady way within a range of 7 or 8 points. March contracts after selling off to 10.05 during the morning, rallied to 10.12 in the later trading and closed at 10.10. The general market finished steady, net unchanged to 3 points higher.

Traders found no particular inspiration in the early Liverpool cables and the opening was quiet, with prices unchanged to 1 point higher.

There was enough buying to steady the market after early moderate losses and prices hardened later in the day on covering and local buying prompted by the firmer tone of the stock market.

December Advances.

December advanced to 9.95 and May to 10.26, making net gains of 3 or 4 points, but closing prices were 2 or 3 points off from the best on some positions.

Southern selling was light, and general business was restricted because of tomorrow's Government report.

Private crop reports published during the past few days point on the average to a crop of about 12,992,000 bales of 500 pounds gross, while according to a recent canvass, New York Cotton Exchange members on the average are expecting a crop of about 13,175,000 bales. Exports today, 61,174, making 3,597,077 so far this season. Port receipts, 23,343. United States port stocks, 4,089,754.

Cottonseed Oil.

Bleachable cottonseed oil was steady today on covering and a little commission house buying, influenced by the rally in cotton, steadiness of grains and lard and the better prices for hogs. Final prices were unchanged to 5 points net higher. Sales, 18 contracts including 10 exchanges of January for May at 45 points. Hand Tool Exports Gain In Germany

The volume of German exports of hand tools in the first three quarters of the current year was substantially above that of the corresponding period of 1932, according to a report from the American consulate, Cologne, made public by the Commerce Department.

Total shipments in the 1933 period amounted to 12,475 metric tons, valued at 33,820,000 reichsmarks, compared with 10,447 metric tons, valued at 36,289,000 reichsmarks in the corresponding period of last year. This volume increase of 20 per cent with the value decrease amounting to 6 per cent, the report states, appears to indicate that the increased export trade was achieved at the expense of price.

While European markets, with the exception of the Netherlands, France, and a few other countries, remained generally weaker than during the previous year, exports to important overseas markets, chiefly Argentina and Brazil, were considerably larger. For these two countries, gains of from 100 to 300 per cent for the various categories of tools, were registered.

To the United States, the outstanding buyer of German measuring instruments, exports rose from 23.1 metric tons from January to September, 1932, to 127.1 metric tons during the corresponding period of the current year.

New Shipping Blue Book Is Released

"Merchant Vessels of the United States, 1933," popularly referred to as the "Blue Book of American Shipping," has been released by Assistant Director A. J. Tyrer, of the Commerce Department's Bureau of Navigation and Steamboat Inspection.

The new volume contains the name of every documented merchant vessel and yacht of five net tons and over in the United States, approximately 29,000, with such descriptive data as each vessel's official number, gross and net tonnage, dimensions, material, horsepower, home port, year and place of building, service and number of men composing the crew, together with the name and address of the owner.

Steam, motor, sail, unrigged vessels and yachts are listed separately, in the alphabetical order of their names. The type of engine and kind of fuel used by the steam and motor vessels are indicated. Vessels equipped with radio transmitting apparatus or radio compass, or both, are marked, as are those which are classed by the American Bureau of Shipping.

$5,000 Homes Holding Lead In Demand

Builders in Meetings Here Point to Need for Small Dwellings.

The Home Builders and Land Developers National group meeting here this week, has called attention to the fact that there is a tremendous demand throughout the country for homes of $5,000 and $6,000 and that there is no oversupply but an undersupply of homes in this class.

Its committee declares construction of these homes will not injure values of existing properties, but will help the sale of vacant properties on the same theory that the construction and sale of a new automobile has always greatly aided the sale of used cars.

Usual Financing Gone.

The usual channels of financing are gone, the committee reminds, and will not be available for several years in any proportion to the need. The Government, it states, is the only source of money today. Unless the men in this business act in a united effort, the huge funds in the various Government appropriations will not only go into other channels but will be used in competition with the home building business.

In other words, it fears that, if the home builders of the country fail to get assistance, the Government itself will use this money for low cost housing projects which, it states, will not be slum clearance projects and which may compete with private building organizations throughout the country.

The executive board includes W. P. Bridges, Jackson, Miss.; John D. Brennan, M. H. Hussey Corporation, Waukegan, Ill., district chairman for the Chicago area; Windsor D. Business Growing, Heinz Official Says

Pittsburgh, Dec. 7 (AP).—Asserting that the H. J. Heinz Co. plants throughout the Nation are employing 51 per cent more workers than a year ago, Howard Heinz, an official of the firm, said in a speech tonight that recovery is marching forward. Addressing a convention of Heinz executives from all parts of the United States, the speaker added:

"Figures speak loudly of improvement whether we take those relating to prices of commodities, railroad tonnage, the increase in the sale of consumer goods, the oil, textile or other businesses."

He said all statistics give evidence that "recovery is on the march and should soon include the heavy industries."

Business Gains Confidence in 1934 Advance

Exports Increase Cited as Indication Industry Will Improve.

New York, Dec. 7—While the monetary debates now raging have thus far proved of little help in clarifying the domestic business outlook, confidence in the prospect for an industrial upswing of comparatively satisfactory proportions during the early months of 1934 is growing, observes the Standard Statistics Co., of New York, adding:

"The increase in October exports to $194,000,000, the highest level in two years, can be attributed in large part to the advantage gained by Americans in world markets through depreciation of dollar exchange, and in part to the shipment of commodities abroad, without repatriation of the proceeds, as an incident in the flight of capital.

"The advantage gained by American exporters will probably, sooner or later, be offset by the setting up of quotas and other restrictions, by competitive depreciation of other currencies (assuming that the dollar does not recover), or by a decline in world prices which would not be helpful to recovery efforts anywhere.

"Even though material further gains in foreign trade totals are improbable, it is recognized that the increase in domestic buying power should justify another upswing in most industries beginning shortly after the turn of the year."

Brazil Destruction Of Coffee Persists

New York, Dec. 7.—For the fifth consecutive month Brazil has destroyed over 1,000,000 bags of coffee, according to the New York Coffee & Sugar Exchange. Destruction in November totaled 1,067,000, bringing the total since June, 1931, to 25,296,000 bags.

At the present rate, Brazil, during the 1933-34 crop year, July 1 to June 30, will destroy over 50 per cent of this season's bumper crop, which is estimated at about 30,000,000 bags. The world demands for Brazilian coffee have been about 15,000,000 bags annually.

The destruction program, therefore, promises to bring about practically an even balance between Brazilian production and world consumption of Brazilian coffee for this season. Free stocks in Brazil have been drastically reduced during the past two years and the future looms bright with stocks again approaching normal levels.

Wheat Change Small; Other Grains Jump

Corn and Oats Advance, Closing Near Top; Provisions Up.

Chicago, Dec. 7 (AP).—Corn and oats led in speculative activity on the Chicago Board of Trade today, and both ended with substantial gains, whereas wheat action proved indecisive.

In the corn market larger feeding demand due to wintry temperature was simultaneous with increased effects of an unprecedented rural crop holding movement fostered by Government loans.

Oats displayed independent strength owing to trade reports pointing to likelihood of early absorption of the available commercial supply.

Corn at Top.

A firm close at virtually the day's top level was witnesed in corn and in oats as well, with each of the two grains ⅝ to 1½ cents above yesterday's finish; wheat, ½ cent off to ⅜ up, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 7 cents.

Giving particular impetus to the upward sweep of corn was the fact that a leading corn products industry had reentered the corn market today after an absence of approximately one month.

This circumstance happened to coincide with receipts of advices indicating a widespread disposition of farmers to seal their cribs and thus obtain the immediate benefit of Government funds, contingent only on a promise to reduce corn acreage next year. Reports current implied that for some time the bulk of corn delivered at country shipping would go to the feeder trade points instead of to terminal markets.

Corn Offerings Small.

Practically no corn was offered today to arrive in Chicago from rural sources. A further element of spice given to the situation was word that at least a little export business in corn had been consummated.

An additional striking development was that the Liverpool quotation today on corn for immediate delivery was sharply higher today, and more than 2 cents above the price posted in English currency for Argentine cash wheat.

Wheat rallied at times with corn and oats, but was weakened by wet weather forecasts regarding Kansas and Nebraska. Monetary conditions, including a downward trend of sterling were also bearish as to wheat. Oats traders put special emphasis on indications of smallness of farm supplies and on persistent dearth of receipts.

Provisions were responsive to upturns of hog values and of feed grains.

Cuba Sugar Export Exceeding Output

New York, Dec. 7.—Cuban exports of sugar to date exceed this year's production on that island by 42,686 tons. Since January 1, 2,037,685 tons have been shipped, according to the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange. Sixty-two and two-tenths per cent of the total was shipped to the United States, 28.8 per cent to United Kingdom, 5.1 per cent to continental Europe, 2.2 per cent to Canada, and 1.7 per cent to the rest of the world. United States and United Kingdom together took 90 per cent of Cuba's exports.

The size of the next crop and the date when grinding shall start have not been decided. Since 1925, with the exception of 1929 and 1930, Cuba's crops have been restricted as to size.

This year's production, 1,995,000 tons, was the smallest in over 20 years and compares with 2,602,864 tons produced in 1932; 3,120,714 in 1931; 4,671,230 in 1930 and the record crop of 1929, which amounted to 5,196,308 tons.

Gold Drain From Bank Of France Is Modified

Paris, Dec. 7 (AP).—The drain of gold from the Bank of France moderated during the week ended December 1, said bank reports today.

During that period its coffers lost 450,000,000 francs as compared to the decrease of 1,500,000,000 francs during the previous week.

The bank notes in the meantime increased 1,740,000,000 francs, reducing the gold coverage to 94 from 97 per cent.

Textile Trade Showing Signs Of Stabilizing

Gradual Upward Trend Is Expected to Develop by January.

New York, Dec. 7.—Weekly data covering the activities of the textile industry during November indicate that the market appears to be more stabilized, giving rise to the belief that a slow upward trend of business will be under way by the first of the new year, says the current issue of the Textile Organon, published by the Tubize Chatillon Corporation.

The unadjusted index of November rayon deliveries, which is based on actual shipments, shows a further decline from the peak delivery month of last May, states the publication.

Because of the fact that a large part of this recent decrease was purely seasonal, the seasonally adjusted deliveries index actually showed a small increase over the October index.

Normal Seasonal Decline.

The November unadjusted index, adds the publication, reflects not only a normal seasonal decline, but also a further reduction in yarn-taking by fabricators, so that their stocks of yarn on hand as well as their gray goods may be reduced to reasonable proportions.

Part of this yarn was ordered for next year as a semispeculation so as to avoid a possible price rise and also on the misconceived theory that by thus ordering yarn in advance a potential compensating tax on rayon would some way or other be avoided.

Deliveries of Rayon.

The Textile Organon indices of rayon deliveries (unadjusted index based upon actual shipments and not adjusted to a seasonal basis) for November and previous months follow:

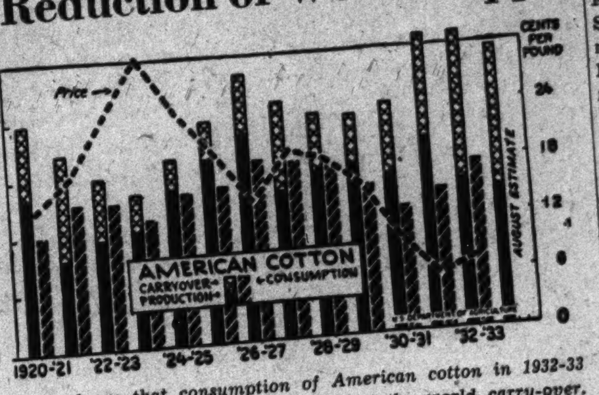
Outlook for Cotton Improved By Reduction of World Supply



The chart shows that consumption of American cotton in 1932-33 was the largest for four years and reduced the world carry-over. The indicated supply for 1933-34 is about 2,000,000 bales below the levels of the two previous seasons.

By A. W. Palmer.

Bureau of Agricultural Economics, United States Department of Agriculture

(Written for the Associated Press.)

The cotton outlook as indicated on November 1 has been improved by a reduction in world supplies of American cotton this year and prospects for a greater reduction next year.

The world supply of American cotton this year is about 24,500,000 bales, compared with 26,000,000 bales in the last two years and with an average during the preceding 10 years of 18,500,000 bales.

The supply next year might be reduced to almost normal if the area is restricted to 25,000,000 acres as planned by the adjustment program, and yields should be equal to the average of the 10 years, 1922-1931.

With world consumption of American cotton in 1933-34 equal to that of the previous season, the carry-over on August 1, 1934, would be around 10,500,000 bales, and with average yields on 25,000,000 acres, next year's production would approximate 8,800,000 bales.

For the production from 25,000,000 acres to equal the October estimate of the 1933 crop, average yields for the United States would have to exceed the 10-year average by 47 per cent.

World consumption of American cotton in 1932-33 exceeded domestic production by 1,200,000 bales. Cotton consumption in the United States last season was the largest in four years.

Craddock-Terry Shoe Company Will Reopen

Lynchburg, Va., Dec. 7 (Spl.)—Factories of the Craddock-Terry Shoe Co. has reopened after a month's vacation for inventory. Production schedule at first will be five days a week for Fort Hill and West End plants and three days for Southland. This will produce 710 dozen shoes a day.

The plow department of the Lynchburg Foundry Co. is working full blast with 130 men at work six days a week. Usually this is a part of the dull season of the year for the plant, but H. E. McWane, president, said sufficient orders are on hand to keep the plant busy well into January without additional orders. This condition is due to depleted stocks in the hands of the dealers.

Prices of 1934 Model Ford Cars Increased

Detroit, Dec. 7 (AP).—Announcement of price increases on new models ranging from $5 to $35 for passenger cars was made today by the Ford Motor Co., in its first showing of the 1934 Ford cars.

Although the passenger models have been increased, W. C. Cowling, chief of the Ford sales division, said there will be a reduction of $10 to $25 in the price of commercial cars.

THE NATIONAL CITY BANK OF NEW YORK

December 5, 1933

To the Shareholders:

In these times the obligation of a commercial bank to its depositors, customers and shareholders is to pursue a conservative policy, maintain an adequate degree of liquidity, reduce expenses, and increase reserves. In the eight months since I last wrote you we have proceeded on these lines. Expenses, including officers' salaries, have been and are being cut, and methods of operation simplified, with resulting economies and increased efficiency.

Our Directors feel that the Bank should support the President of the United States in his program of strengthening the capital structure of the banks of the country and in his campaign to bring about business and industrial recovery. They also feel that we should accept the offer which the Government has made to purchase preferred stock in national banks. In connection with this offer the President has said: "I understand the question has been raised in some quarters that the Government wants to control the banks through the ownership of preferred stock. Nothing could be further from the truth. The Government only wants to help provide banking capital adequate to meet the credit needs of the country, and through buying, and lending upon preferred stock and capital debentures, it accomplishes this without undue demands upon present shareholders." (In the case of national banks the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is only authorized to purchase preferred stock.)

We are proposing that the Bank co-operate with the President's program; that it increase capital stock by issuing and selling to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation at par and accrued dividends, (subject to being first offered to our own shareholders), $50,000,000 of 5% Cumulative Preferred Stock, and that at the same time it decrease the Common Stock from $124,000,000 to $77,500,000 by changing the par value from $20 to $12.50 a share without, however, changing the number of shares outstanding.

The Comptroller of the Currency and the Federal Reserve Board, which have jurisdiction in the matter, have given their approval, on condition that the capital released by such reduction of par value of shares be applied to writing down assets, and that no distribution on account thereof be made to shareholders. After using the released capital in this way, and after transferring $10,000,000 from Surplus to, and applying and readjusting, reserves, the new set-up will be:

Preferred Stock, 5% cumulative	$50,000,000.	par value of shares $20 (2,500,000 shares)
Common Stock	77,500,000.	par value of shares $12.50 (6,200,000 shares)
Surplus	30,000,000.
Undivided Profits about	5,000,000.
Total	$162,500,000.	and, in addition, unallocated reserves, not appearing in the statement, of about $40,000,000.

With the adoption of the plan, the assets of the Bank will be carried at conservative values, and it will be reasonable, in my judgment, to expect substantial recoveries with the return of more normal conditions. The book value of our common stock on the new basis, including the net worth of the City Bank Farmers Trust Company, but excluding the $40,000,000 general reserve and any interest in The City Company of New York, Incorporated, (formerly The National City Company), will be in excess of $21 per share.

On the plan becoming effective I expect to recommend the payment on February 1st next of a dividend of 25 cents a share on the common stock for the last quarter of the present year.

It is planned to continue the City Bank Farmers Trust Company as a separate entity, devoted to trust business. It has present Capital of $10,000,000., Surplus $10,000,000., and Undivided Profits in excess of $1,500,000. Existing laws sanction its continued affiliation with the Bank, provided it becomes a member of the Federal Reserve System. This it plans to do in the near future.

You were advised by me last April that a complete separation of operating personnel had taken place between the Bank and The National City Company. Since then the latter has removed to other offices, changed its name to The City Company of New York, Incorporated, and a separation of directorate has occurred, but, on account of the times, progress towards disposing of the Company or of its business and facilities has been slower than was anticipated. Steps to realize on the material values which exist will be continued during the period allowed by law. In order that the Trustees who hold the stock of the Company, and the Board of Directors of the Company, shall have the requisite power to deal with the situation as it may develop, a Consent to the amendment of the Trust Agreement is enclosed for your signature.

You will also find enclosed a formal notice of the Annual Meeting of the shareholders of the Bank, to be held on Tuesday, January 9, 1934. Attached thereto are proposed amendments to the Articles of Association of the Bank which set forth, among other things, the terms and provisions of the new preferred stock. From these you will note that the preferred stock is retirable in whole or in part at par and accrued dividends, and that an annual retirement fund is provided from earnings. It is not thought that the annual requirements for preferred dividends and the retirement fund should interfere with reasonable dividends on the common stock even under present conditions. As preferred stock is retired, the value of the common stock will correspondingly increase.

As the Reconstruction Finance Corporation has agreed to purchase the entire $50,000,000 of preferred stock you are not obligated in any way, or solicited, to subscribe. However, the Board has directed that such preferred stock be offered pro rata, at par and accrued dividends (if any), to the shareholders of record at the close of business on December 15, 1933, and that such shareholders shall have the right so to subscribe and pay for such preferred stock up to and including January 9, 1934. Subscription forms will be supplied on request.

Upon completion of the plan you will be asked to send in your present certificates of stock in the Bank to be exchanged, share for share, for new common stock certificates. These will bear an indorsement evidencing beneficial interest in the City Bank Farmers Trust Company, the capital stock of which (other than Directors' shares) will continue to be held in trust as at present, for the sole benefit of the common shareholders of the Bank. Such new certificates will not bear any indorsement with reference to The City Company of New York, Incorporated, although the stock of the latter will continue for the time being to be held in trust as heretofore, and also solely for the benefit of the common shareholders.

The Board of Directors has approved the plan, and recommends to the shareholders that it be made effective. The plan requires the approval of two-thirds of all the outstanding shares. Unless you expect to attend the meeting you are, therefore, requested to sign the enclosed proxy in order to enable your stock to be voted at the meeting, and also the Consent relating to The City Company of New York, Incorporated, and return both promptly in the enclosed envelope.

Yours very truly,

JAMES H. PERKINS

Chairman of the Board of Directors.

(This letter is being mailed to the shareholders of The National City Bank of New York)

Brazil's Money Changes Seen Forcing Imports Curtailment

Plan Favored Over Quota System in Regulating Nation's Trade Balances; Customs Duties Expected to Increase Under New Ruling.

Rio de Janeiro, Dec. 7 (AP). Brazil's tariffs, increased by abolishing the theoretical gold milreis and increasing the paper equivalent on which customs duties are collected, are expected to curtail imports drastically.

The gold milreis, which had been fixed in accordance with foreign exchange, was a little over six milreis (about 50 cents). The new paper rate is eight milreis, equivalent to the former gold milreis (about 65 cents).

Increased imports, which climbed 6,000,000 pounds in the first eight months of 1933, reduced Brazil's trade balance under Government needs, Finance Minister Oswaldo Aranha explained. He added that the new system was preferable to restricting imports by quotas or licenses.

Revenue Boost Expected.

The new paper rate for collecting customs also is expected to boost revenues.

Brazil's tariffs, exceedingly complicated, are increased from 20 per cent upward on the new basis. Tariffs on most American specialties, such as automobiles, tires, accessories and gasoline, rise about 30 per cent.

Thus, for example, under the old gold milreis basis, a 10 per cent ad valorem tariff, multiplied by the gold rate, was in reality 40 per cent, even after most-favored-nation concessions have been deducted. The two per cent gold port tax, also multiplied by the gold rate, added 12 per cent which made the real tariff about 52 per cent.

Ad Valorem Tariff.

Now the same 10 per cent ad valorem tariff, multiplied by the new fixed ratio of eight, becomes in reality 52 per cent. The 2 per cent gold port tax adds 6 per cent more. This makes the total percentage 68.

Harder hit are articles subject to a "road tax" destined to highway improvements.

In this class come automobiles, tires and accessories. They pay on a weight basis, and in addition to the stated tariff per kilo or ton, pay not only the 2 per cent gold port tax, but also the "road tax."

The new basis for payments may complicate negotiations for a Brazilian-American reciprocity trade treaty, because experts on both sides will have to start figuring all over again. Most of Brazil's exports, on the other hand, enter the United States duty free.

Japan to Make Silicon Carbide Commercially

Large-scale production of silicon carbide is proposed by Japanese interests, according to a report to the Department of Commerce from Assistant Trade Commissioner Donald W. Smith, Tokyo.

Last year, the report shows, Japan's imports of "mineral substance for grinding or polishing" amounted to 3,120 metric tons, valued at 939,000 yen, of which the United States supplied approximately 50 per cent. It is estimated that annual consumption of silicon carbide in Japan is around 1,000 metric tons.

Two Japanese companies have recently started production of this product on a commercial basis, and it is expected that their combined output will materially reduce imports of artificial abrasives. The Electric Chemical Co., a subsidiary of the Mitsui interests, and the Japan Iodine Co. are the two concerns which have begun the manufacture of silicon carbide.

During 1932 exports to Japan from the United States of "artificial abrasives and manufactures thereof" were valued at $102,200. Domestic production during the coming year is expected to adversely affect this trade, the report states.

Steel Output Estimated At 1,540,882 Net Tons

New York, Dec. 7 (AP).—The American Iron and Steel Institute today estimated that steel ingot production of all companies in this country last month was 1,540,882 tons compared with 2,111,842 tons in October and 1,032,221 in November, 1932.

Operations of the industry averaged 27.26 per cent of capacity in November compared with 37.37 per cent in October and 18.36 per cent in November, 1932. The average monthly ratio for the year to December 1 was 33.99 per cent compared with 20.15 for the first 11 months of 1932.

Ceylon's Trade Is Reported Improving

Increased world demand and better prices for Ceylon's chief export products resulted in a notable improvement in the general trade situation in that country during the first nine months of the current year, according to a report from Vice Consul B. Livingston, Colombo, made public by the Commerce Department.

In the first half of 1933, it is pointed out, all export commodity prices were down, particularly those for tea and cocoanut products. A sharp advance, however, occurred in the third quarter in prices for tea and rubber, while copra prices showed a gratifying upward trend.

By the end of September, Ceylon's overseas trade was in a more favorable position than at any time since the beginning of the present depression. Although the total value of the country's foreign trade was lower in the first three-quarters of 1933 than in the corresponding period of last year, the trade balance in the 1933 period was decidedly favorable as compared with an adverse balance in 1932. Total exports (including re-exports) from Ceylon in the period January-September, 1933, were valued at 145,000,000 rupees, about 1 per cent less than the corresponding figure for 1932, while imports in the current period, valued at 128,800,000 rupees were 15 per cent under last year's figure.

During the nine-month period of 1933, Japan made notable gains in Ceylon's import trade, especially in cotton goods and cement. The United States lost ground in piece goods, implements and motor vehicles, but registered gains in sales of typewriters and cigarettes.

New Synthetic Rubber Made In England

A synthetic rubber claimed to possess all of the qualities of the natural product and to be impervious to the action of both oils and heat has just been produced in Great Britain, according to an announcement by a large chemical company forwarded by Vice Consul Wallace E. Moessner, Manchester, and made public by the Department of Commerce.

While the present cost of producing the synthetic rubber is said by the chemical company to be about $1.67 per pound, it is their announced intention to place the product on the market at an early date.

The chemical company is reported to have stated that, despite the cost of producing the synthetic rubber as compared with the prevailing price of natural rubber, the product can be used successfully and economically for many special purposes because of its unusual qualities.

Foreign Markets.

(Associated Press.)

London—A quiet but steady tone was registered in the forenoon on the stock exchange. Moderate gains were recorded in Kaffirs, foreign bonds and industrials. Realizations later, however, caused a shading of prices, especially in continental favorites. The market closed irregular.

Paris—Showing slight gains, prices on the bourse were resistant awaiting the chamber's debate of the finance bill. Rentes were lower. The closing was sustained.

Berlin—Prices on the boerse were resistant early today and the slight gains which were recorded were lost at the close owing to lack of business.

Goods Market.

New York, Dec. 7 (A.P.).—Cotton goods were quiet and firm today with many mills declining to consider contract business at this time. The markets for gray cloths are being cleaned up of spots. Sheetings were firmer. Representatives of the wool industry agreed today on many recommendations looking toward code change to provide for a code authority, and adjustment of many trade practices. Silk goods are still quiet, with a firmer tone on goods for late delivery. Burlaps were steady to firm. Rayon sales for January-February delivery are of good volume.

U. S. Cement Tests Mount In 4 Months

Tests on 1,825,000 barrels of cement purchased by the United States Government for use on Federal projects were conducted by the Bureau of Standards, Department of Commerce, during the July-October period of this year, it was announced today.

The quantity of cement tested was 20 per cent larger than for any other four-month period during the past 10 years and equaled approximately 7 per cent of the cement shipped from American mills during the four months, it was stated.

In addition to the testing work performed, representatives of the bureau detailed to various mills throughout the United States supervised the inspecton and shipment of approximately 1,100,000 barrels of the cement tested.

About 550,000 barrels tested during the four months was especially manufactured for use on Boulder Dam.

The central laboratory of the bureau is located in Washington, D. C. Branch testing laboratories are maintained at Northampton, Pa.; Riverside, Calif.; San Francisco, Calif., and Denver, Colo.

Wall Street Briefs.

New York, Dec. 7 (AP).—Directors of Industrial Rayon Corporation will consider the next dividend action at a meeting on January 5, after the 5 per cent Federal dividend tax has lapsed. Consumption of sugar in Japan approximates 925,000 tons annually, indicating the surplus stock carried over from the crop two years ago will be diminished.

The Associated Gas & Electric Co. reports that its debentures of all series have been deposited to the amount of about $80,000,000 or more than 30 per cent of the total under the company's plan of rearrangement of capital, which was designed to reduce fixed interest charges.

Textile Mills' Business in Mexico Gains

Mexico's textile mills have enjoyed an unusually good business during the current year, according to a report to the Commerce Department from Assistant Commercial Attache R. G. Glover, Mexico City.

Normal average annual consumption of raw cotton by these mills, the report shows, ordinarily runs around 180,000 bales, but this year it is believed that they will consume about 190,000 bales.

The actual yield of the Mexican crop in the current season is placed by reliable authorities at about 235,000 bales.

It is estimated that about 40,000 bales of this year's cotton crop will be exported, the report states.

Rate for Call Money Is Up ¼ of 1 Per Cent

New York, Dec. 7 (AP).—The official rate for call money was advanced to 1 per cent today, a rise of one-quarter of 1 per cent over the rate which had been in effect since August 29 last. Firming of the market was attributed to the usual December shifting of balances in connection with the year-end turnover in money.

Time money rates on 60-90-day loans also firmed slightly, being 1 per cent against three-quarters of 1 per cent previously. All other rates were unchanged.

Things like this keep us awake nights:

"That broadcast you heard from the Byrd Antarctic Expedition a couple of Saturday nights ago had tragedy hovering over it. It all may have sounded very gay, but behind the scenes there was a broken heart. Only a few hours before the broadcast, Kim, brother of Finn, the canine star of the show, broke his leash on deck and fell overboard * * * Finn took the news bravely * * * Charley Murphy * * * suggested that he let some other malamute take his place in the show * * * Finn was indignant. He barked angrily, insisted he would follow the old tradition of the stage, 'The show must go on' * * *."

Who is a malamute?

WJSV's Woman's Hour has progressed to the point where the lady listeners are exchanging recipes, tips on how to get rid of moths, &c. They'll be calling each other by first names before very long. And the "Man About the Kitchen," who boasted he knew more about cooking than any woman, has been asked to repeat instructions on lemon pie baking.

The Columbia outlet begins today to help real estate men by broadcasting, on two five-minute periods each day, descriptions of property for sale.

A C. B. S. attempt to solve its unemployed talent problem is said to have been the cause for delay in opening the Casa Loma Orchestra-Irene Taylor show, which actually did get under way last night. The advertising agency representing the cigarette sponsors was pretty well satisfied with the Glen Gray Band and one or two talents. C. B. S. wanted as many as posible of its loafing artists to go to work. The agency had heard about Gen. Johnson and the NRA, but it couldn't see what they had to do with entertainment. They were firm about it too, took the show away from C. B. S. production for building by their own program director.

WJSV Enginerr (Pardon! Technical Director) Les Bowman has offered his head so that station minds may be certain a firm that wants to advertise how it changes gray hair to black won't get them into difficulties with the Federal Trade Commission.

Dr. Cadman introduced President Roosevelt from the Federal Council of Churches of Christ gathering through a dead mike. He didn't know it, but WMAL's Carlton Smith was syncronizing the red and blue networks and couldn't be bothered. Smith made the Presidential introduction so listeners on the red who had been hearing the Pipe Club, wouldn't be surpirsed.

Berlin Cutlery Exports Gain; Value Declines

While the volume of Germany's cutlery exports increased in the first nine months of 1933 as compared with the corresponding period of last year, the value of such shipments registered a marked decline, according to a report from Consul Bartley F. Yost, Cologne, made public by the Commerce Department.

Sales of German cutlery in foreign markets from January to September, 1933, amounted to 3,139,900 kilograms valued at 21,486,000 reichsmarks, as compared with 2,797,000 kilograms valued at 23,296,000 reichsmarks during the corresponding period of last year.

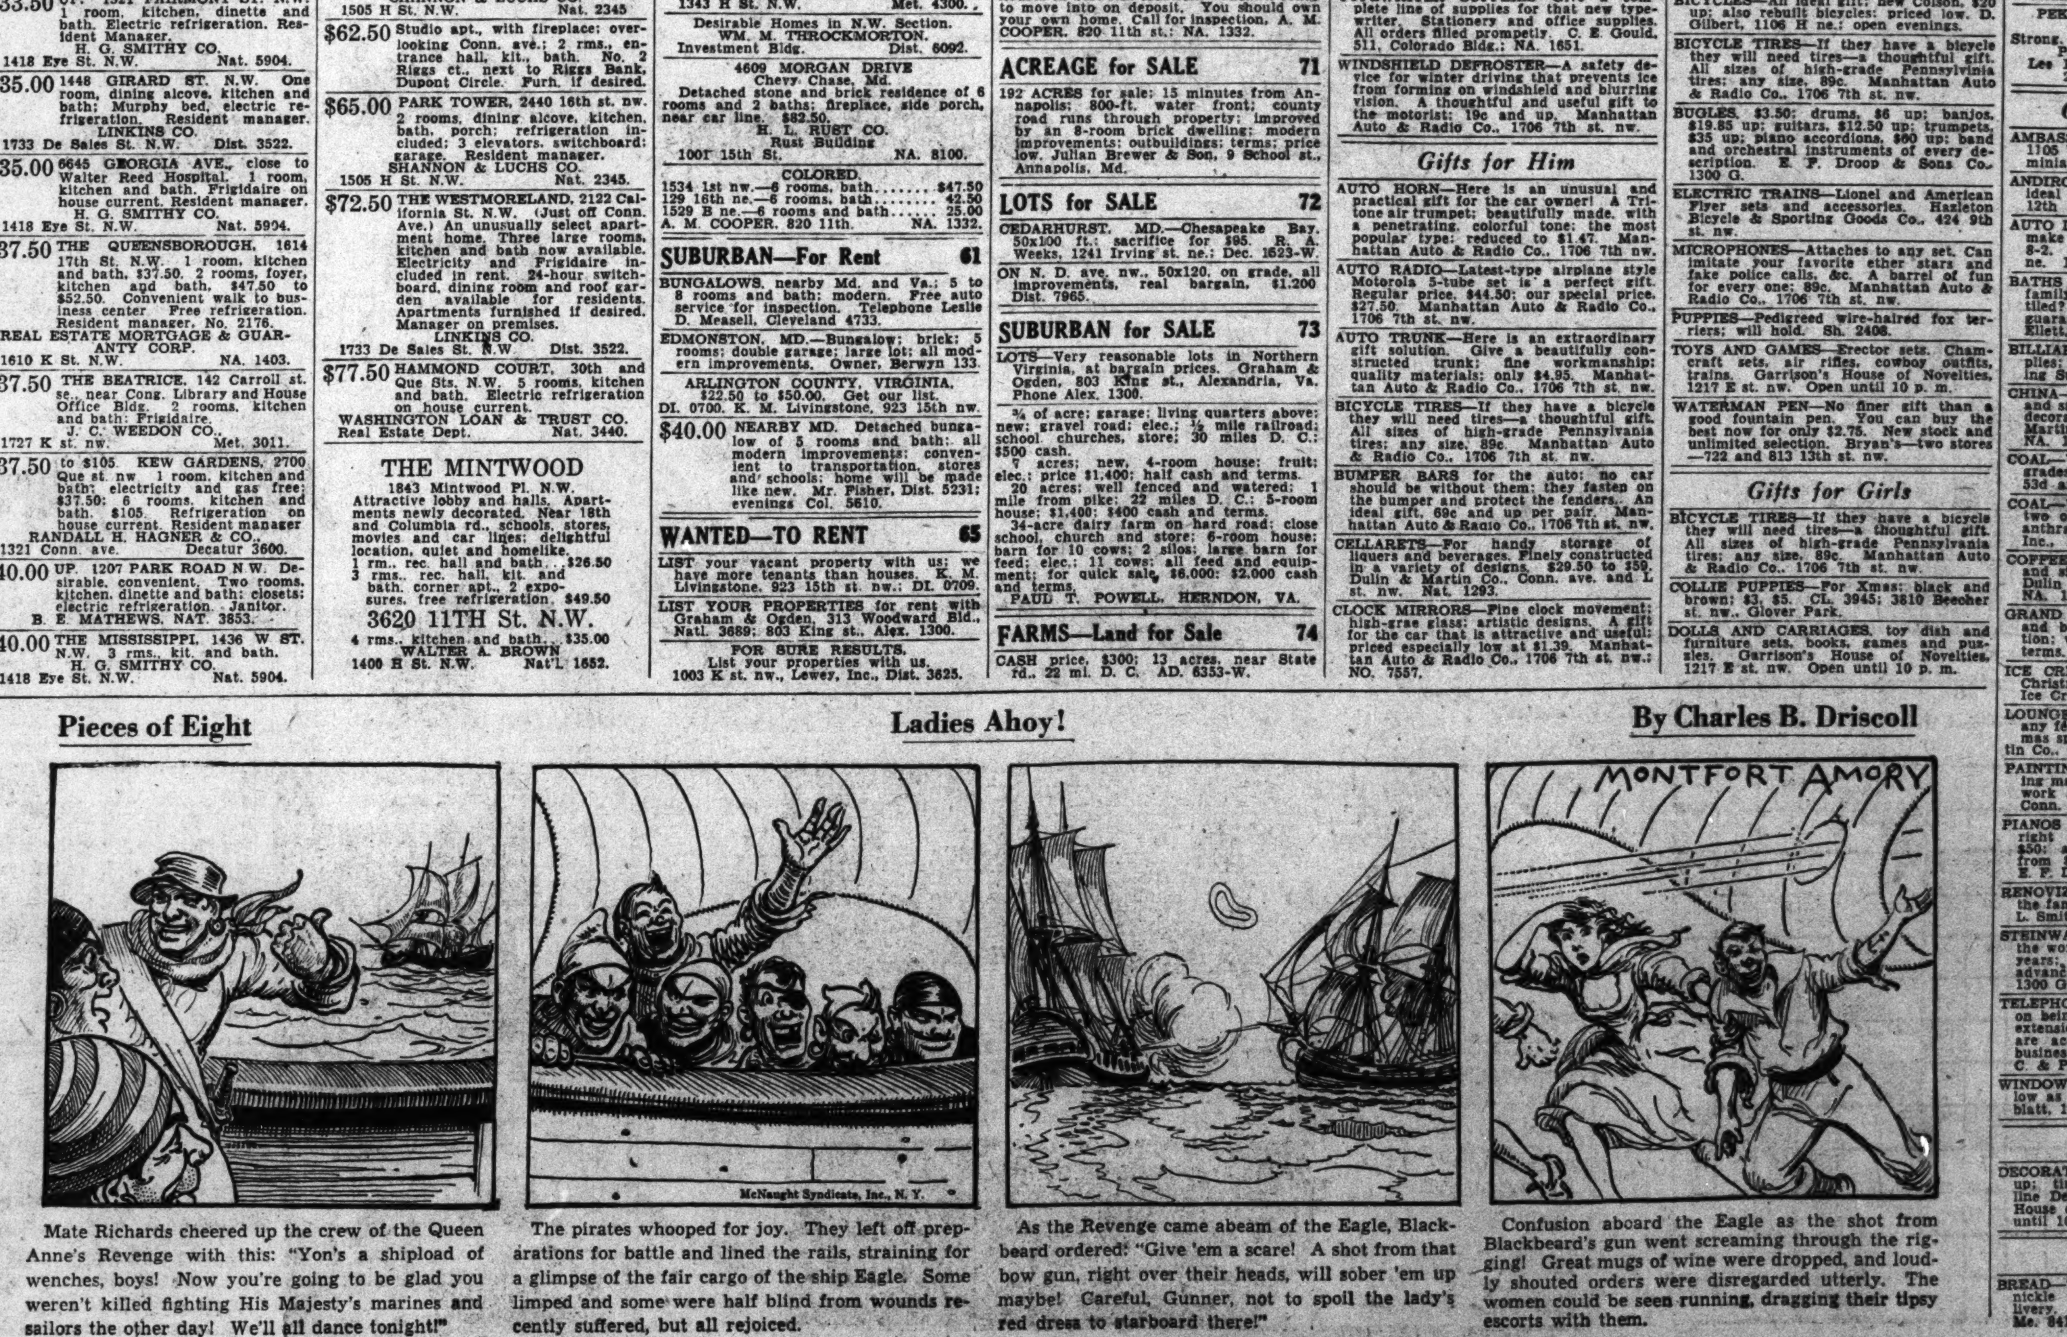
Ladies Ahoy!

By Charles B. Driscoll



MONTFORT AMORY
McNaught Syndicate, Inc., N. Y.

Mate Richards cheered up the crew of the Queen Anne's Revenge with this: "Yon's a shipload of wenches, boys! Now you're going to be glad you weren't killed fighting His Majesty's marines and sailors the other day! We'll all dance tonight!"

The pirates whooped for joy. They left off preparations for battle and lined the rails, straining for a glimpse of the fair cargo of the ship Eagle. Some limped and some were half blind from wounds recently suffered, but all rejoiced.

As the Revenge came abeam of the Eagle, Blackbeard ordered: "Give 'em a scare! A shot from that bow gun, right over their heads, will sober 'em up maybe! Careful, Gunner, not to spoil the lady's red dress to starboard there!"

Confusion aboard the Eagle as the shot from Blackbeard's gun went screaming through the rigging! Great mugs of wine were dropped, and loudly shouted orders were disregarded utterly. The women could be seen running, dragging their escorts with them.

Walt Mason, Himself

Best Seller.

The man who writes a noble story that makes a great and lasting hit, should wrap himself in ropes of glory and throw away his pen and quit. Though hosts of publishers beseech him, and syndicates kneel at his feet, he shouldn't let temptation reach him, but hold his triumph full, complete. But who can stem the mighty torrent of offers, contracts, if he'll write? The thought of quitting is abhorrent with fifty kinds of wealth in sight. "My book was good, but donnerwetter," the author mutters in his chair, "I know that I can write a better, and never gasp or sweat a hair." So he resumes his fevered writing, each year turns out a book or two; with all those publishers inviting, there's surely nothing else to do. The people buy his stories gripping because they all admired his first; and soon they say, "He's surely slipping, his latest story is his worst. Of old time pep he shows no traces, his yarns are void of all suspense, his dialogue is drab in places, his characters betray no sense." And so this man who might have lingered upon the summit for an age, goes down and down, his books are fingered by junkmen toiling for a wage. He may have coin in his valises, he may have crates of shining kale, but fame, a better thing, decreases with every book he puts on sale.
